Honours for chef Anita and scientist Jim for services to Falkland Islands

GOVERNMENT House Chef Anita Browning has been honoured with a BEM for services to the Falkland Islands, it was announced in the New Year's honours list.

The talented Falklands lady, told Penguin News this week that she felt both honoured and very pleased: "I found out about it in early November, it was a surprise when the Governor told me."

Known for her use of local ingredients Mrs Browning said, "I especially try to use local lamb beef and fish, and also vegetables from the Government House garden especially when we have visitors from overseas."

Although also known for her fantastic cakes and puddings she said: "I mostly like cooking main courses," and her favourite dish is the Great British classic Beef Wellington.

Another who has given over many years of his life in the service of the Falkland Islands is Consultant, UK/Falkland Islands Trust and head of Branch, Agri-

Anita Browning

Food and Biosciences Institute, Belfast, Professor Jim McAdam.

Professor McAdam was honoured with the OBE for services to research and agriculture in the Falkland Islands.

He told Penguin News yesterday: "I was really surprised to get this award and very honoured. It is a reflection of everyone, particularly all those involved in agriculture in the Falklands; farmers, DOA and friends who have supported me over the years and the UK Falkland Islands Trust who have supported most of the activities. I see it as a recognition of 38 years of work by a lot of people

Jim first came to the Falklands 38 years ago as a young pasture agronomist to work with the first agricultural research team (of three). He still visits frequently.

Another to be found within the walls of Government House, Chief Executive, Government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands, Martin Collins was honoured with the OBE for services to science and conservation in South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands.

Argentina's bullying unsuccessful

"WE can and will overcome their bullying," Chamber of Commerce President Roger Spink said of the Argentine Government in his Christmas speech to the Chamber.

Mr Spink said: "The Argentine Government's tightening sanctions and highly visible threats continue and have been and I am sure will continue to be unsuccessful."

Speaking of the results of the Falklands referendum on its political future, he added: "all of our members have played a role in getting this message out across the world entertaining the observers and receiving many journalists and politicians."

Mr Spink took the opportunity to refer to the achievements by the Chamber members in 2013 and noted the development of a Code of Practice in conjunction with the Falklands' Government, "which seeks to advance the stake of the people of the Falkland Islands in the developing the oil and gas industry in a sustainable manner."

ARTHUR Turner riding Dashing Dancer raises his arm in triumph, delighted with a Governor's Cup win at the 100th race meeting of the Stanley Sports Association.

Happy New Year

Moro New Year's Bash

A LARGE crowd plus tents and 4x4s gathered at the Moro on East Falklands to celebrate the New Year in style with Lorenzo farm owners Jan and Tanya Clarke.

The day started with a MotoX events and finished with a delicious barbecue and many raised glasses. After dusk fell the bonfire was set roaring to welcome in the New Year with warming cheer.

Falklands Memorial Way

SECRETARY of the Allied Special Forces Association Mike Colton reports that the organisation began 2014 with a new 'Way' in the Allied Special Forces Memorial Grove at the National Arboretum in Alrewas, Staffordshire, England.

He said: "One hundred metres of the new Falklands Memorial Way was laid just before Christmas. It stretches from the Sun Room towards the railway line but is at present 75 square metres short of the end of the Grove as we do not have the funds to complete it. Cost is around £15 per square metre and any help with this would be most useful."

The Falklands Memorial Way is a continuation of Annette's Memorial Way, which was opened last year and once complete will link individual memorials to civilian and military casualties of the Falklands War 1982.

This new 'Way' will be officially opened on Saturday June 14, 2014 at 12 noon from the Sun Room located in the centre of the Grove. "Everyone is welcome to join us" said Mr Colton.

The Memorial Grove consists of seven gardens, the sixth is the Falklands Resistance Forces garden which is known as a living memorial to the first British Resistance Force since World War Two. The garden houses a willow goose surrounded by a small orchard of five cider apple and three perry apple trees. The trees are set on the Ordinal and Cardinal points of the compass. Three white plaque stands commemorate the female civilian casualties of the war Mrs Doreen Bonner, Mrs Mary Goodwin and Mrs Susan Whitley.

The Grove is maintained by a dedicated volunteer team from the association and funded by members, friends and generous donations.

Fantastic day for Jodi and Stephen

JODI and Stephen Aldridge had a "fantastic" wedding day on December 21, "despite the early start," said Jodi. The couple were married at 10am in Christchurch Cathedral after a few tipples at Deanos Bar with the best man and bridesmaid.

The bride looked stunning in a white made to measure dress ordered from a US website, which she described as simple with beading detail on the bodice. Her sister (bridesmaid) Juliet wore an elegant long peach dress. Jodi's other bridesmaids were her niece Alicia and Stephen's daughter Skye, both looking very cute in white dresses.

Stephen wore a black suit as did the best man and fathers of the bride and groom. Mother of the bride Ella wore a simple black dress with red leaf motifs and a cowl neck. Mother of the groom Caroline wore a blue/turquoise dress and matching cream accessories.

Jodi said: "Luckily Liverpool football club won their match, with us having an update at the start of the ceremony."

Because they had time with family at the Malвина House Hotel before the main reception, "it made the day very relaxing and we didn't feel rushed at all," she said.

Stanley Church blessing for Falklands War veteran

FALKLANDS war veteran Lieutenant Colonel Tony Davies, OBE and his wife Beverley are to have their marriage blessed at a ceremony at the Cathedral on January 25.

Lt Col Davies told Penguin News: "We have always wanted to have our marriage blessed in church. The Falkland Islands have a very special place in my heart and the events of 32 years ago, when I served with the Welsh Guards during the Conflict, have played a huge part in shaping my life since then."

"I feel such a bond and sense of belonging to the Falkland Island and the community there."

As such the couple concluded, "that there could be no better place to have a service of blessing."

The Reverend Richard Hines has agreed to conduct the ceremony. Lt Col Davies said: "Whilst we have invited friends we have made over the years to join us we would also be delighted if anyone else from the Falkland Islands community would like to join us at the Church, to witness our blessing."

Your questions answered

Q FIG Human Resources were asked recently whether a civil servant who holds a key position in Government has been allowed to take up additional employment.

The following response was provided by Senior Personnel Officer Hilary McFarland...

A If asked the question, can public servants have other jobs or business interests, then FIG's response would be that all Officers are required to devote the whole of their contractual working hours to their duties. Where Officers wish to undertake any private work or set up a business enterprise outside of their contracted working hours, their requests are considered in full to decide whether or not there is any potential conflict of interest with the officer's duties. Where it is concluded that there is not, then they may be granted such permission. If there is, then they are not granted such permission.

FIG does not comment on individual cases as this is a private matter between FIG and an individual employee.

Four wells planned by Rockhopper for 2014

ROCKHOPPER Exploration has identified four wells it plans to drill in the upcoming 2014-2015 drilling campaign in the Falkland Islands.

On the Sea Lion discovery one well will be drilled in order to determine whether a non-equilibrium gas cap is present on the west flank. If there is no gas cap, resources for Sea Lion could be upgraded by 65 MMbbl to 402 MMbbl.

If the gas cap is present, the wellbore will be retained for use as a future gas injector/producer in the field development.

There is a deeper exploration target (Chatham) in a northerly-fed channel complex. If drilling proves successful, the reserves could be tied back to the Sea Lion offshore production complex.

Another well will be drilled on Isobel/Elaine in license PL004a in the North Falkland basin, where Rockhopper has increased its interest from 3% to 24%. This is designed to intersect six stacked exploration objectives, all within the F3 sequence, with potential combined reserves of 1.078 Bbbl.

Prime objectives are Elaine South and Isobel Deep, large fans sourced from a basement terrace in the southeast. Rockhopper says feeder systems are well imaged on attribute maps and amplitudes, while isopach defines the down-dip fan extent.

The planned Zebedee well will be drilled in block PL004b (Rockhopper 24 per cent). It will intersect eight stacked exploration targets, with combined potential of 1.183 Bbbl.

Zebedee is on the west flank of the regional syncline. This is an easterly fed fan that shares the same feeder as the Casper South discovery.

On block PL004c (Rockhopper 24%), the Jayne East well will test the F2 sands on the east flank of the regional syncline. These include the known Beverley and Casper South fans, both oil and gas bearing on the west flank. In addition the well will test the Zebedee fan.

There are five objectives at the Jayne East location, with combined potential of 289 MMbbl.

Group plan vision for future of Cape Pembroke

A VISION Document for Cape Pembroke is to be created by the newly formed Cape Pembroke Working Group.

On December 18 a meeting was attended by 14 members of the public interested in contributing to the management of Cape Pembroke and initially chaired by Nick Rendell of the Environmental Planning Dept.

There was a general discussion on the management of Stanley Common and Cape Pembroke. Issues raised included, the use of Mary Hill Quarry as a landfill site, spoil dumping on Mary Hill, irresponsible off-road driving, the potential for a road to the Cape Pembroke Lighthouse, control of dogs on the area and impact on birdlife and grazing management of horses and fencing.

Membership of the group was discussed and it was felt most user groups were well represented, with the exception of off-road drivers. It was suggested that the Falkland Islands Motorcycle Association be contacted to provide a representative to join the group. It was agreed the group should be a non-statutory lobby group and report to the Environmental Committee for onward reporting to Executive Council. Brian Summers will Chair the group. Sharon Jaffray, Mike Morrison and Fran Biggs were nominated and agreed to join a small working group to initially produce the Vision Document for Cape Pembroke.

The document will include the preservation of the natural habitats and species found on the Cape Pembroke area as well as the use of the site as an amenity area. Objectives to achieve this vision identified by the group included, control of irresponsible off-road driving, control of FIG activities (such as ditching, spoil dumping and pollution incidents), the potential for a road to Cape Pembroke, improved signage, wardening of the area and funding these initiatives.

Presentation on FIDC Handbook

HUMAN Resources consultant Carolyn Montgomerie presented a draft of a revised version of the FIDC Standard Conditions of Employment and Staff Handbook to the Development Board at their meeting on December 18, 2013. A similar presentation will also be made to FIDC staff early in the new year, after which Mrs Montgomerie hopes to present a final revised version in the light of any recommendations and comments received.

Observer numbers inadequate

THE Falkland Islands fishing industry would like to see an increased number of observers on fishing vessels, the Fisheries Committee was told at its December 19 meeting.

Chair of the Falkland Islands Fishing Companies Association (FIFCA), Cheryl Roberts, said that while she realised that the ideal of putting an observer on every fishing vessel was currently not affordable, her Association's members considered that the present number of observers, seven, was not adequate for the size of the fleet involved and she hoped that a continuous dialogue on this subject could be maintained with the Fisheries Department.

Proposed changes to minimum net mesh sizes

PROPOSALS on a change to the minimum size and conformation of nets used in the Falklands fin fish fishery were proposed at the December 19 Fisheries Committee meeting and will now be put to the industry for consultation before a planned implementation in the new year.

The proposed changes are the result of extensive sea trials by the Fisheries Department, and concern an increase in minimum mesh size and the insertion of a square sectioned mesh panel at a fixed distance from the cod end. They are designed to reduce unwanted by-catch, particularly of immature and undersized rock cod.

Pristine Forrest

COMPLIMENTS of the season from a strayed Kelper.

I just had this rather nice image of the Forrest (above) sent to me and guessed many of your readers would be as pleased as I am to see that she really looks to be in pristine condition and getting the TLC she deserves.

It seem to me a great pity she was unable to remain berthed down the hill from the 'Tab' at the Government Jetty. Surely with all the tourism she could have given a good 'sight seeing' service including an 'outward bound' type of use as she now seems to operate.

The dangers of buying online medication

IT has come to my notice recently that drugs are being bought online then sent in the post. This can be very dangerous.

Medicines which are available by prescription only are prescribed by a doctor and come from reputable sources. The problem with buying these sorts of drugs online is that they may not be what they say they are.

They may be poor quality and may not be effective. They also might not be subject to checks and controls. So if they had bad side effects you might even need emergency care. Then there may be difficulties here in the Falklands as we have some limitations in the care that we can give, an example is severe kidney and liver disease which are difficult to treat here.

I strongly urge you not to buy prescription only medication online but come to see us to discuss what you might need.

Also there are some drugs which are illegal to bring into the Falklands, so I urge you to beware.

Changes to loligo season accepted

READJUSTMENTS to the length of the first and second D.Gahi (Loligo) seasons, which were suggested by the Fisheries Department were accepted by the representatives of the fishing industry at the Fisheries Committee meeting on December 19.

Director of Natural Resources, John Barton, said that proposal which would set both seasons to 64 days had been first suggested by fishing captains, who had experienced five early closures of the second season in the last 10 years.

FIFCA Chair, Cheryl Roberts, said that the industry accepted the scientific and conservation reasons for the changes and agreed that these should be implemented gradually to allow assessment of any problems with increased catches of mature squid to be detected and assessed.

It was agreed that the first season of 2014 should be extended by seven days, running from February 24 to April 21 and that the second season should be shortened by the same amount, to run from July 22 until September 30. The rest of the changes, requiring another seven day adjustment, would be implemented in 2015, if no adverse impacts had been observed, or at some future date if it was thought that further monitoring was required.

Blue skies and top animals for 27th West Falkland Ram and Fleece Show

DECEMBER 29 dawned under a clear blue sky and an unusual Easterly wind on West Falkland. This pleasant day provided even more encouragement to the residents and visitors to Fox Bay Village, who were once again anticipating a good day out and were not to be disappointed.

This year road conditions were good so the many visitors who travelled overland on the day were able to drive to the 'show with reasonable ease.

Keith, Nuala and Jonas had already been working hard transforming the woolshed prior to the event. In the morning Keith, ably assisted by Stephen, Neil and Jonas were there to take entries. Some of the fleeces had already arrived by FIGAS, but all rams and most fleeces were delivered on the day. As usual they started as a trickle but it soon became quite hectic as the deadline for entries approached.

Once the entries were all in, Neil Judd and Bill Pole-Evans set about the daunting and onerous task of selecting the fleeces having the highest estimated commercial value. Once this had been accomplished next was to select from all the rams that were entered in the four ram classes the one they considered to be the Champion Ram and Reserve Champion. Finally they selected the Best Dual Purpose Ram (Wool/Meat) along with the runner up as well as third place. They were assisted in this task by having all the rams body-weights and fleece weights recorded on entry to the show.

A total of fifty nine fleeces from twelve farms and forty five rams from eight different farms were exhibited at this year's event. All the entries had been carefully selected from tens of thousands of fleeces and hundreds of rams; every one a credit to its owner.

By now the barbecue, which had already been set up by Justin and Andrew using the usual gas fired barbecue pits and this year in the capable hands of Justin, Andrew and Mark, was in full swing. This fortified all those that intended judging the three classes of rams and the three classes of fleeces, as well as the additional competitions which now awaited them back at the woolshed. Once this task had been accomplished the time consuming job of counting up the judging slips took place, before the final results were known. These were all then competently collated by Ian. The sheep used in the fleece weight competition was then skilfully shorn of its fleece and both the fleece and the sheep were then weighed. This enabled the winners in the other competitions to be finalised. The fleece weight, sheep weight and micron guess competition produced some very accurate results. It was also very satisfying to see a good number of entries in the Under 21's Sheep Judging Competition; this year there were five entries. Ted Jones had already produced the 'Master judging sheets' to enable the results from this competition to be worked out.

Promptly at 5pm a good crowd once again assembled in the woolshed for the prizegiving. This year's prizes were once again presented by HE The Governor Nigel Haywood who had flown out from town to the West especially for the event. Special thanks to Captain Clarke and the FIGAS staff back in town for making this possible.

The prize-giving brought this year's show to a close, after which the focus of attention now moved back again to the Social Club for more socialising until late that night.

As usual the Southern Cross Social Club Committee did an excellent job of quenching the thirst of the visitors at the bar. This brought to an end another successful Ram and Fleece Show.

