Memorandum.

A meeting of nearly all the Male Inhabitants of Stanley (called by the the Governor) held at the Court House on Thursday the 19th October 1828; - The Governor addressed the Colonists in a speech of which the following is a summary. His Excellency stated he had two serious complaints to make of the conduct of some of the settlers. The first had reference to the Cattle on the Peninsula. Soon after his arrival the Colony was in a state bordering on famine for want of fresh meat and he had sent to London for some supplies while at the same time he pursued measures which he hoped would have prevented the occurrence of such a state of things. The Colonists were aware that the Peninsula had been fenced off, & cattle placed there, and a notice issued requesting all persons to abstain from trespassing the fence. This request had been disregarded by some of the settlers who had gone in to dig for eggs and to shoot. The consequence was that the cattle were frightened and had escaped; and the disturbance caused by these trespassers had reduced the Colony to the state it was in 3 months ago. He wished it had not been done negligently but in consideration. - He did not shoot there himself and he requested the settlers to follow his example, & if the settlement were not placed out of reach of famine & supplies to shipping cut off, some would call and the colony would be deserted. He was anxious not to adopt severe measures but he was also determined to cause the town rising to be repeated and newspapers would in future be severely punished. He wished more on the settlers themselves than on the Court to stop the evil. The second complaint was that persons have been visiting houses within view; - such persons might not be aware that they thereby placed themselves in a position to be accused of.

horse-stealing and brought up on a charge of felony. He had no doubt that his practice also had originated inconsiderately, but they might be heard that a strict watch would be kept in future, & persons riding horses without their own permission would after this caution be severely punished. In conclusion he begged the ladies to give up these practices and to assist him in keeping them down.