Daniel Ford

Open second place Jan Clarke

WINNER of the John McKay Shearing Open event at the Shearing fundraising day on Sunday, Stefen Clarke became the Champion Shearer of the Falklands and won the chance to travel to Southern Ireland to represent the Islands at the World Championships. Also accompanying him will be Jan Clarke who took second place.

Stefen clipped Jan by only a few decimal points and third and fourth places were won by Evan Jones and Robert Ferguson respectively in a tense final with the crowd rallied on by Toot Ford's exciting commentary.

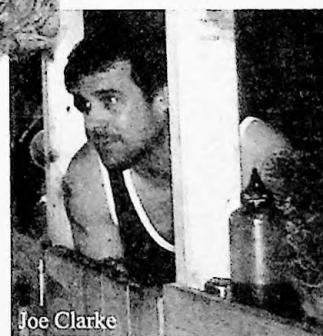

Also competing and working hard throughout the day were the skilful wool handlers. For the second year Sammy Lee Hirtle won the top prize and Vikki Lee a close second with Reba Peck an even closer third and Joleen Morrison in fourth. Sam and Vikki also won the opportunity to represent the Islands once again.

Keelan Fiddes was victorious in the Junior Shearing, second Carey Potai, third Louise Pole-Evans and fourth was Vikki Lee.

Duane Evans won the Senior Shearing competition followed by Shaun May in second, Jason Short third, and fourth Aidan Smith. In the Farmers Shearing Lee Molkenbuhr took the top spot followed by Jan Clarke, John Jones and Richard Short in fourth.

In the Team Shear Jan, Scott Short and Joel Barton won first prize, second were Lucas Bernsen, Ashley Story and Aidan Smith, third Lee Molkenbuhr, Duane and Jason Short and fourth Daniel Ford, Shaun and Joe

Joe Clarke

Clarke. Stefen was the shearer with the Cleanest Pen of Sheep. Least Points on the Board was Evan Jones in the heats and most improved wool handler was Zoe Watson.

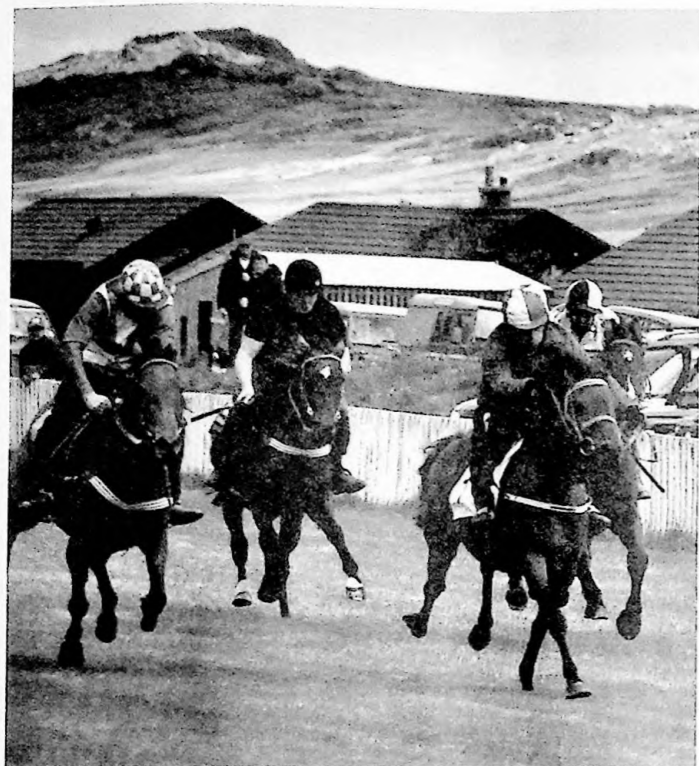

It was a great day out with raffle, auction, food, bar and dance to raise money to send competitors overseas and decide the top shearers and wool handlers in the Falkland Islands. HE the Governor and Government House will also be sponsoring the team it was announced on the day.

Arthur's the Champ at 100th meeting

DESPITE fears in late December that the 100th annual Stanley Sports Association Race Meeting might be washed out by wet weather for another year, enough wind and sun cleared up the course for jockeys and horses to take to the racing with their usual professionalism and enthusiasm.

The Rincon Grande Turner family will certainly have considered their hard work very much worthwhile with Arthur picking up an awesome 50 points (only four points less than his best of 54 in 2007) to take the Champion Jockey title from Tim Bonner – winner at the December 2011 meeting.

Much of Arthur's success was owed to his jockeying of the marvellous Dashing Dancer, now six times a winner of the Governor's Cup and picking up seven first places at this year's meeting. Dashing Dancer, owned by Maurice Davis, now claims 'Champion Horse' for the sixth time and was the winner of one of the two Champion Races this year. A great big surprise however, was her second place to Tim Bon-ner's Zafonic in the 500 yards Falkland Chase – an exciting turn around for the Bonner family.

Arthur added to his points this year with wins from his and his wife Elaine's own horses, Monster Muncher and Serendipity and a first on Maurice's Shaquita. No doubt the one that will have left Arthur grinning the most however was the win in the Sure Maiden Plate on Elaine's 'new to the field' Firefly and later the Penguin News Trophy. Also in the Maiden Plate the Peck family will have been more than happy with Baringa's second. Third was Ron Binnie on his own Tipperary.

Not surprisingly Tim Bonner didn't go down without a fight for his former title, battling to his first win of the day on Ballanchine in the Diana Turner Dash, just ahead of Arthur on Monster Muncher and Tim claiming another seven first places over the next couple of days. Ballanchine owned by Hayley Bonner had a great few days giving Tim another two red rosettes. Other wins were taken with his usual panache on the always zippy Zafonic, plus Venus and Rock of Gibraltar.

Elaine Turner, quite rightly wasn't about to let her husband take all of the glory at the 100th meeting, picking up the Bike Anderson Prize and the Ladies Chase on her own Serendipity, while Maurice Davis borrowed Elaine's Firefly for the Port San Carlos Prize and galloped to victory.

Holly Williams and maiden Baringa brought a whole lot of happy celebration to owner Dae Peck, when Holly steered her to victory in the 800 yards Salvador Prize Champion Race. Just to make it even better for the Pecks, Paul rode his daughter Reba's horse Sierra Bay into second place in the same prestigious race. With the family having brought their horses over from West Falklands, and Dae having suffered a very nasty riding accident earlier in the year, the family certainly deserved to carry home an armful of prizes.

The WFSA 100th race was another well worth a cheer with Duane Evans on his racer Destiny taking an impressive win from Colin Summers on his father's Beagle. Dad Owen Summers and hard working Chair of the SSA had handed his horses over to Colin this year but still took Beagle back long enough to very appropriately claim first in the Association Race.

Happily there was a reasonable amount of entries for the Armed Forces Challenge and Beagle came to the fore once again giving a well deserved victory to Bill Griffiths.

Dominating the youngsters' races this year were skilled youths Declan Bonner and Leila Gilding, with Sean Sackett picking up the Best Young Jockey title as a result of his excellent wins in two trots on Owen Summers' Chelsea, negotiating his way to victory ahead of up and coming jockey Holly Kirkham.

The adult trotting races had great line-ups and not surprisingly Bob and Lyndsey Short's fantastic pair Charisma and Apache lead the dignified charge to the finish line. Charisma (owner Lyndsey) back on form after a foal (Charisma not Lyndsey) put Apache back in his place however taking first in both the Twigworth Trot ridden by Bob and the Ladies Trotting Race ridden by Amy Gilding.

The great fun gymkhana events showed off the versatile skills of riders like Dominic Watson who dominated the games. Arturo Tellez, Arthur Turner, Paul Peck, Amy and Petra Gilding and Stefan Clarke, all of whom picked up red rosettes.

A round of applause to Jelly Trotters, Kyra Smith, Megan Summers, Jake Summers and Talia Jones. I think we can safely say things are looking up for the long term future of Falklands riding and racing.

Fastest on foot this year amongst the youngsters was Jack Alazia taking the 440, 100 and 220 yards, while in the older category Zoran Zuvic claimed the William McGill Memorial Challenge Plate ahead of Ross Lindsay.

Ben Jones was the quickest veteran on the course – and probably flew the furthest in order to win it – all the way from New Zealand.

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.
Pleasant Peak: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Lee is speediest shearer this year

SPEEDY shearer Lee Molkenbuhr (pictured above) won the Rose Bar Speed Shear competition on Monday December 23 closely followed by Stefen Clarke; third was Evan Jones and fourth place went to Lucas Berntsen.

A festive favourite with the community, there was no room for traffic outside of the Rose Bar as the public flocked to see the best shearers battle it out.

Richard Short kept an eye on the quality of the work by green or red flagging each shorn lamb and Toot Ford kept the crowd chuckling with his excellent commentary.

Lee collected the case of beer trophy on the day but competition was furious with some fast times and more green flagged lambs than the previous year. Sixteens shearers took part from East and West Falklands and overseas.

RAFT RACE UPDATE

Having spoken to the Met Office, this Sunday (5th) is looking to be the same or even worse than yesterday. There is some scope for a general weather improvement in the next week (although that is purely a best guess). We will schedule the race provisionally then for SUNDAY 12th January at Midday. I would be grateful if Raft Builders could contact me so we can ascertain if you can still make it, and we might also be needing a few other safety boats too. Message me on FB or my mobile number is 51111.

Bigger broadband packages Sure tells customers

THERE will be 25 per cent increase to data allowances on Sure's standard broadband packages, with effect from January 1, announced the company yesterday.

Chief Executive of Sure in the Falkland Islands, Justin McPhee, said: "To wish our customers a Happy New Year we are delighted to announce the 25 per cent increase to bundled megabyte allowances. In addition, residential package customers will also benefit from lower overage charges. These improvements are part of our ongoing commitment to improve our broadband services for our customers."

This follows a bandwidth upgrade last month.

Noble gets go ahead for dock facility in Stanley Harbour

A TEMPORARY dock facility (TDF) in Stanley harbour that will provide logistics support to exploration drilling was given planning permission at yesterday's meeting of the Planning and Building Committee.

Noble Energy Falklands Limited will construct and operate the dock in partnership with Premier Oil and it will lie 400 metres to the east of FIPASS.

Although the TDF will have a design life of 10 years Noble proposed that the facility be operational for three years and then removed in line with the Falkland Islands Government's policy, that the effects of oil development on Stanley Harbour must only be temporary.

Government will be offered 'right of first refusal' on the TDF at the end of the three year operational period.

Speaking to the committee in a short presentation Noble's Richard Winkelman explained that the floating barge, causeway and mooring dolphins would leave New Orleans, Louisiana around January 25, come down the east coast of South America and land in the Falklands in early March when construction of the dock will begin.

Construction will involve a new road linking the causeway to Coastel Road followed by the installation of the floating barge unit, including ballasting. The causeway will then be installed including the beach landing point and ramp. The installation of lighting will follow and the commissioning of a lattice boom track crane. Barge facilities will then be built.

The TDF will be operational on a 24-7 basis, 365 days a year and provide cargo handling services, lifting facilities and equipment and will have the logistical capabilities to handle materials for the offshore oil and gas industry including dry bulk powders, drilling mud and drilling water storage.

It will also provide infrastructure to handle waste.

Other oil and gas operators are likely to share the dock, however Noble and Premier Oil will maintain the operational manning and overall responsibility for it. It is estimated that four people will be required to manage and operate the TDF on a day to day basis.

In terms of shipping movements vessels will travel to and from the offshore assets, transporting supplies and personnel as required.

Offshore Support Vessels will enter Stanley Harbour and moor temporarily at the TDF in order to receive or backload materials and supplies. It is expected that the total number of vessel movements to the TDF from offshore operations will be an average of one vessel per day, with a peak of no more than three per day.

Noise impact on Stanley from the TDF has been assessed.

It was noted that the baseline for noise was already high due to vessel movements to FIPASS thus noise impact from the TDF was considered, "minimal."

Comment by Editor Lisa Watson

IF ever I were even vaguely tempted to feel sorry for an Argentine politician it has to be former senator Daniel Filmus.

Why such empathy for a man afflicted with the need to steal our birthright you might ask? Well, the answer is this, if it were not enough that the poor chap failed in his attempt to be re-elected as senator of Buenos Aires, in the last week he was inaugurated as head of a department with responsibilities for a territory over which his own country has no authority whatsoever. Mr Filmus now has the proud responsibility for Secretariat of Malvinas, South Georgia, South Sandwich Islands and adjoining maritime spaces in the South Atlantic Affairs.

Presumably after the noise of clapping, cheering and popping of champagne bottles that followed the announcement of his 'promotion' died down, the gentleman shuffled behind his desk, jabbed the button on his PC and then stared blankly and sadly at his softly glowing monitor all the while wondering what on earth to do next.

To be serious, the aim of the department comprises 'pressing forward with claims over those territories', but even with such a clear mission we have to wonder if a small part of him is pretty worried that if further promotion is based on success, then by end of contract he'll be heading off to a dusty office in the basement, passing by former minions who refuse to make eye contact.

By contrast if things are looking less than rosy for Mr Filmus' career, here in the Falklands, local contractors with an interest in the oil industry will be viewing the future with increased optimism, now that planning application permission has been granted to Noble for the construction of the dock facility in Stanley Harbour.

Earlier this week while speed reading the 39 page accompanying document which includes phrases like 'operational 24 hours a day' and vessels travelling to and from 'offshore assets' and similar, generated a nervous but excited wobble in my stomach at the thought that things were 'really happening'.

Perhaps we should send the Malvinas Secretariat a copy - or would that be construed as just plain mean?

Noble gets go ahead for dock in Stanley Harbour

Regarding dredging, the conditions imposed on Noble mean unless otherwise approved in writing by the Planning Officer, they cannot dredge more than 100 cubic metres from the seabed under the first causeway barge. No other dredging is allowed and spoil is likely to be kept near the port on land. However this has yet to be decided.

Planning application by Noble was originally submitted in late November 2013 following extensive pre-application discussions.

At the meeting yesterday the committee debated a number of the 55 conditions imposed on Noble that accompanied the granting of planning permission.

One condition that imposed 'no more than an average of nine vessels in any rolling three day period shall visit the development...' was considered unnecessarily restrictive and will instead be combined into the requirement for a Harbour Management Plan. It was also noted by Environmental Officer Nick Rendell that Noble's Environmental, Social and Health Impact Assessment (ESHIA) of the area was, "a very complete document."

Filmus v Falklands

ARGENTINE former senator Daniel Filmus was made head of the newly created "Secretariat of Malvinas, South Georgia, South Sandwich Islands and adjoining maritime spaces in the South Atlantic Affairs," reported Merco-press this week.

The Argentine government has included the Falkland Islands among its most important goals and objectives for 2014 and the aim of the new department is to press forward Argentine claims to the Islands.

Approved and deferred plans

IN addition to the approval given to the Noble temporary port development (see front page) six planning applications were approved with conditions and three deferred at Thursday's meeting of the Planning and Building Committee.

An application to remove the old chimney from Malvinas House Hotel and replace it with a clock tower/roof turret and to re-situate the existing flag poles to accommodate new steps was met with approval, however an application to face an enlarged parking area with Fox Bay stone rather than the quartzite sandstone currently used was turned down based on concerns from the Historic Building Committee and the Public Works Dept that this would not fit well with the character of the conservation area.

Provision of additional office space by refurbishing the existing conservatory at Gilbert House was approved subject to the replacement windows and doors being timber to avoid setting a precedent which could lead to a widespread use of replacement UPVC windows and doors in listed buildings.

The construction of a warehouse, workshop and lay down area at 10 Boxer Bridge for Fortuna Ltd was given conditional approval including that it should only be used for seafood processing and related activities.

Following the withdrawal of a previous application, outline permission was granted for the construction of a dwelling for Mike Wallace at 9 Dean Street with conditions which include that the construction should not take up more than 25 per cent of the total area of the site to ensure it is not overdeveloped.

Hamish Wylie's application to erect a 3m x 9m polytunnel at 1 McKay Close was approved as was the Argos Group Ltd's proposal to construct a seven car parking area at 1 H Jones Road.

Finally an application for the purchase and erection of a Tanfield FIC-type approved domestic dwelling for Chris and Lyndsay May at Speedwell Island was issued a Building Permit.

Deferrals

An outline application from Martin Elstow for the erection of an aircraft hangar with adjoining office at the former model aircraft/rugby pitch site near Stanley Bypass for helicopter operations was deferred at the request of the applicant due to ongoing talks with FIGAS related to the application. It will now go to the February 5 meeting.

An application to locate a Portakabin adjacent to the existing Nissan Hut and create connecting doorways for Falkland Garage at Plot 60, Lookout Industrial Estate was also deferred as was Byron Holdings Ltd's proposal to extend their existing building at 3 H Jones Road, both pending further information from the applicants.

Remanded in custody

IN the Magistrates Court on Monday, Stanley man Kevin Derek Charles McLaren (38) was remanded back into custody.

Mr McLaren was remanded into custody until January 13, when a plea and case management hearing is scheduled to take place.

Final farewell to Jhelum

FOLLOWING the collapse of the stern section of the ship wreck Jhelum in Stanley Harbour and the movement of the remains towards the shoreline the decision has been made that the final remains will be removed.

The stern section suffered a major collapse over the past few months and the Government announced "The floating debris from this collapse presents a significant risk of to harbour-users, in particular cruise ship tenders and other small craft."

In 2008, at the time that the bow of Jhelum collapsed, approval was granted for the removal of the remains of the wreck, however, due to potential safety concerns, the stern remained in-situ.

Martech Ltd was scheduled to begin works to remove the residual parts of Jhelum this week, weather permitting.

Harbour Master Malcolm Jamieson told Penguin News that some residents had expressed an interest in obtaining some of the wood from the wreck in order to use for picture frames and similar.

He said: "We do know that most of it is soft and largely useless but we are trying to work out how best to handle any of the wood that is good enough to work with. This may just be an informal arrangement where any pieces deemed to be usable are just set aside for people to help

The Jhelum in late 2013. Picture by Fisheries Department themselves."

Mr Jamieson said: "It is our intention to set aside a number of days where usable pieces of the Jhelum will be available for collection by anyone who wishes to. When this is likely to happen and where, will be known once the work has been completed."

The Jhelum

The vessel arrived at Stanley Harbour on August 18, 1870 in a sinking condition.

She had started her last voyage from Callao bound for Dunkirk in July with a cargo of 500 tons of guano which had solidified when wet as a result of gales off Cape Horn straining her hull causing her to leak badly. Part of her cargo was jettisoned and her crew was exhausted by the time they reached Stanley.

The crew refused to put to sea and there were no funds for repairs. After a survey she was condemned eventually ending her days as a storage hulk on the waterfront.

Protegat Scout prang

CONTACT was made between FPV Protegat and MV Scout on December 31 causing minor damage to both. The issue is in the hands of the insurers of both ships and permanent repairs are being carried out on Protegat.

Damage was minor but does affect the railings and the mooring arrangements thus for safety reasons permanent repairs will be undertaken in the near future. The repairs are expected to be signed off as complete by the end of the week by a surveyor from the Classification Society RINA who has travelled to the Islands in for that purpose, reported Fisheries Department Harbour Master Malcolm Jamieson. It is understood that the incident has not interfered with the operation of MV Scout.

Mr Jamieson said as Protegat is a Falklands flagged vessel, a separate investigation has taken place but he was not able to divulge any further information, "as the insurance issue is ongoing and we do not want to interfere with that process at this time. However, the findings may be released in due course."

Scots Guards veterans' priceless gift

TWO 1982 veteran Scots Guards and the brother of the last man to be killed in action just 30 minutes before the surrender on June 14 visited the Islands this week and made a valuable donations to the Museum and the Cubs and Scout groups.

Vince Campbell and Jim Peters both served with 2 Scots Guards and accompanying them was Andy Malcolmson whose brother David was killed in action as he worked with a volunteer stretcher party on Mount Tumbledown just minutes before the Argentine forces surrendered.

The men's connection with the Falklands has however been ongoing for some time and far exceeds their fleeting three day visit - something normally only pathologists do - quipped Vince with typically pithy Scottish humour.

Andy who works for the Ardagh Group glass factory had carried a very special bottle of whiskey to the Islands. While a high price can easily be paid for a special or preferred whiskey, on this occasion it is the carefully crafted bottle which is without doubt priceless.

With the blessing of his employers and on behalf of the Tumbledown Veterans and Families Association Andy has created a bottle sporting the Scots Guards Cap Star and embossed with the words Second Battalion Scots Guards, Tumbledown Veterans and Families Association.

The label carries the names of the nine Scots Guards who lost their lives on Tumbledown: David Malcolmson, Archibald Stirling, Clark Mitchell, Derel Denholm, Daniel Wright, James Reynolds, John Simeon, Ronald Tanbini and John Pashley.

It cost about £16,000 (£4,000 for the glass mould alone) to make the bottle of which there are only about 30 in the world, said Andy, adding, "but really it's priceless."

The bottle contains a unique blend of whiskey, but what the men chose to create their Tumbledown blend we will never know. "It's a secret, we're not telling," they chorused.

Andy Malcolmson and Vince Campbell

Prior to their visit they had organised for the Tumbledown Vets Association to gift five, three man tents to the Cubs and Scouts and on Wednesday they returned to Tumbledown with members of the youth groups and raised the Association's standard.

Cub leader Jan Miller explained that the Cubs climb Tumbledown on June 13, every year to remember the Scots Guards who lost their lives in 1982.

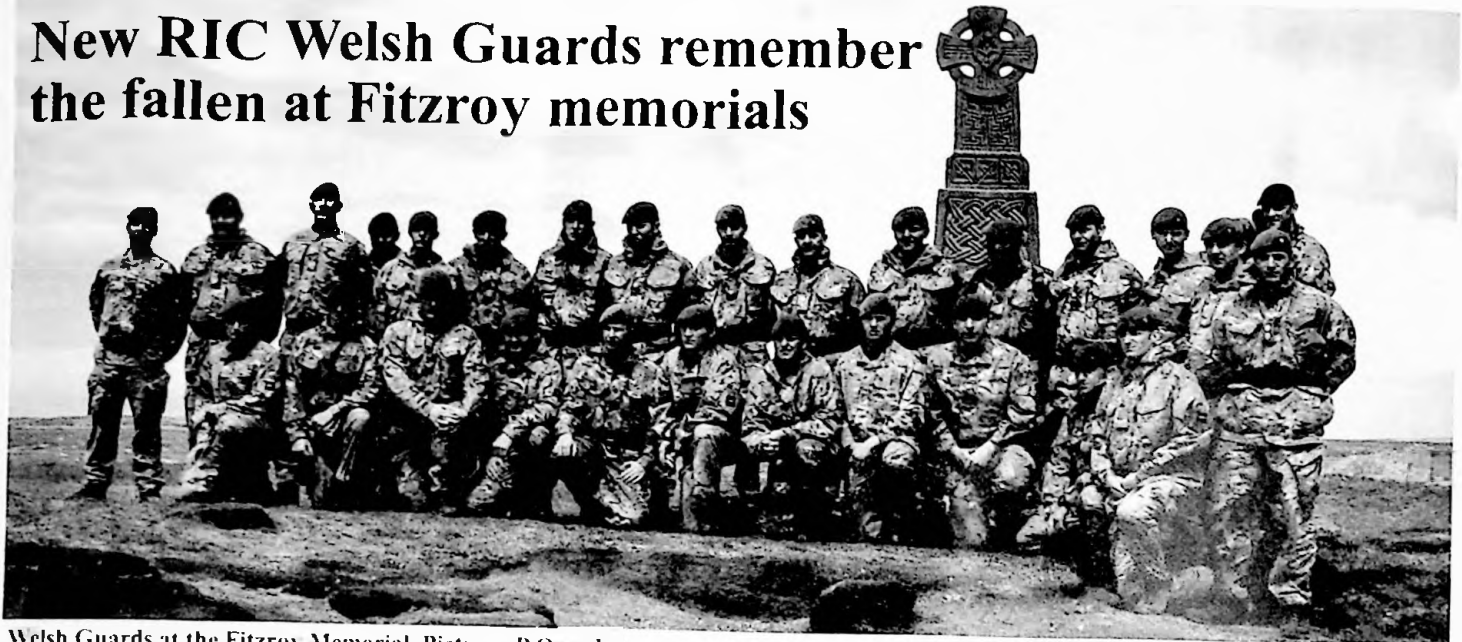

Over the years many of the Guards and their families have got to hear about this, said Mrs

Miller adding, "they are so taken that the youngsters here remember their fallen comrades that they decided to present them with a gift, and what a gift."

"We received five very smart Vango tents, which we are overwhelmed with, said Mrs Miller. "We are extremely grateful to everyone in the Tumbledown Veterans Association who gave us such a generous gift."

"They are really good quality tents and will withstand the Falklands climate for many years to come."

New RIC Welsh Guards remember the fallen at Fitzroy memorials

NUMBER 2 Company, 1 Welsh Guards, the new Roulement Infantry Company (RIC) at Mount Pleasant began their detachment with a Service of Remembrance at the memorials at Fitzroy on Sunday January 5.

Sqn Ldr Al Nicholls, the Services Padre, led the service for Lt Col Dino Bossi, the Welsh Guards CO, and about 40 of his company, with the people of Fitzroy and a party from Stanley as well as an ex-Guardsman, in attendance.

As ever, the strong breeze provided a challenge for all reported Fitzroy resident Phil Ovenden, "but at least the sky was blue and it was warm."

Following the service, everyone went back to the hall for a meet up and chat, "and to partake of refreshments and eat cake, reaffirming the Guards strong links with Fitzroy and the Falkland Islands," said Phil.

In 1982, the Welsh Guards formed part of the 5th Infantry Brigade of the British Task Force. On June 7 they were on board the ill-fated Sir Galahad, when three Argentine aircraft attacked the vessel at Fitzroy culminating in high casualties, 48 dead, 32 of them Welsh Guards, 11 other Army personnel and five crewmen from Sir Galahad herself. Although the Welsh Guards did not feature in any major engagement as a unit, members of the regiment were awarded 1 Military Cross and 3 Military Medals. The regiment was awarded the theatre honour 'Falkland Islands 1982'.

HMS Richmond personally commended

COMMANDER British Forces South Atlantic Islands, Air Commodore Russell La Forte CBE has presented HMS Richmond with his personal Commendation in recognition of Distinguished Service in the region by the Type 23 Duke Class frigate during her Atlantic Patrol Tasking.

Air Commodore La Forte addressing the assembled ship's company expressed his gratitude for the dedication, professionalism and wide ranging capability that the ship continues to demonstrate throughout her time operating in the South Atlantic.

Accepting the commendation on behalf of Richmond's ship's company, the Commanding Officer, Commander Robert G Pedre said: "I am immensely proud of the significant contribution HMS Richmond and my ship's company has made to Maritime Security and reassurance during this seven month operational deployment.

"We have a critical role in protecting our nation's interests and I am honoured to receive this prestigious Commendation on behalf of my ship's company."

December a cold month with average sunshine

READERS will not be surprised to learn that December was a cold month with both the mean maximum and mean minimum temperatures below the long-term averages for the month, according to Mount Pleasant Met Office records. Rainfall and sunshine were however, close to the long-term average.

Temperature

The mean maximum temperature was 12.0 degrees Celsius compared with the long-term average for December of 14.3 degrees Celsius. The highest temperature recorded was 17.4 degrees Celsius on the 23rd. The lowest maximum temperature was 5.6 degrees Celsius recorded on the 2nd.

The mean minimum temperature was 4.1 degrees Celsius, compared with the long-term average of 5.5 degrees Celsius. The lowest minimum was -1.5 degrees Celsius recorded on the 5th and the highest minimum temperature was 9.2 degrees Celsius recorded on the 1st.

Rainfall

The total rainfall for the month was 41.6 mm compared with the long-term average of 60.1 mm. The wettest day was on the 2nd with a total of 8.8 mm. More than 0.1mm fell on 26 days with 1.0 mm or more falling on 12 days.

Sunshine

The monthly sunshine total was 203.9 hours compared with the long-term average for December of 230.6 hours. The highest daily total was 15.5 hours recorded on the 21st.

Snow/Hail/Thunder/Fog

There were six days of snow or sleet however there was no record of lying snow. There was hail on 12 days, but no record of fog or thunder.

Wind/Gales

The monthly mean wind speed was 17.3 knots, which is above the average of 15.8 knots. The highest gust of 54 knots was recorded on the 4th. There were five gale days recorded for the month and there were 25 days with gusts in excess of 33 knots.

Wrack your brains for research projects

ON his fourth visit to the Falklands since his time as Canon at Christchurch Cathedral from 1991 until 1996, Dr Stephen Palmer is embarking on three more Falklands' research projects supported by the Shackleton Scholarship Fund.

Speaking to Penguin News this week Canon Palmer said the first of those is the ESRO (European Space Research Organisation) project (1968-73) and he is very keen to speak to anyone who might have memorabilia or memories of the station which was situated on the south side of the road from Stanley close to Moody Brook.

He is also forming a 'definitive' (there's no such thing as definitive lists he commented) of all of the honours and decorations awarded in the Falkland Islands. He wishes to include those less well known also, such as those awarded by the Humane Society and the Polar Medal.

His third project relates to the visit by HMS Superb in 1953. The ship was only scheduled to spend three days in the Falklands but in fact remained for six weeks. HMS Superb had around 650 people on board including 45 Royal Marines. HMS Superb was a Minotaur-class light cruiser of the Royal Navy.

In 1953 she took part in the Fleet Review to celebrate the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

She spent some time as the flagship of Rear Admiral Sir Herbert Packer, and was decommissioned in 1957.

He again asks that if anyone has any memories of parties or events on board could they contact him via the Archives.

Canon Palmer, who lives in the north of England and is Chaplain to HM the Queen asked that Penguin News record his gratitude to the Shackleton Scholarship Committee for giving him the opportunity to undertake the projects.

TIMMY Bonner holds onto his champion jockey status at the Christmas race meeting and achieves a double win of the Maiden Plate and the Governors Cup on imported Chilean mare Dory.

At the steer riding event an unusual three way tie climaxes the Boxing Day competition held at Stanley Butchery. Judges decide that Colin Summers, Keith Alazia and Rag Macaskill have performed equally and award them each 44 points. In the ride-off all three sit out their 10 seconds ride for a second time and land on their feet, but Keith Alazia is tipped for first place with Colin second and Rag third.

At the Estancia John Jones also retains his status as champion shear-er beating Colin McDonald, Hugh Grierson and Peter McKay in the ten sheep final. Charles Dickson, Bobby Short and Stephen Dickson take the top spots in the intermediate shear, forcing Lee Molkenbuhr to settle for fourth place.

On the west Clive Wilkinson from Dunnose Head with 221 points snatches the honour of Champion Ram from Nigel Knight of Coast Ridge by just one point, while the Governors Cup for any fine wool fleece other than hoggett is claimed by Pat Luxton of Chartres.

A video tape of a BBC cartoon penguin named Pingu arrives in many people's homes over Christmas courtesy of the Argentine Foreign Minister, Guido Di Tella. But whether the 600 tapes were welcomed by their recipients is another matter. Kitty Bertrand immediately returned her copy to the Post Office writing on the package, "Unwanted gift. Return to sender." John Birmingham meanwhile collects the videos to send to a Bosnian orphanage and Velma Malcolm calls Mr Di Tella's bluff as she collects the videos to be sold in London to raise funds for the Falkland Islands Association.

Not to be left out of the New Year news 17 year old Peter Symonds student Keith Knight takes a 185 foot plunge off a crane in Portsmouth in a fund raising bungee jump collecting £405 for charity.

A row brews up between Falkland Landholdings and the Falkland Islands Company as Director Roger Spink takes exception to troops loading FLH wool at Mare Harbour rather than the usual system in Stanley, saying he in turn has had to lay off a stevedore as a direct result. "As a private company we should be allowed to experiment," argues FLH general manager Robin Lee. Councillor Charles Keenleyside says FLH has been given a mandate to act in a commercial manner, adding that he is, "surprised at the hysterical outburst by Roger Spink."

The Government refuses FIC permission to import, store and retail diesel and petrol despite the company claiming they could knock 5p per litre off the prices. Chief Executive Ronnie Sampson explains that the concession has been awarded to Stanley Services and in view of their commitment to invest some £4.5 million in the provision of modern facilities the period of exclusivity would be extended.

ELAINE Turner makes history as the fifth lady to win the Governors Cup as she storms to victory on Capizana making it a hat trick for the Short family's imported mare and beating husband Arthur on Whirling Fireball. Arthur however manages to save face by claiming the coveted position of Champion Jockey. Maurice Davis's Dashing Dancer makes her debut as a four year old winning the Maiden Plate, the Penguin News Trophy and the Dionne Jones Memorial.

In the New Year's Day Raft Race the Royal Falkland Islands Police's annual challenge to other teams to see if they can be beaten is taken up with gusto by David Fyfe and Spurs Henry who claim first place on their craft Blue Streak. The Power and Electrical Department paddle the Red Drum into second place and the RFIP have to be satisfied with third place.

Shearers Jan Clarke and Paul Phillips earn the honour of representing the Falklands at the Golden Shears in Australia later in the year, after battling it out at the Estancia Shearing Competition held on this occasion at Goose Green.

For her services to the children of the Falklands and their education, Lorraine McGill is awarded an MBE in the New Year's honours list. Mrs McGill who retired last year after 22 years of running Stanley House, says, "I enjoyed my job and did the best I possibly could and certainly didn't expect anything like this."

Love is in the air as Rebecca Edwards and Christopher (Citta) Lee marry at Hill Cove in front of more than 200 guests and then dance the night away in the Peak's farm garage before enjoying a surprise display of fireworks. In Stanley Corrine Parke and Craig Paice choose New Year's Eve to tie the knot and emerge from the Cathedral to a guard of honour from the Falkland Islands Defence Force.

HMS Endurance arrives at Mare Harbour from Punta Arenas under tow with a skeleton crew on board, the rest having flown back to the UK soon after the vessel faced the threat of sinking on December 16 when the engine room flooded leaving her powerless in the icy waters of the Strait of Magellan in the south of Chile.

Timmy Bonner gallops into Champion Jockey position recording his eighth victory in the Governors Cup making him the most successful jockey in racing history in the event.

Music teacher Shirley Adams-Leach is the recipient of an MBE in the New Year's Honours list for her service to musical education which spans more than a decade.

The New Constitution comes into effect on New Year's Day and is celebrated with a reception at Government House hosted by Governor Alan Huckle, who said it was a significant step forward in democracy in the Falkland Islands. Mr Huckle acknowledges that one of the effects of the Constitution was to constrain the role of the Governor, adding that he thought it right.

Stanley Dairy continues to serve its customers from a reduced operation under the management of Islander Sophie Clausen after the former managers Kevin and Leone Reynolds leave the Islands.

December weather is recorded as, "the sunniest for any month since the opening of Mount Pleasant in 1986." Temperatures for the month are well above average and rainfall well below (but hang on before you tear the paper up in frustration of this summer) wind speeds exceeded the norm.

The Floodgates of Fear

TO start with, let me wish you a very happy New Year, even though by the time you read this, it will be January 10, and it will have become obvious that this year is unlikely to be any happier or more prosperous than last year.

I spent New Year's Eve in a very fine Indian restaurant, where the absence of forced jolly New Year spirit suited me very well. I have never liked the fake merriment of 31 December/1 January, and I was delighted to find kindred spirits among the staff of this London restaurant.

As the "magic" hour approached, the staff frequently looked at their watches, but only because they were wondering how much longer we would linger. The meal had been fabulous and the wine even better, but, like me, the staff probably wanted to be at home watching Jools Holland's New Year's Eve Hootenanny (it's the best TV of the year, by the way).

Anyway, when Big Ben bonged out the auspicious hour, we kissed and embraced, rasped our way through a verse or two of Auld Lang Syne (does anyone know more the first two lines?) then swiftly made for the exit. There was still an hour or so of Jools to enjoy. Thus ended 2013, and, I might add, a good thing too.

At one point during the evening, I joked cynically that while most people in London were gaily counting down to the New Year, toasting each minute with another swig of bubbly, the Daily Mail would be counting down to the arrival of the first wave of "national health and benefits scroungers" from Bulgaria and Romania. Many a true word etc, because I had a quick look on the web later that night, and, sure enough, the house newspaper of British xenophobes, racists and EU bashers was doing exactly that. We were, implied the Mail, on the edge of immigration Armageddon.

Hate him as any intelligent reader must, the Mail's editor Paul Dacre knows that fear sells papers, and January 1 could be made into a very scary one, notwithstanding lack of journalistic evidence. Because that was the date from which European citizens from two of the most recent newcomers to the European Community, Romania and Bulgaria, could enter the UK to live and work at will, enjoying many, but not all, of the benefits of British citizenship. In fact, nationals of those countries had been able to enter Britain and live and work here for a considerable time, but only if they had guaranteed work.

The comings and goings of other Europeans such as Germans, French and Spanish, appears to upset no one by the way. But the opening of "The Floodgates" on January 1, said the Mail, was terrifying.

Bound Ungagged

Graham Bound is the founding editor of Penguin News

With Gypsies in the vanguard, workshy Romanians and Bulgarians, would immediately sign up for the dole and start jumping the orderly British queues for social housing. And, of course, the National Health Service would be swamped with demands for treatment of the chronic illnesses that were beyond the ken of doctors from the land of Vlad the Impaler.

How pleasant it was, therefore, to see that the truth was very different. The first Easy Jet planes from those parts to arrive on January 1 were only half-full. Nevertheless, newspaper and TV reporters who had staked out airports swarmed over the bemused arriving passengers asking them if they would be "signing-on" or heading for a hospital. One Romanian said he would be doing precisely that, because he was a doctor and had been recruited to work for the NHS.

Over the next few days, media interest was maintained, but it dropped off as it became clear that the vast majority of arriving Eastern Europeans were returning to work in UK after spending Christmas at home, or were professionals recruited for positions that could not be filled by British citizens. This must have been disappointing for the Daily Mail, of course. They would much rather see sidewalks blocked with Gypsy beggars and Eastern European "scroungers." Then they would blame everything on Brussels and demand Britain's withdrawal from the EU. But without that evidence... erm, well the newspaper that Polly Toynbee described as a "daily blast of fear and loathing" has always ignored inconvenient truths.

It's a tragedy that the issue of immigration has come to dominate British politics. No major politician of any party dares to condemn the rantings of the Daily Mail and other bigots, and they do not dare say that the economy needs immigrants to do the job that Britons do not want to do. There is little sympathy even for those who would enter Britain as political refugees. Shockingly, the government offers no sanctuary even to refugees from the civil war in Syria.

And yet, if the issue was not infected with xenophobia, racism, and hypocrisy, immigration would be seen as a positive force. The economy demands immigration, and a vast number of Britons benefit from modern Europe's lack of frontiers, living and working across the continent.

Yes, there are some immigrants who play the system, but to pretend (as the Daily Mail does) that they leech more from the exchequer than the super-rich tax avoiders is just disingenuous.

I'm proud to see that the Falklands understands the benefit of immigration, and the diversity that immigrants bring. Saint Helenians and Chileans are fortunate to be in the Falklands though they would probably struggle hard to enter the UK, and their reception would be by no means as warm.

So, as special Happy New Year to immigrants and would-be immigrants, wherever you are. Good luck to you, and may we see a little more understanding and sympathy for you in 2014.

MPs anger of UK aid to Argentina

BRITISH politicians were reported earlier this week to have expressed disapproval that Argentina receives financial aid from Britain despite Argentina's harassment of Falkland Islanders.

Official figures show that Argentina received more than £2 million from Britain in 2012 and it is understood that this aid is continuing. However a government source insisted Britain had no bilateral aid programme with Argentina, adding: "All of the programmes we do finance are aimed at building long-term partnerships with the Argentine people, including businesses and future leaders, or tackling global issues, such as climate change and human rights."

Britain also contributes £7 million to a £50 million EU aid programme to Argentina.

Conservative MP Ian Liddell-Grainger, a Member of Parliament's all-party group on the Falklands, said: "Why on earth are we sending aid to Argentina? It is absolutely ridiculous. They are behaving outrageously towards the Falklands and they hardly need the money. People will be rightly shocked that we are giving money to Argentina at a time when they are trying to stop our shipping from going to the Falklands and threatening to prosecute companies that explore for oil there."

Jonathan Isaby, of the Taxpayers' Alliance, said the figures underlined concerns the Government was "more interested in meeting Mr Cameron's target of spending 0.7% of our income on aid than on ensuring it is well spent."

Support Phil's charity adventure

FORMER Royal Engineer Phil Hartley (married to Falkland Islander Jeanette) will traverse the Central American country of Costa Rica for charity in February. He intends to journey from the Pacific to the Caribbean on foot, mountain bike, raft and kayak.

The early part of the journey will include a bike and trek from Santa Maria via Naranjillo and then a bike across the Continental Divide to the reventazon Valley, on to the Pacuare River at La Cruz. From there he will raft 30kilometres of rapids to El Nido Del Tigre and Finca Pacuarito before kayaking to the Caribbean.

Mr Hartley will be fundraising for Veterans in Action, set up to help veterans suffering from PTSD. Patrons include Sir Ranulph Fiennes and Bear Grylls.

The trip is self-funded he told Penguin News, "so every penny raised goes to the charity."

Over the garden fence with Ginge Kidd

'JEEPERS' said I (muttering rather stronger oaths under my breath) as we looked out on yet another wet, cold and windy day. "This weather is giving me the pip." Seeing somewhat puzzled little faces greeting my statement, I realised I had once again used one of my own Granny's favourite statements, along with, "that's the stuff to feed the troops," should we not seem overjoyed when faced with a meal.

Seriously, my sister complains about the weather in Hull and in all fairness the floods alone must be a horrendous thing to live with, but they are in winter, what is our excuse?

Be that as it may, the gardens continue to grow including the weeds (of course) and the self-set potatoes are growing, mainly among the greens Bill planted a few weeks ago. I guess we are going to have quite a crop of one or the other. The tomatoes continue to flower and form fruit. They are being fed twice a week now and I wish I hadn't planted quite so many. Still we all look forward to the fruit they produce, yummy! Lettuce and other salads have been planted wherever a space presents itself, also beetroots and other bits and bobs such as more turnips which grow so quickly. At least, with the lack of sun there might not be such a tendency for vegetables to bolt this year.

The high winds have gone on for ever and if experience has taught me anything it is that they will continue, for all the cherries and loads of little plums are still hanging on in there! Under cover the grapes are forming so many baby bunches that they will need thinning soon and the blackberry, also inside as the seasons are just not long enough for them otherwise, is also going to crop heavily.

I did not set out to have a green, white pink or any themed garden for that matter. In fact, my only intention ever over the years has been to have borders so full of plants and colour that weeds would not show. This I still try to do and, I might add, where weeds are concerned, still with very little success but I will keep trying. One of the colours I have never strived for is blue, and yet as I look around I see that these borders are carrying an awful lot of blue in them and each one of them is lovely. There are grape hyacinths, blue (pink and white also) bells, polemonium (Jacob's ladder) delphiniums, many different irises, some bulbous but even more with rhizomes. Many are dwarf but there are also some topping three feet.

Then there are geraniums, aquilegia (columbines) the blue balls of some alliums (ornamental onions), gentians in dark and light blue, campanulas and some of the pansies, ajugas (bugle) some primroses and of course the odd lupin here and there. The myosotidiums (Chatham Island forget-me-nots) are a beautiful deep sky blue and look like big hydrangea flowers, however the white ones are also ever so slightly blue as well. In fact probably a washed-out blue would be a better description.

The shrubs are also represented by the blue fluffy flowers on the ceanothus (Californian lilac) and some hebes, even though they tend to be more lilac than blue. The paconies are out, they have been photographed by most tourists going by and deservedly so.

The very large flowers stand up to most weather conditions and seem to just shrug off the rain.

I was saddened to see though that a new rose plant from a cutting had had its neck wrung by the wind. The fault was mine as most bought roses must always be planted at the same depth as they are in the pot. Any deeper will encourage suckers which will be from the mother rose and will grow much stronger than the rose you chose and eventually take it over leaving a strong growing species rose and not the one you wanted. Those grown from cuttings on the other hand, will always remain the same and had I planted mine deeper I would not have lost it.

I have just received all my new plants from the Garden Centre. Those delightful rhododendrons, azaleas, climbers, ferns and various other plants will now start to be hardened off until conditions improve and I am able to get out there without my crutches, to plant them; something to look forward to!

I love good roast pork and thoroughly enjoy the crackling however, no matter how much I sharpen them, my knives really have difficulty scoring the rind before cooking, especially with very fresh meat, and so I much prefer marking the skin whilst the joint is still partially frozen.

But this time the meat was fresh and the oven was waiting and I was making no headway whatsoever scoring the skin until I came across a Stanley knife which had been left lying around on my worktop. This very thin, sharp blade was ideal for the job although it did earn me some 'old fashioned' looks from Bill when he saw what I was doing. But then I also quickly make my views known when my plastic spatulas get borrowed while he is filling or plastering and, if my potato knife goes walk-about everyone knows about it, and the cook might even go on strike if she has to spend too long looking for it!

Happy New Year to everyone.

The Moro is Jan's day

WITH the Christmas festivities behind us and the whiff of barbecued mutton chops still clinging to the Falklands' countryside, the Moffatt family set off for a double header at Lorenzo MotoX on the 31st followed by the popular New Year's Eve bash at the Moro, both courtesy of Jan and Tanya Clarke.

Racing was underway by 11am on a sometimes wet, sometimes dusty but always windy and grey day. However this did not dampen the enthusiasm of the Junior and PeeWee classes which opened the day with an eclectic mix of tiny and medium sized machines.

Regan Newman can take the honour of most patient racer as she nursed her 20 year old, twin shock Yamaha around the adult course, the bike wheezing up the hills and expiring with heat exhaustion down hills. To her credit she persevered to take the win in the PeeWee class, with second place going to Rebecca Clarke and third to Elisha Joshua.

The Juniors' larger wheeled bikes but not quite adult size, made better progress around the track, and it was Adam Dickson who eventually took the win from Jack Alazia who had been leading the race early on. A very steady Kia Alazia came in third place.

The track, a little cut up courtesy of Regan's twin shock, meant dust was becoming a problem in the corners. Jan had thoughtfully roto-vated the track in a few key areas, supposedly to slow the bikes down, but all it did was generate dust storms, block air filters and create a feeding frenzy from hundreds of dancing dotterels between racing. It didn't really slow the bikes down!

The ladies' race is still suffering from lack of entries, come on girls show us how it's done! Only Angelina and Elaine took to the track, but this did not slow them down. Angelina looked on fire as she powered her 250 Honda around the track and Elaine not to be out done was not far behind.

A full field of Clubman racers took to the course, with Joe Clarke leading the way, a returning David Philips taking second place and Jimmy (slightly cheating) Moffatt taking a well deserved third place.

The Experts were next on the track, in what would become one of the most anticipated races of the season, who would come out on top, Jan, Jay, Stefan, Scott, Robert or any of the other equally talented and fast riders? Jan mounted on a brute force 450 Yamaha. Jay on a very agile but slower 150cc KTM, were both capable of winning.

In the end it was Jan's speed and power that dominated the expert class, no-one could get close. The dust storm created by the riders back wheels on the top half of the track must have been noted by NASA's weather satellite it was that impressive!

A massive thanks to all the helpers, track officials, Andy, medical cover and Jan and Tanya for hosting the event.

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.

Mount Kent: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Pleasant Peak: Frequency: 147.225 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves most of the south of East Falkland and repeats Mount Alice Repeater, which covers most of the south of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Mount Alice: Frequency: 147.825 (-600 Duplex) This repeater serves most of the south of West Falklands and links to Stanley via Pleasant Peak and Sapper Hill.

Mount Caroline: Frequency: 147.725 (-600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north of West Falklands, including the cross sound ferry main operational area and links to Stanley via Mount Kent and Sapper Hill.

Marine Band: 156.800...Channel 16 (Stanley area) 2.182 MHz HF In the event that communications fail on all the above frequencies then the RFP may be contacted direct on 153.650 (duplex + 1.6). It is however unlikely that this frequency will be functional from West Falkland

Fault Reporting - Users are encouraged to report any faults with the system:

Telephone: 28100, E-mail: inspector@police.gov.fk or fax: 28110.

Chloe and Glyn are Falklands first black belt students

Report and pictures K Rimicans

Black belts Glyn Morrison and Chloe Knipe

THE Falkland Islands Karate Club enjoyed a successful karate seminar with Chief Instructor Dave Wilkins, 7th Dan and Guest Senior Instructor Tim Smith, 4th Dan.

A grading was held on Sunday January 5 at the Leisure Centre, and congratulations to Miyu Fletcher, Holly McPhee and Luke Gilbert who achieved 7th Kyu/ yellow belt, Connor McLeod and Ella Clement who achieved 5th Kyu/ purple belt, Lindsey Bone, 3rd Mon/white and orange stripe, Sahara McLaren, 2nd Mon/white and red stripe.

Chloe Knipe and Glyn Morrison were the first two local students to achieve 1st Dan, black belt grade, having been solely trained in the Falkland Islands; congratulations to Chloe and Glyn. Chloe, aged 14 years old, has been training with the karate club for over five years since 2007.

Glyn, aged 13 years old, has been training with the karate club since 2008.

Both students at FICS, they have been undertaking karate training three times per week in preparation for their black belt grading, with guidance from Instructor Rob Granger.

A presentation was held on Monday January 6, 2014 at IJS Hall, attended by Dave Wilkins, 7th Dan, Chief Instructor, Tim Smith, 4th Dan, Senior Instructor, holder of the Education portfolio MLA Dr Barry Elsby, fellow karate students and their families to show their support and congratulate them on their successful achievement.

Kata 3rd Connor McLeod
2nd Luke Gilbert
1st Ella Clement
Kumite 3rd Skye Trevaskis
2nd Celina McLaren
1st Holly McPhee

If any member of the community is interested in joining the club please check www.falklandskarate.com

Tim Smith and Dave Wilkins with students Miyu, Molly, Connor, Chloe, Glyn, Holly, Luke, Ella, Skye and Celina

Thank you all

2014 sees the 5th Anniversary of Liberty Lodge, what a dream it was to get the Lodge up and running and what a success it has been and hopefully this will continue to be the case for many years to come.

The success of the Lodge has an enormous amount to do with the support we receive from the people of the Falkland Islands, especially our main sponsors, Sodexo, Falkland Island Company, Stanley Services, Ward Cleaning and all the volunteer drivers and hosts. The welcome and generosity of the Islanders is immensely overwhelming for many of the Veterans that make the return trip and I can assure you it is truly humbling for the majority.

On behalf of myself, the Trustees of the Falklands Veterans Foundation and the rest of the team, I would like to wish you all a very happy, healthy and safe New Year.

Both myself and Colonel Tony Davies OBE look forward to seeing you in a couple of weeks' time.

Smokey Cole
Chief Executive.

PERSONAL/NOTICES

Happy 40th birthday. Love from all the family

Stevie and Jody would like to say a huge thanks to all those who helped make their day fantastic.

A special thanks to Rev Hines for the service, the Malvina House Hotel for their delicious lunch, Arlene for an amazing cake and Jockey for the great tunes! Thanks to Mark and Karen, Glenda and Barry and Ryan for having space in suitcases to bring back some rather important items!

To all those who helped with buffet food, and had a turn behind the bar we are extremely grateful. Thanks to the girls for making sure Marvyn made an appearance, and a huge thanks to 'team gallstones' for putting up with Jody's early morning grumpiness for so many weeks!

Thanks to all our friends and family for joining us on our special day

Swimmers hopes are dampened

REGULAR swimming pool users looking forward to getting back in the water early in the New Year had their hopes dampened at the end of last week when an issue was identified with the ten year old filtration system.

Director of Central Services Simon Fletcher explained that following the installation of the new fibre-glass lining the pool was refilled and a visible build-up of water between the old tiled pool-base and the new fibre-glass inner layer was identified.

The filtration system is an important function which allows the water levels to be accurately managed, and also prevents water stagnating in the pool, said Mr Fletcher.

The pipework that feeds the filtration system is cemented in place, and so cannot be accessed for maintenance or repairs without being excavated at a significant cost.

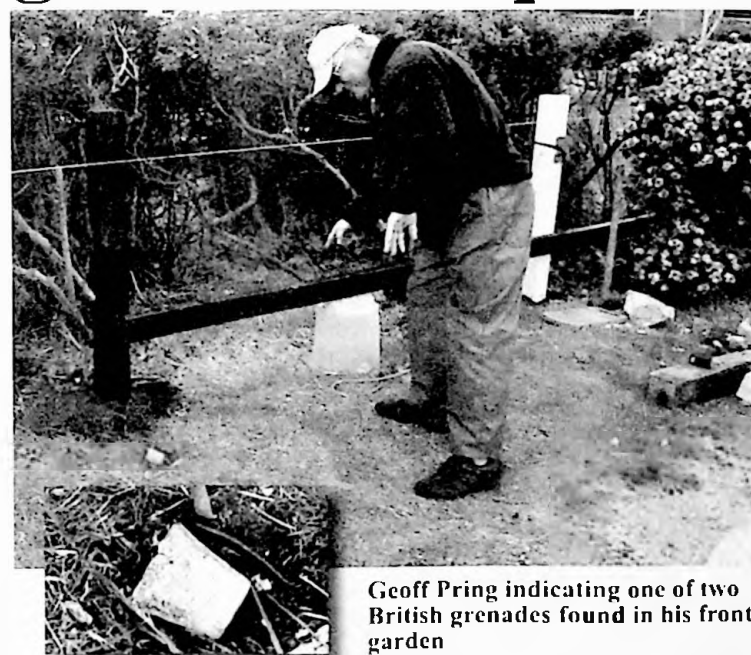

"FIG is now working hard to create a more cost-effective and manageable solution to this problem and it is hoped that this can be achieved over the next few weeks, depending on the availability of necessary materials in the Islands," said Mr Fletcher.

However callers to the Leisure Centre have been told that materials are not available on Island and would have to be sourced from overseas.

Director of Public Works Manfred Keenleyside said it was not known why the leak had occurred and would not become apparent until the pipework was exposed. He explained there have been ongoing problems with the tiles and grout which was why the fibreglass lining was opted for as it would separate the pool water from the pool structure itself and stop the progressive effects of the chemicals used to treat the water on the bedding and concrete surface immediately behind the finish within the pool.

A possible date for the re-opening of the pool has not been given.

Gardening Geoff's grenade surprise

Geoff Pring indicating one of two British grenades found in his front garden

FORMER Royal Marine and now Stanley resident Geoff Pring discovered two ex 1982 War, British grenades in his front garden last Saturday morning.

Mr Pring, who lives at 5A Ross Road West was maintaining his boundary fence when he made the discovery.

A former member of 42 Commando, he was aware that the first grenade he uncovered and removed from the ground was in a safe state.

He explained there was no body around the grenade and the handle was no longer connected to the fuse. The handle, which was made from a different metal had remained intact while the material around the explosive fill had rusted away. The other grenade, still mostly buried showed only the handle above ground.

He contacted Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) and on arrival they ascertained the second grenade was also in a safe state. Mr Pring said EOD used a metal detector over the area but no further ordnance was discovered. They also checked the area where he intended to dig two more post holes.

The grenades were removed and it is understood they were disposed of outside of Stanley at the firing range at Philips Point.

EOD had sought advice regarding whether to take the grenades to Mount Pleasant but the decision was made to dispose of them locally.

Mr Pring said the ordnance was identified as British L2 grenades which showed NATO serial numbers. They were manufactured in 1977.

Mr Pring who is married to Islander Bernadette originally came to the Islands with Naval Party 8901. He retired from the forces in 1996 and came to the Falklands to live in July of 2001.

The house where they now live experienced some degree of action during the War and holes can still be seen inside the garage wall and there was damage to the house itself.

Ardiles and Villa film with ESPN in Falklands

BEST remembered for their time with Tottenham Hotspur Football Club in the 70s and 80s former professional Argentine footballers Osvaldo 'Ossie' Ardiles and Ricky Villa are scheduled to arrive in the Falklands Saturday.

They are to be part of an ESPN documentary about Mr Ardiles' career and how it was impacted by the Falklands War. At that time there was intense media debate in Britain and Argentina about whether or not it was correct for Argentines to continue playing for Spurs while the countries were at war. In June 1982 Mr Ardiles was placed on loan to Paris St Germain. Both men were also part of the Argentine squad which won the 1978 World Cup.

The Falkland Islands Football Club has declined to be part of the filming.

Mr Ardiles' cousin First Lt José Ardiles died when he was shot down at Pebble Island in 1982 by the Flt Lt Tony Penfold.

Telegraph poll the true picture

FOLLOWING lobbying from readers the Daily Telegraph this week released a breakdown, by country of origin, of the votes in its recent online opinion poll on Falklands sovereignty.

The original poll showed 73 per cent of voters in favour of Argentine sovereignty over the Falklands with only 24 per cent in favour of British sovereignty, a result pounced on by the Argentine government. However the breakdown that followed in fact showed two thirds of the votes came from Argentina, following a social media campaign.

The breakdown revealed that in the UK, out of 4,853 votes, 4,520 were cast for British sovereignty, with only 245 voting for Argentina.

Comment by Deputy Editor Sharon Jaffray

It was with some relief I heard our MLAs and other committee members agreeing to the phrase "We don't want to use a sledgehammer to crack a nut," at the Police Committee yesterday. It's not everyday at a meeting I'm muttering under my breath, "Atta boys," but MLA Summers and Elsbey's insistence that more investigation was needed before introducing legislation to deal with noise issues without the evidence to back up that real problem actually existed, was a breath of fresh air. (See story page 3)

I'm not saying I condone loud boisterous parties which keep people awake until all hours, but there are other ways of dealing with it. A friend of mine rang her neighbour regularly and insistently on a Sunday morning soon after he had settled down after an all night party (on several occasions) and he soon apologised and kept the noise down. I'd probably go for the strimmer at about 7am under their bedroom window along with some of my favourite country tunes at high decibel to get their attention and maybe point out that I'd been putting up with similar all night.

Thankfully our MLAs took the same level headed approach to taking a look at licensing laws, showing an understanding of how the community functions and how there needs to be a bit of give and take within society. And so they should, they're not that over the hill that they can't still enjoy themselves too.

Having attended many organised functions in most venues over the years I have to take my hat off to the organisers and their volunteers who stalwartly stand at a door all night to ensure smokers remain outdoors or exchange a joke or light hearted remark with the absent minded guest wandering outside the designated area for drinks to be consumed and do their very best to ensure the often rigorous conditions they have been granted a licence under are met.

These events aren't particularly enjoyable for the organisers, it's something they do to provide welcome entertainment and more often than not to raise funds for a worthy cause.

And any trouble which arises from a small group after the event is not the fault of the people who have worked hard on the organisation, it stems from a tiny minority of the population, some of them with monotonous regularity.

As such I take strong exception to the sweeping suggestion that when police must deal with issues that arise late night outside pubs or organised functions, it is part of the 'alcohol culture' of the Falklands.

Peter Judge is new Attorney General

PETER Judge MBE has been named as the next Attorney General of the Falkland Islands. Mr Judge, who arrives in March 2014, will succeed current Attorney General Mark Lewis.

Mr Judge has been a lawyer for more than 17 years with substantial experience working with governments, as well as leading teams and major projects. He has previously served as Executive Director of Legal Services & Procurement and Group Company Secretary for One North East, the development agency for North East England.

Peter comes to FIG from Durham University, where he served as the University's first independent University Secretary, and has project-managed a major review of the University's governance arrangements.

Deputy Governor Sandra Tyler-Haywood said "There was a strong field of candidates, it was pleasing to see the interest, not just from the UK but from other Commonwealth countries in working in the Islands. Mr Judge showed strong skills and experience across a range of areas. His appointment is good news for the Falklands."

Mr Judge's wife, Candice, will join him in the Islands later in the year, as the family are expecting their second child in late May 2014.

MLA Summers: Licensing laws need to be practical

"LET'S be consistent and practical," insisted MLA Mike Summers during a discussion on possible amendments to the current Licensing Ordinance to enable conditions to be enforced on Occasional Licences.

The subject of liquor licensing was brought to the Police Committee on Thursday by Chief Police Officer Barry Marsden at the recommendation of Justices of the Peace who had advised that the Licensing Ordinance 1994 which they work from was, "not fit for purpose." Mr Marsden said the current ordinance which did not allow for enforcement of the conditions attached to occasional licences was, "problematic."

Attorney General Mark Lewis disagreed that it was not fit for purpose saying he agreed that parts needed looking at, adding, "generally it functions, it's not all rubbish." The incidents reported were few, he said.

MLA Summers questioned whether there was actually a "wholesale breaking of the law," and not being able to prosecute, as there were a relatively small number of people who applied for such licences.

There was a need to be consistent and practical, he said adding that he had received complaints from people who applied for licences and had conditions imposed on them while FIG hold events such as the Liberation Day reception, when there was no number restrictions on the hall and alcohol was given away.

MLA Summers said the matter should be put to Executive Council for Members to discuss, which was agreed, while Chief Executive Keith Padgett said a pragmatic approach to licensing should be used in the interim.

Committee member Keith Biles JP said a pragmatic approach was taken by himself and fellow JPs, adding that they were in fact, "handcuffed by the law as it stands." He asked that having identified that the laws needed review, they should be put on the list at the Attorney General's Chambers.

McLaren trial Feb 19

STANLEY man Kevin Derek Charles McLaren (38) was further remanded in custody with a trial date of February 19 set, following a case management and plea hearing on Monday.

Mr McLaren pleaded not guilty to a further charge of possessing indecent images of a child, making a total of 11 charges relating to four victims to go to trial.

Canine company and Fitzroy fun for senior citizens

FITZROY was a hive of activity on January 11 for the annual senior citizens visit which was arranged by Marj Hayward.

Owner of Mucky Paws kennels at Fitzroy, Pauline Sackett told Penguin News: "The guests enjoyed a lunch at the hall, followed by various forms of entertainment."

The RAF Police Dog Section paid a visit, "and put on a great demonstration with their dogs much to the delight of the old and the young." The RIC Welsh Guards were also in attendance she said: "and everyone enjoyed the chance to check out the weapons. Ray and Gaye Robson added to the fun by offering the lads rides on their quads."

Mucky Paws residents Jackson the St Bernard, Iolas the Finnish Lapphund and Jake the ex military working dog, then visited, "and everyone had the chance to pet them and have photos taken. Jackson proved to be very popular and went home with head held high and a swagger befitting a star. Jake was reacquainted with his original handler from years gone by and was thoroughly spoilt but happy to return home," said Pauline.

The day ended with a drive to Mucky Paws itself where the miniature horses proved as popular as ever. Pictures were taken and plans laid for the next visit.

Pauline sent special thanks to Marj Hayward, Iain Thom, Phil Ovenden, Gaye Robson, the Welsh Guards, the handlers and canines of RAF Police Dog Section for making the day a huge success, "and of course a big thank you to all those who came along and joined in on the day, not forgetting the drivers who gave up their time to get the folks out to Fitzroy."

Historic Building grants for stone corrals?

THE use of Historic Building grants on stone corrals and buildings was discussed and potentially supported, but would first need appropriately skilled crafts people to be identified it was noted at the December 20 meeting of the Historic Buildings Committee (HBC).

Crafts people, potentially from the UK, could carry out the work, with the support of local labour, and regarding the latter this would mean a local person would then develop relevant skills as part of the process.

Also at the meeting a clarification of the relationship between HBC and the Planning and Building Committee (P&BC) was noted. It was made clear among other points that the HBC is a sub-committee of the P&BC and everyone who is on P&BC is therefore automatically also a member of HBC.

Noise under investigation

FURTHER investigation is to be carried out into the extent of noise nuisance within Stanley and the results put before the next meeting of the Police Committee, it was decided on Thursday.

Several members of the committee expressed their concern that introducing weighty legislation to deal with a problem that was not quantifiable was unnecessary. "It's using a sledgehammer to crack a nut," said MLA Barry Elsby, who added that the most common complaint he had received from members of the public was of "noisy roosters," rather than noisy parties.

MLA Mike Summers said more investigation was needed as he was concerned legislation would be created that restricted people from enjoying themselves without any evidence that it was a very real problem.

Chief Police Officer Barry

Marsden said that Police had attended and dealt successfully with issues through negotiation, but it was a civil offence, not a criminal one.

Attorney General Mark Lewis agreed there was a civil route to be taken, but added that when there is a loud party right next door, "you want it to stop then, not several weeks later when it goes to court."

He said to his knowledge instances of noise nuisance was not frequent and police attendance had generally been successful.

The issue of noise nuisance was first raised in the Police Committee in September 2012 by committee member Ruth Taylor and has since been considered by the Environment Committee as well as by a working group headed up by MLA Gavin Short.

Premier opts for Tension Leg Platform

PREMIER oil has selected a development plan for the Sea Lion project using a Tension Leg Platform (TLP) with an integral drilling rig. This concept offers a more robust and lower cost development scheme than a floating processing ship-based scheme the company indicated this week. They are currently preparing the Front End Engineering Design study for the TLP which is expected to begin in the first quarter of 2014 with a commitment to full project funding in 2015.

Jess Wood Armed Forces Race winner

THE Armed Forces Challenge at the Christmas sports meeting was won by 2nd Lieutenant Jess Wood and not Bill Griffiths as published in Penguin News in the January 3 edition.

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

A NEW year but little changes. we still have bluster and threats from Argentina. I despair of their government that appears unable to move on and lets an ancient grievance fester away while seemingly unable to deal with that country's day to day problems. Fortunately we have a more positive outlook and lots to do. Back after the Christmas recess we began this week with two 'away days' with senior civil servants to concentrate on policy making and confirming priorities. Nothing can ever be set in stone because we cannot predict some events and pressures, but it is useful to have a plan even if it has to be flexible.

I think it is safe to predict another eventful year with development activity including more planned oil exploration. Equally importantly, some of the on-going recent problems with recruitment and retention of staff have to be addressed. Inadequate infrastructure and new requirements have to be balanced with ever increasing operating costs. It will not be easy!

Even though we were in recess we continued to pick up e-mails and deal with matters that arose over the holiday period. The most frequent complaint I received was the non-arrival of Christmas mail which, as in some previous years, appeared to disappear into a mysterious black hole and then re-emerge well into January. Of course it is a busy time for the UK post offices, but that does not satisfactorily explain how items post marked mid-December arrived several weeks before some posted at the beginning of December.

Just a couple of reminders, firstly if you want to keep up with what is happening in various FIG committees please contact Gilbert House and ask to be put on the list to receive minutes. Secondly anyone who wants to speak to me on a non-urgent matter and wants to do so out of working hours, I will be available for appointments on Monday evenings. If the matter is urgent please leave a message at Gilbert House and I'll get back to you as soon as I am free to do so. Otherwise phone me at home.

Nigel Stock appointed Falklands Bishop

THE Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Reverend Justin Welby, has appointed the Bishop at Lambeth, the Rt Revd Nigel Stock, as Bishop to the Forces and Bishop to the Falkland Islands, upon the retirement of the Rt Revd Dr Stephen Venner.

He will take up these additional responsibilities on June 19, 2014.

Bishop Nigel said: "I am delighted to be able to take on this important role and look forward to meeting the Chaplains and the men and women of the services, who serve tirelessly, often in the most arduous and dangerous circumstances."

Bishop Stephen said: "The links between the Forces, the Falkland Islands and the office of the Archbishop of Canterbury are greatly valued."

"It is good that these links will be maintained in this way, and I am particularly delighted that Bishop Nigel's own wide experience and many gifts will provide Episcopal care and support to our chaplains and those whom they serve in the name of Christ."

Bishop Nigel has been a Commissary for the Archbishop of Papua New Guinea since 1986.

He entered the House of Lords as a Lord Spiritual in March 2011.

It was announced on June 25, 2013 that Stock would resign his See to become Bishop at Lambeth, the right-hand bishop to the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth Palace.

He was originally educated at Durham University and Ripon College Cuddesdon and has also been honorary Canon and a Canon residentiary of Durham Cathedral and Bishop of Stockport in the Diocese of Chester.

Driving ban for Stanley woman

STANLEY woman Samantha Laura McCormick (21) was banned from driving for a minimum of three years and had her case adjourned for a pre-sentence report to be prepared after she admitted a drink driving offence on Monday.

The Magistrates Court heard that on Saturday December 21, Miss McCormick had been spotted by police officers in what was described as a "drunken state," and then later seen driving a vehicle on Fitzroy Road.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley said that when pulled over by the police, Miss McCormick had made, "a rather pathetic attempt," to get out of the driving seat and had then tried to blame others for driving. A lower breathalyser test gave a reading of 89.2 mg per 100 ml of breath (35 mg is the legal limit).

Mr Gumsley said it was a serious offence with an exceptionally high reading and that given Miss McCormick's previous record which included drink related driving offences, there was a minimum driving ban of three years and the court would be considering a custodial sentence.

Miss McCormick will next appear in court on February 3, when the pre-sentence report will be considered and sentencing handed down.

Be a friend to the museum

FRIENDS of the Falkland Islands Museum and Jane Cameron National Archives are to hold their Annual General Meeting at Falkland House on February 20.

FIMA Friends exists to harness the goodwill and generosity of people who appreciate both of these historic collections.

Member of FIMA Graham Bound said: "We use funds raised through membership and other measures to acquire artefacts internationally that are relevant to the Falklands and give them a permanent home in Stanley. The association also helps by funding display materials and other equipment."

If any reader in the Falklands or overseas is interested in joining the association and helping to preserve the history of the Falklands, they can do so via the FIMA Friends website: <http://fimafriends.com>. Alternatively interested persons can request further information from the museum curator and archivist in Stanley.

The nearest tube station to Falkland House is St James Park and the meeting begins at 12.30pm. All members are welcome.

Remembering Canon Gerry Murphy

FORMER Canon of Christ Church Cathedral, Stanley, Gerry Murphy died peacefully in his sleep on January 7. His funeral will take place on January 21 at St Mary's Church, Heacham, and the Falkland Islands Government will be represented by the Falkland Islands Representative in London Sukey Cameron.

He was Canon in Stanley from 1987 to 1991, a Lieutenant of the Royal Victorian Order and was a former Chaplain to Her Majesty the Queen.

In an obituary for Canon Murphy, journalist Michael Pollitt for Eastern Daily Press reminds that the Canon was formerly an international rugby player for Ireland, capped six times, winning his first cap in 1951 against South Africa at Lansdowne Road, Dublin.

In a career spanning almost a quarter of a century, he rose to become one of the Army's most senior chaplains before taking up rural ministry as Vicar of Ranworth and also chaplain of the Broads in 1977.

Born in 1926, in Bangor, County Down, Northern Ireland, John

Canon Gerry Murphy
Pic Eastern Daily Press

Gervase Maurice Walker Murphy, went to Trinity College, Dublin, and was ordained a deacon in 1952 and a priest a year later.

It was while the fullback was playing for Dublin University, he won his first cap.

The following spring, he was one of two novice priests playing for Ireland. He also won caps for Ireland against Scotland and Wales and in 1954 represented his country against the All Blacks. In 1958, while playing for London Irish, he was capped against Wales.

He graduated with a BA and became MA three years later. For three years, until 1955, he was curate of Lurgan. Then he became a chaplain to the Forces, serving in Korea, Malaya, Aden and Cyprus.

Between 1973 and 1975, he was assistant Chaplain-General to the British Army of the Rhine. In his final army posting, he was assistant Chaplain-General for the army's south-east district, based at Aldershot.

At Ranworth, he became the Bishop of Norwich's chaplain for holidaymakers on the Norfolk Broads. Two years later, in 1979, he became domestic chaplain to the Queen. He was instituted as the rector of the Sandringham group of eight parishes by the Bishop of Norwich, the Rt Rev Maurice Wood, and was inducted by the Bishop of Lynn, the Rt Rev Aubrey Aitken.

Rev Murphy was appointed an honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral in June 1986.

In October the following year, he announced to his congregation at Sandringham that he was, "honoured and surprised" to be appointed to the post in the Falklands.

He leaves his widow and five daughters: Maryan, Desiree, Nicola, Geraldine and Felicity, and 17 grandchildren.

- 1. What is the best piece of advice you've been given?
'Drink more, you'll be fine'. Not sure it's the best advice from a diabetic though!
- 2. If you had a motto, what would it be?
Everything happens for a reason. It made me believe it more when we had Ollie and lost Dan
- 3. What is your happiest moment?
Obviously having Ollie was the most incredible moment ever but a very close second was the night he slept through for the first time!
- 4. What would people be surprised to learn about you?
I dislocated my knee cap changing a nappy, and they say blondes have no brains
- 5. What is your most prized possession?
Bit lame but it would have to be Ollie's swivel car seat. That has to be the best invention ever
- 6. If you could change one thing about yourself, what would it be?
I'd like to be less OCD. It does get pretty annoying, especially living with Matthew and his love of mess
- 7. Who would you make governor of the Falklands?
Obviously, I'd like a turn for the big house and things but I'd probably have to say Krysteen Ormond. I don't understand a lot of her views (that's the blonde kicking in again) but she knows a lot of stuff and uses very important sounding words. Perfect candidate
- 8. What would your 'Mastermind' specialist subject be?
Don't think this is actually a category but it would have to be knowing exactly what Christine will do before she knows herself
- 9. What in every day life drives you crazy?
Rudeness and Matthew not picking up the bath mats

Atty has lived in the Islands most of her life apart from a year and half spent in Santiago, Chile. She has been with her partner Matt for four years and they have baby Ollie who is now a one year old. Atty says she mostly enjoys 'just sitting'.

Ironical rant or sheer hypocrisy?

WAS Graham Bound being ironic in his rant in the PN of 10 January?

It is difficult to take anyone seriously who quotes Polly Toynbee but, anyway, the main problem I have is the lack of consistency in his argument especially when he criticises others for ignoring inconvenient truths.

So, he hurrahs open immigration and is proud that the Falkland Islands understands the benefit of immigration.

At the same time, he is critical (to put it mildly) of people in the UK who express concerns about open immigration for citizens of Romania and Bulgaria.

Hang on though, is the Falkland Islands policy on immigration, which Mr Bound applauds, that open?

Mr Bound makes the point that Romanians and Bulgarians have been able to enter Britain to live and work for a considerable time but only if they had guaranteed work. Is that (the requirement for work) not the same sort of restrictive policy adopted by the Falkland Islands? Also, I thought that in addition to the work restriction there is even a test as to whether an Islander could do the job before it is opened to outsiders.

How then, can he applaud the Falkland Islands for its immigration policy but criticise people who would appear to support a similar sort of restriction for the UK? After all, Mr Bound might like to reflect that while he, as a Falkland Islander, can move to Britain to live and work without restriction, he would not find it quite so straightforward for a UK national to head the other way to the Falkland Islands.

And how many Syrian refugees has the Falkland Islands offered to take? Have I missed something? If it is "shocking" to Mr Bound that the UK has not made any offers of sanctuary to Syrian refugees how does he feel about the approach of the Falkland Islanders?

Do not get me wrong, though. I am not criticising the Falkland Islands for its restrictive approach to immigration. I can understand and support its need to preserve the way of life and to avoid outsiders coming in and taking over. However, unless I have missed something and the Falkland Islands now has open borders, I am critical of Mr Bound's inconsistency bordering on hypocrisy.

If Mr Bound wants to have a rant about Paul Dacre then he should write to the Daily Mail or even Private Eye. However, he should not write something in the Penguin News and then try to justify its relevance by crowbar-ing in a reference to the Falkland Islands at the end.

Welcome to this section dedicated to the family which is the most important component in our society.

These words aim to encourage family unity and fellowship, and to provide the soul of every human being security and tranquility.

We invite you to read these words of blessing.

"SEEK YE THE LORD WHILE HE MAY BE FOUND"

Christ said: "No man comes to the Father but by me." And He also says that He gives His sheep eternal Life: "My sheep hear my voice and they follow me, and I give unto them eternal Life, and they shall never perish. My Father which gave them me is greater than all, and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand. My Father and I are one." St. John chapter 10, verses 27 to 30.

He is the Way, and therefore, the new Way has been opened, to reach God through Christ our Savior. It is through Christ that we seek God, that we find God. He speaks to us, and we also speak to Him when we pray to God, and so forth, and we serve Him, and praise Him and worship Him, that is the reason for songs, hymns, psalms, and praises to God; and in this way the human being can seek God while He may be found.

When the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ is completed and the door of the Dispensation of Grace is closed, people can no longer find God, because Christ will have ended His Work of Intercession in Heaven and they will have to face the divine judgment of the great tribulation. But those who sought God, found Him through Christ, Who was manifested in Christ in all His fullness carrying out the Work of Redemption.

And now, we thank God for Jesus Christ our Savior,

Remember He said: "My sheep hear my voice and they follow me, and I give unto them eternal Life." He has the exclusivity of eternal Life to grant it, to give it, to all that seek Him, and receive Him as only and sufficient Savior."

[by Dr William Soto Santiago]

by whom, and through whom He spoke and came out the Work of Redemption. And now, the way, the new way to reach God has opened. Christ is the Way. He is the One who takes us to God. In that Way, of which the book of Acts says there was a discussion between the Jews about that Way, the new Way, that is the only way that takes us to God under the New Covenant. That is the only Way to seek God and to find God.

"SEEK YE THE LORD WHILE HE MAY BE FOUND"

That is my invitation to those who have not sought God yet, who have not received Christ as their Savior, so that they may come to God and obtain eternal Life through Christ. There is no other way to receive eternal Life, but through Christ our Savior.

Remember that He said: "My sheep hear my voice and they follow me, and I give unto them eternal Life." He has the exclusivity of eternal Life, to grant it, to give it to all those who seek Him, and receive Him as their only and sufficient Savior. Therefore, King David's advice to his son Solomon was correct: "If you seek Him you shall find Him. If you forsake Him, He will cast thee off for ever."

Let us all stand to pray for the people who are coming to the Feet of Christ our Savior. If someone has not come yet, you may come. With our hands raised to Heaven, to Christ, and with our eyes closed:

Heavenly Father, I come to You in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ with all these people who are receiving Christ as their only and sufficient Savior. Receive them in Your Kingdom Lord, and give them eternal Life. I ask You in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, to Whom be glory and honor for ever and ever. Amen. And now repeat this prayer with me:

Lord Jesus Christ, I heard the preaching of Your Gospel and Your faith was born in my heart, in my soul.

I believe in You with all my heart. I believe in Your Name as the only Name under Heaven given unto man whereby we shall be saved. I believe in Your death on Calvary's Cross as the Atoning Sacrifice for our sins. I acknowledge that I am a sinner and need a Savior. I give public testimony of my faith in You and of Your faith in me, and I receive You as my only and sufficient Savior. I beg You to forgive my sins and cleanse me with Your Blood of all sin, and baptize me with the Holy Spirit and Fire once I am baptized in water in Your Name, and may You produce in me the new birth.

I want to be born in Your Kingdom. I want to live eternally with You in Your Kingdom. Save me, Lord. Make Your salvation a reality in me, the salvation You gained for me at Calvary's Cross, make it a reality. I beg You in Your eternal and glorious Name, Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

With our hands raised to Christ, to Heaven, we say: THE BLOOD OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST HAS CLEANSSED ME OF ALL SIN! THE BLOOD OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST HAS CLEANSSED ME OF ALL SIN! THE BLOOD OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST HAS CLEANSSED ME OF ALL SIN! Amen.

The other side

I READ, in your December 13 issue, with a degree of incredulity, your 'Letters' entry from Mr Goetz. Incredulity, in part, at the content of his letter and further incredulity at your decision to print such obviously one sided and disgruntled comments.

I have just spent two wonderful weeks on Saunders and cannot compliment the owners, the facilities and the wildlife on offer highly enough. Admittedly I have been there before and so knew, to a certain extent, what was involved but it was some 10 years ago and I fully expected times to have changed. When booking this time I was informed exactly as to my options including all changes and current prices. I chose accordingly and, on arrival, received exactly 'what it said on the box'. Not only that but I received it courteously, helpfully and with an ongoing and solicitous concern as to my wellbeing throughout my stay that I would have said was way above and beyond the normal call of duty.

Admittedly I was not camping, as the dictates of my photographic requirements seldom leave room for the somewhat more time consuming activities involved with camping, and so I availed myself of the accommodation on offer at both The Neck and The Rookery. That said my reasons for being there were probably not dissimilar to those of your correspondent - the wildlife!

One of the main appeals of the Saunders experience is the unfettered and uncluttered nature of what is on offer. I certainly did not go there for cups of tea, idle chit-chat or social inter-action. I went there to watch, study and photograph the wildlife. This I was able to do to my heart's content. That the two weeks could not be stretched to six months was my only regret.

Since I am not a regular camper I am not familiar with going rates for pitching a tent or whether it is normally based on a cost per head or per tent. I only know that I have met several campers at The Neck who were perfectly happy with their situation and only too delighted to be accorded the privilege of being permitted to camp right in the middle of one of the finest wildlife venues I have ever visited - and I have travelled to such places extensively.

That the price of staying there should include an element to reflect what the site has to offer in the way of wildlife I find perfectly acceptable. Perhaps your correspondent is more used to, and is comparing it with, tent space in semi-suburban Europe - or does he believe that the wildlife experience should come for free? Nature may have put the wildlife there but I doubt whether it holds the deeds to the property. As far as I am aware the Pole-Evans stuck their necks out to buy the island and run it as a farm on a year round basis (and not just for the tourist season) with all the rigours that kind of life involves. Whether farming here is a viable venture or not I have no idea but in seeking to capitalise, to some extent, on the wildlife asset they acquired with their island they are no different to any of the other wildlife tourism island owners. In fact they have gone one stage further than many of the others by actually offering a camping option, which most do not, and I feel they should be applauded, not castigated, for this, as it enables many of those working on a tight travel budget to actually participate in the Saunders wildlife experience who may not otherwise have been able so to do.

Wildlife tourism seems to me to take up a lot of their time, investment and wear and tear on their equipment and I see nothing wrong with trying to make it pay. That is, in essence, the basis of any kind of business and "woe unto he" who disregards his bottom line.

Your correspondent should be thankful for the opportunity to be able to stay there at all in the kind of completely natural and unspoilt setting that I always believed was one of the root appeals of camping. Unfortunately, in my opinion, as he 'chucks his toys out of the pram' he does not come across as the rugged and intrepid type of camper that I meet in many of the world's wild places but as somewhat petulant and obviously in need of pampering.

I can only ask what on earth he thought he was doing camping in the Falklands in the first place?

Immigration

I NOTED Graham Bound's article on immigration into the United Kingdom, in the Penguin News of January 10. He regards immigration to the UK as a positive force, and states that 'the economy demands immigration.' He also says that any intelligent reader must hate the editor of the Daily Mail, which paper is condemned as 'ranting' with the 'bigots'. Strong words indeed!

Mass immigration into the UK has been a matter of concern for some years, as the figures rose to unprecedented levels. More people migrated to the UK in the single year 2010 than did so in the entire period from 1066 to 1950, excluding wartime. High immigration is rapidly driving up the population of the UK. England has overtaken Holland to be the most crowded country in Europe, and the sixth most crowded country in the world. The population of England and Wales grew by 3.7 million from 2001 to 2011, more than twice the rate of the previous decade, and the biggest growth of any decade since the census began in 1801. Very high immigration levels also disrupt communities and weaken social cohesion.

editor@penguinnews.co.fk

The latest official projections confirm that the UK population is likely to rise by six million or around 10 per cent over the next fifteen years (from 64 million in 2012 to 70 million by 2027). Most (60 per cent) of the projected growth over the next 25 years is due to net migration, either directly (43 per cent), or indirectly (17 per cent), i.e. due to their age and fertility characteristics. While more distant projections are less certain, the expectation is for continued growth, to 73 million by 2037, 75 million by 2050, 80 million by 2071, 85 million by 2087 and 90 million by 2112. Such a situation is, of course, unsustainable. We already live in a country which is uncomfortably overcrowded, and which cannot feed its people without relying on overseas providers.

The economic case for immigration has been rejected for some time now: the House of Lords Economic Committee concluded, as long ago as April 2008, that 'we have found no evidence ... that net immigration generates significant economic benefits for the existing UK population.'

Preservation

TOURISM is very important to the islands economy so it is important we all do our best to preserve the wildlife we have, even an Upland Goose is of interest to our visitors.

Imagine however, that you have spent a vast sum of money to go on an African safari and just before you go out some local comes along and chases off all the elephants and lions.

This is exactly what happened down at Whalebone Cove (Lady Elizabeth) just before Christmas, as a tour group was about to set off a vehicle arrived with two dogs and despite being asked if he could possibly walk them elsewhere their owner allowed them to run along the shoreline and their exercise was chasing anything that would fly. The tour group was not amused at such a selfish attitude.

On average 750 visitors a year take organised tours that start at Whalebone Cove and there are also hundreds that independently walk to Gypsy Cove. The Attorney Generals Chambers admit that the legislation is currently weak and it would be impossible to prosecute a dog walker for causing deliberate disturbance to wildlife. We shouldn't need legislation to make people act responsibly, but unfortunately the few will spoil things for the majority of responsible dog owners.

The long view - a one hundred year old prediction for the Falklands

ONE hundred years ago a creative individual wrote the following entertaining tale predicting how the Islands would have developed by 2013. It was published in the Church News Magazine that year and recently given to Penguin News by a member of the the public.

Ben McTilley an old local shoemaker on finishing his work one night, proposes to take a stroll out, and is astounded on leaving his house to find everything altered.

The roads are paved, and the harbour surrounded with lights. The public jetty has now been widened into a fine pier, with a large pavilion theatre at the end. In the front road - now called 'The Parade' were many new houses and shops such as The Malvina International Emporium, Boots' Cash Chemists, and Winters' Ltd. He is taken on his travels of exploration by a Government guide, and they have breakfast at Winters, and after seeing the sights of that wonderful building, visit the enlarged Cathedral, and then come to the gigantic FIC Emporium.

"Yes Sir," continued the guide: "These are the largest stores in the Islands, they have a big branch of it at Fox Bay, but the main work is done in here."

The building stood ten stories high, the ground floor being composed of the various department shops, each of which displayed its wares behind large plate glass windows.

There was one long stretch of these from the Stanley Arms Hotel to the garden of the Manager's House, which remained unaltered. The nearest approach to the building that the old man had ever seen was a well known firm in High Holborn London - but that was a few years back. The ground in between the front road and the sea had now been transformed into ornamental gardens, in which many beds of flowers nestled, and the whole led up to the fine bandstand which stood in the centre. Ben saw from the notices displayed everywhere that the famous Scots Guards Band (London) now on their second world tour were playing at that bandstand, at 10, 3, and 7.30, on three days a week, and the Stanley Footlights Society "established in 1913," and like "Charley's Aunt" still running, on the other three days.

One great feature struck the old man on looking out over the Bay, and that was the glorious stretch of sand, which spread right along the beach, and which lay glistening in the morning sunlight now that the tide was out.

"Very fine that," he mused, as he nodded towards the object of his admiration.

"Yes sir," I suppose it is, but of course, we don't notice it much. Years ago, however, it used to be a shingle beach, covered with large stones and kelp, but now the kelp is all used up, and the stones are needed for the composition concrete. They had numbers of dredgers at work in the harbour, which not only took away all the mud, but when they returned brought in sand: a breakwater was built yonder, and the sand soon accumulated with the result you see."

They strolled to one of the seats near the bandstand, and sitting down, surveyed the scene.

"What then, do you do with the kelp?"

"Well sir, you see at San Carlos there is a big factory, started about 80 years ago. They have a very large plant of machinery there, and they manufacture a concentrated substance Teaplek from peat-soil and kelp, which is used not only on all this land, but in very vast quantities on the coast. It is dissolved in water and sprayed over the land in watering carts, the result being that the grass here is some of the best in the world.

I have been told (but you must take it for what it is worth) that the ranchers or shepherds as they were called, used to have to set fire to the grass in the camps every spring, to burn off all the dead grass! Why, my word, it is all cut into hay now, what we don't use for the sheep."

"But how on earth could water-carts go over the camps?" asked the old man, who had a vision in his mind of the old lumbering water-carts he had seen at home, "what about the wheels in the bogs?"

"Bogs?" queried the guide, "where are bogs? I have heard that years ago there were one or two bogs in the islands, just like there used to be in England before it was properly cultivated, but I can hardly believe it."

"My word," said the other, "why, you just go on the track to San Carlos, or ride from Port Stephens to Spring Point why, you'd have to be..."

"Ride?" replied the guide "What do you mean? Why the trains run perfectly well, and we hardly ever have an accident. Of course years ago they used to have only horses to get about on, but then, well, there you are."

The old man was bewildered: No horses? No bogs? Trains?

"But the water-carts?" he asked. "Oh," said the guide, "they go by motor traction. You see, it is a very hilly country, and horses would be no good; so they use these "sprinklers" as they are called, which have no wheels, but move forward on two endless bands spread out, which enable them to climb or descend the steepest places with the most perfect ease."

"You talked about trains," continued the other, "have we any here?" "My, yes, sir!" said the guide with astonishment, "there is the Stanley Terminus over yonder," he added pointing to a large building which stood apparently in or near the Deanery Paddock. "It is of course, only a light railway, owing to the nature of the ground, and is built on the Swiss system. Still, it is good enough for us here. You can travel from here to every part of the island, and at San Carlos, the steam ferry awaits the arrival of every train to transport passengers and goods to the West."

"Good-night!" replied the old man, "but how do they manage when the Sound is rough? I have had some terrible tossings across there."

"It's never rough sir," answered the guide, "when we hear that there is any likelihood of a storm, we turn on the Slimogrates, and the course of the wind is diverted to another direction and..."

"What on earth do you mean? Do you mean to tell me they never get rain or storms here now?"

"Rain? Yes of course we do, for the land needs it, but never storms. Why look at those woods at the back of Kloudyke and Sapper Hill. They are just samples of the numberless plantations in the Islands; why, there was a time when it was proverbial that we could not boast a tree, except a few very stunted ones in Hill Cove, but now, not only have we got crowds of these plantations, which afford welcome shelter to the sheep, but we grow all our own corn."

"But what are these Slimogrates?"

"It is a most wonderful invention, sir, and was discovered by a man here years and years ago. To cut a long story short, he argued that if they could force rain in Italy, they could stop gales in the Falklands, and on that theory, he set to work. He knew that messages could be sent by the aid of Marconi's telegraphs, and the result was he used electricity in other directions, so now when a storm is brewing, the Slimogrates are turned on, and the continuous action of the magnets and electrical power draws the gale on from station to station, until the whole of the force of the gale naturally abates itself no matter in what direction it is going."

"Nonsense," replied the old man. "Do you think I am going to swallow all that?"

"Nevertheless, it's true sir. I heard that when he first brought out the invention, everyone laughed at it, and treated the matter with the same incredulity that you have done; they did just the same, I believe when Edison claimed to reproduce the human voice on a cylinder of wax, when Marconi first claimed to send messages without the aid of wires, and so on. Still, seeing and proving is believing, and there are two of the stations - one on Sappers' Hill, and the other by the Billy Rocks. You see, the storm comes across from the coast and beats down by New Island, we will say, that station sends it across to Fox Bay, from there it is wafted to Darwin, on to Sappers Hill and thence through the Billy Station - out to sea. Every ship is equipped with the apparatus, so that a storm gets very small shift nowadays."

"But what about the land as it passes through?"

"It does not touch the land," replied the guide, "but passes about 500 feet above it at least, owing to the magnetism."

The old man gasped. As he glanced towards Sapper Hill, he saw an extraordinary erection consisting of twelve huge poles, close together, and joined by numberless wires. They appeared to be same size as those he had seen at the Marconi Station. Below was the Engine House. On looking over towards the Old Light-house he could see the other erections in the far distance.

"Yes, Sir, they had to have them, for they could never have properly conquered the air had it not been so."

"Conquered the air - have they really conquered the air?" mused Ben.

"Well, it looks like it," replied the other, here is the 8.30 from Montevideo bringing the morning papers and most probably a few passengers as well. And there in the far distance, the old man saw a gigantic air-ship swiftly making its way towards Stanley.

"Will wonders never cease," was the only remark that would come to the old man's lips.

How do you think the Islands will have changed by 2113? Will we still be an attraction for wildlife, or perhaps one of the main hubs for commercial activity in Antarctica. Will the oil money have dried up? Will the Islands have become increasingly integrated with South America? Write to Penguin News with your predictions.

All at sea Sunday Stanley Raft Race 2014

REFUSING to let bad summer weather delay the Raft Race a weekend longer, the traditionally New Year's Day event, was held on Sunday in sunny but choppy conditions.

Inner tubes and spades at the ready, a good turnout of hand-crafted rafts took to the harbour at the B-Slip but unfortunately the bracing weather meant not all made it to the finish at the Narrows Bar. Race winners in the Super Raft class was The Floaters (completing the course in 17 minutes) and taking the Traditional Raft prize was the Titanic Unsinkable. Highly commended prizes were awarded to the Angry Pirates and 11th Hour but organiser of the event John Clifford said all the entries deserved honourable mention as well as the safety boats and crew, "without you there is also no raft race, thank you," he said.

Marti Pole-Evans was strategically placed off-shore in a rib keeping an eye on proceedings and set off the flare to signal the first craft past the finish line.

The Floaters had made good use of their regulation sized sail and the brisk wind for a final dash to the beach.

Mr Clifford also thanked Michaela Clifford for her sterling organisational efforts starting the race, the Narrows Bar for entertaining everyone with drinks, food and music and gave his final thank you to the spectators, "who as well as digging deep to support a great cause 'The Memorial Wood Maintenance Fund' also provided the much needed encouragement that the rafters needed to venture into Neptune's Realm. See you all in 2015, I hope."

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.
Mount Kent: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Cowboy wisdom

Some people grin and bear it. Other people smile and change it.

Did you know.....

Should there be a crash, Prince Charles and Prince William never travel on the same aircraft as a precaution

Your body is creating and killing 15 million red blood cells per second

The king of hearts is the only king without a moustache on a standard playing card

No piece of square dry paper can be folded more than seven times in half

Expert golf from Bob wins the President's Bowl and Honours Board place

THE President's Bowl attracted a field of 21 golfers all keen to add their name to the club's prestigious Honours Board.

The golf course was presented at its absolute best, thanks not only to the season long work on the greens and tees by club members, but also through the efforts of Stanley Growers Ltd who cut the grass on the fairways for the first time and did an excellent job.

The Club Captain Troyd Bowles gave a special mention to club member Tony McMullen who for the past decade has made sure the fairways are well maintained and with increasingly failing mowing equipment.

Bob Gilbert played expert golf in the fine but windy conditions to score 39 stableford points and in doing so collected his second Honours Board title in 16 years. He behaved magnanimously in the office for most of Monday morning.

In second place and in good form with 36 points was Kevin Clapp.

In third place and maintaining his charge towards the league title was Ian Stewart with 35 points.

Best back nine went to Martin Dove and the prize for the front nine went to Carole Lee with a fine haul of 20 points.

Longest drive went to Joe Duncan and the nearest the pin to Roy Smith.

Stanley Golf Club wishes to thank Pinsent Masons for their generous sponsorship of this event.

The Standard Chartered Bank Open takes place this weekend and is the first of our two Open competitions. These are played off scratch, no handicaps, and the winner after two days has played the best golf.

The last three Standard Chartered Opens have ended in ties after 36 holes and settled only by four hole play-offs, on each occasion the contest was between Troyd Bowles and Glenn Ross.

The usual suspects are bound to be in the frame or thereabouts come the closing holes on Sunday, but watch out for one or two of the military lads.

Ian Stewart and Kevin Clapp will fancy their chances as will a handful of others. What is guaranteed is a fine weekend of golf. Sign-in on Saturday at 1.45pm for a 2pm tee-off.

Leaders go off in reverse order on Sunday. The final match for Falklands Cup points is Captains Day on January 26.

PERSONAL/NOTICES

To Scott

Hope you had a lovely 5th birthday yesterday and enjoyed your party. Lots of love, huggles and kisses From Granny, Grandad and Anthony xxx

Thank you to FBS and FIC for constructing and providing the assistance to build our lovely home. Your help and assistance has been excellent and without this building a home for me and my children would not have been possible. Thanks also to Decor Services for helping to select the right finishing's and installing them and No.1 Electrical for putting up with my constant changes to the electrical layout, much appreciated. Standard Chartered Bank and Pinsent Masons for ensuring the mortgage, paperwork and finances went through smoothly, your help and guidance has been exceptional. Also a massive thank you to all those friends and family that have helped out in some way, be it with the house or looking after the little ones whilst I worked on the house, you all know who you are. And yes I will be purchasing curtains and rails very shortly and no mum you cannot move in! 2014 is looking much better already. Thank you all

15,500 cruise visitors for February in 'healthy' season

THE cruise ship season is looking "relatively healthy" to date, according to Sullivan Shipping Tourism Co-ordinator Samantha Marsh, with a third of the estimated 45,000 (total) passengers scheduled still to visit during February.

The season got underway in October and to date 12,300 passengers have landed from 41 vessels of varying sizes.

This weekend the Golden Princess with a capacity for 2,500 passengers is due to make her third call to Stanley and Sullivan Shipping will also be handling their fifth passenger exchange.

February looks like a very busy month indeed, said Miss Marsh with 15,500 cruise ship passengers currently expected to visit.

While the season is far from over however, anticipation of the Falkstock party hosted by Polar Latitudes to celebrate the event is definitely building.

"Falkstock is going to be fantastic; we have some brilliant local talent lined up, with all funds raised going to the Stephen Jaffray Memorial Fund."

Miss Marsh said she would like to thank all of the musicians, the Stanley Sports Association, the Stephen Jaffray trustees, FIODA and everyone else who has volunteered their time and expertise to help with Falkstock so far. "It has definitely turned into a community project, which is exactly what we had hoped for."

Polar Latitudes' generosity doesn't end with the social event however as there is also an annual scholarship on offer to join them on a voyage starting in November to learn about the expedition cruise industry.

The scholarship includes a trip to Antarctica, South Georgia, Ushuaia, and Punta Arenas, funding up to $500 for items of necessity, travel expenses, a complete medical insurance policy, on-the-job training and supervision in expedition cruising related skills; environmental protocols, safety training and itinerary planning, plus coaching in securing a seasonal job with an IAATO operator. "This is an amazing opportunity for someone between the ages of 18 to 29 to experience the expedition industry and possibly build a career within it," said Miss Marsh. She added that the closing date for applications which should consist of a letter outlining enthusiasm for the role and two letters of reference was February 7, with the successful applicant being announced at the Falkstock party on March 7. Contact sullivantravel@horizon.co.fk for more information and to submit applications.

Spurs former soccer stars in Falklands car crash

THE Falkland Islands became the focus of British media attention this week when former Tottenham Hotspur Football Club stars Ossie Ardiles and Ricky Villa and five others were involved in a single vehicle accident on Monday approximately fourteen miles from Darwin settlement.

Mr Ardiles, who sustained a head injury, was in the Falklands as part of a crew filming an ESPN USA documentary based around his career and how it was affected by the Falklands war of 1982 as an Argentine player in Britain.

He and the film crew's sound man Carlos Marcellan were med-evacuated out of the Falklands on Tuesday night. Mr Ardiles was recovering well but required a CT scan while his colleague needed medical attention for a serious neck injury. Seven people were in the car at the time of the accident include Mr Ardiles' son Federico who was producing the documentary.

Three members of the party

remained in hospital overnight and four individuals were released following treatment for minor injuries.

Mr Ardiles who was driving the car lost control while driving down a hill, the vehicle swerved a number of times before rolling down a bank and coming to rest on its side.

Prior to the crash the party had spent the day around Darwin visiting Argentine and British memorials in the area.

Both civilian and military emergency services attended the incident, and a Sea King helicopter was also sent to the scene.

Speaking to Penguin News on Tuesday evening Federico Ardiles expressed his gratitude to the emergency services and commented on the kindness with which they were treated by hospital staff. His father also sent the message: "Thank you to everyone in the Islands who has helped, without exception," describing the treatment as, "world class."

Mr Ardiles Jnr, who lives in Fleet, Hampshire, but was brought up in Hertfordshire where his father still lives, explained that his father had originally been approached by ESPN USA with the idea of a documentary about his football career. As a film producer himself, and having viewed a great deal of archive material on his father over the years, Mr Ardiles Jnr said he had always wanted to make a film about the impact of the war on his father's career.

During the war of 1982 the decision was made by the Spurs manager that Mr Ardiles should not play for the team due to the political situation. He moved to play for Paris St Germaine for a time and Mr Villa was prevented from playing in the May FA Cup.

Another theme of the documentary is the story of Mr Ardiles cousin, an Argentine airforce pilot, who was killed when his mirage was shot down in the early stages of the war.

Mr Ardiles Jnr explained that his cousin's body had never been recovered and after the war his cousin's father had travelled to London to seek information about his son's death.

Comment by Editor Lisa Watson

TRAFFIC accidents on unsurfaced roads in the Falklands are sadly frequent events, so reporting on them usually consists of a few brief words in Penguin News, and in the event of a fatality, written about we hope, with sensitivity and without sensationalism. So, it was a peculiar situation this week when a road accident became such an overwhelmingly high profile story.

Odd, but perhaps not surprising bearing in mind the stars seemed to align for the British press in combining so many things tabloid readers love: sport, a celebrity, a war Britain won, not to mention danger and high drama.

All grist to the mill I guess for the media, but likely not needed by those recovering from the accident, and even in a small way a bit of a shame for the Islands' community. Without the drama the visit by Mr Ardiles and Mr Villa would likely have passed by rather quietly with ESPN getting on with their footage before flying off to film the next component. A preferable result not only for the visiting team of course, but also for a Falklands community industriously trotting in to a fresh year with an eye to the future, and a perhaps a vague hope that reminders of uncomfortable political relationships and wrangling could be filed away for at least a few weeks. (Ever the optimist me).

That said, the cheeky little public relations coup celebrating our emergency services and hospital staff did make me smile. I know there were a few grumbles locally about government releasing statements about the accident, but in fact the press release was snaffled up by the newspapers desperate for any kind of copy about their sporting heroes... apart from the Argentine press that is who could barely bring themselves to mention the incident, let alone draw attention to the marvellous treatment the group had received from, "the people of the Falkland Islands." Now that would have been an own goal.

No doubt super strategist Alastair Campbell would be most approving of our duo of PR ladies across the track from PN.

Anyway, the dust has settled and happily we have our very own celebrities to contemplate: one of which we were reminded of by an Orthopaedic Hospital in Shropshire. If anyone reading this requires something to smile about then turn to page 5, and read about the awesome achievements of an extremely brave child. I think we can safely say Kailand doesn't require any professional spin to prove he's a superstar.

Spurs former soccer stars in Falklands car crash

He said that while there the British pilot who had shot the Mirage down sent a letter to the gentleman explaining that he knew the Argentine pilot had not survived the air battle. Mr Ardiles Jr described it as: "A very gracious letter that we valued very much, because it put an end to any speculation."

He added: "The Falklands was to be a major part and the highlight of the documentary, visiting the memorials and interacting with the people, it has not really got a political bent to it; we don't want to start making political declarations in any way."

Mr Ardiles (61) is still employed by Spurs Football Club, "schmoozing on match days," his son joked. He is also involved in TV punditry, making appearances, after dinner speaking and still undertakes football coaching.

Ricky Villa, originally a "farm boy," has returned to farming cattle and soya, near the town where he grew up in Argentina.

UK MPs visit next week

ARRIVING next week are three members of the UK Parliament for a short visit.

Conservative party members Guy Opperman and Mark Menzies are accompanied by Labour Party member Yvonne Fovargue and arrive on January 30, departing on February 4.

The group will meet with Assembly Members and other government officers as well as private sector business people and will also squeeze in a visit to Sea Lion Island to experience some of the wildlife.

Guy Opperman is Parliamentary Personal Secretary (PPS) to the Minister of State for Immigration at the Home Office and directs his political interests towards prison reform and sentencing, health, fuel poverty, tourism, apprenticeships and youth training. A former amateur jockey, businessman and barrister he is reported to have raced to victory in the Tories' rural Northumbrian outpost in 2010,

"with as much ease as he had won the first race in the Tynedale Hunt point-to-point a year earlier."

Mark Menzies has been a member of the Conservative Party since 1987 and formerly worked for Marks and Spencer and Asda before becoming Senior Marketing Executive at Morrisons supermarket. His political interests include energy, defence and food retailing and he is PPS to Minister of State, Department for International Development, Alan Duncan.

Yvonne Fovargue is the Shadow Minister for Defence with political interests in the third sector, consumer credit and debt, employment law, health and legal aid. A brainy Warrington councillor and local Citizen's Advice Bureau chief, Ms Fovargue won a woman-only selection to succeed the former Minister, Ian McCartney who stood down after ill-health and problems with his expenses in 2010.

Pay up or go to prison

STANLEY man Dominic Robert Watson (21) received a seven day suspended prison sentence and was given until the end of February to complete compensation and court costs acquired as a result of convictions in August last year.

Court Administrator Aimee Meadows reminded the court that Mr Watson had completed payments in September, October and November but had defaulted on December's payment with the January one almost due.

Mr Watson said he had been, between jobs, had struggled to meet his current outgoings and had "genuinely forgot," about the court payments. He was starting a new job on February 1 and would be able to pay the remaining £100 in full then, he told the court.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley said he would give Mr Watson, "another chance," although he questioned whether he had made a conscious decision to go out drinking rather than pay the bills. He ordered Mr Watson to complete the payments in February, reminding him that a breach would result in a prison sentence. "Now go and find some work, not the Globe," he concluded.

Trial set for theft charges

MOUNT Pleasant man Gareth Scott Hudson (29) pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft and one of burglary with a trial date provisionally set for February 5.

The offences are alleged to have taken place between November 19 to 23 when a mobile phone and accessories plus a bottle of brandy were taken from another person's room and the theft of tobacco from an individual on November 22.

Crown Prosecutor Simon Rowe said there were a significant number of witnesses in the case with copy of CCTV footage having already been served to the defence.

He said compromise on the plea had not been ruled out.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley questioned whether Mr Hudson was aware that considerable credit was given with an early guilty plea, but reduced with a later change of plea, adding that he was not impressed with Mr Hudson's manner within the Court on either of his appearances. He reminded him that imprisonment for burglary could be up to 14 years and urged him to concentrate on what lay ahead.

"This is serious stuff," said Mr Gumsley.

Magistrate rails at lengthy case delays

SENIOR Magistrate Carl Gumsley questioned how it could possibly take six weeks to get a drink driving case to court, on Wednesday after Stanley woman Lynn Jane Summers (38) pleaded not guilty to three road traffic charges: driving while over the legal limit, failure to report an incident and failure to stop following an incident.

A trial date has been set for February 11.

Crown Prosecutor Simon Rowe said the defendant's case was that she was not driving when the offences were alleged to have taken place on December 9.

His application to extend the period before going to trial due to resource issues and the fact Miss Summers had only recently been charged, was firmly refused, by the Senior Magistrate. "The Attorney General's has lawyers coming out of their ears at the moment. If you are being dumped on sort it out," he said.

Mr Rowe said PC Moorehouse, a witness who had significant dealings with the case, would not be in the Islands from January 28 to February 24 and insisted he wanted to "do the job properly."

Mr Gumsley however said a witness summons could be served, adding that it was not fair to the defendant who was now out of work to delay the case.

"I want to do justice, but I can't do anything if witnesses are out of the country."

It did not take 14 days for disclosure, said Mr Gumsley, questioning whether there were in fact not two police officers expert in disclosure on the Islands.

Mr Rowe said his appointment as special prosecutor was so that someone could assist both the Attorney Generals and police officers change the system so as to deal with cases more quickly.

Mr Gumsley said despite assurances given two years ago, the system had not changed.

"If the Falkland Islands want to dither about that is up to them, but I want to ensure justice is done."

"I invite the Crown to consider whether they think justice is being done," he concluded.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley
"I want to ensure justice is done"

Driving ban and community service for drink driver

STANLEY woman Ellen Rose Davis (61) was banned from driving for two and a half years, ordered to carry out 150 hours community service and pay £85 prosecution costs after she pleaded guilty to three driving offences that occurred on December 27: driving the wrong way down a one way street; failure to stop and driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Crown Prosecutor Simon Rowe, providing the facts of the case on Tuesday, said a police patrol had witnessed Ms Davis drive down the one way section of Dean Street, turn west onto John Street and fail to respond to the blue lights and siren signals from the police vehicle. When apprehended outside the Rose Bar, he said Ms Davis had become abusive to a police officer with a distinct Welsh accent, accusing him of being a contractor, who had "ruined her Christmas."

82.2mg of alcohol per 100ml of breath (35mg is the legal limit).

Defence lawyer Simon Crowder said Ms Davis was horrified she had made such comments and certainly did not stand by them when she was sober.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley said it was very sad that someone like Ms Davis who worked extensively with 1982 veterans visiting Liberty Lodge and had given up so much for them should, "blow everything by getting drunk and getting in a vehicle."

He said he was prepared to accept the comments had been made when drunk and did not apply to veterans, adding, "without contractors this place would collapse."

He said 150 hours of community service was a direct alternative to a custodial sentence which had been considered, and reminded Ms Davis that the drink driving laws were Falklands law and introduced by Falkland Islanders, not contractors.

Charges dropped due to lack of law

AN unusual turn in the Kevin Derek Charles McLaren (38) case has resulted in two harassment charges being dismissed and marked 'not known in law' due to there being no applicable Falkland Islands law to progress them through court.

Mr McLaren has pleaded not guilty to a number of sexual offences involving four alleged victims with trial set to begin on February 19.

At a case management hearing on January 13, a number of preliminary points were considered by the Court involving points of law including whether an offence under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 is actually one which is a part of Falklands Law.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley heard from Crown Counsel Simon Rowe and Principal Crown Counsel Ros Cheek for the Crown and Simon Crowder, legal practitioner for the defendant and after considering the matter delivered his judgement on January 20.

Mr Gumsley said his judgement was necessarily long as it sought to set out the background as to how laws are created and interpreted in the Islands as well as dealing in detail with the point specifically at issue.

He pointed out that in consulting the Laws Ordinance to try to discover what law actually applies in the Islands, "we are left with trying to work from a loose leaf version which is significantly out of date and therefore no longer accurate and a CD-ROM disc which is not complete, and I am told, in places not accurate. It does not take me to say this is far from satisfactory."

Legislation which seeks to criminalise behaviour and prescribe punitive consequences for its breach should be accessible and clear so people can at least find out what rules they must live by, said Mr Gumsley.

The concerns of the judiciary were not new and had been raised by previous judges, not least the one in post in 2002 when the Crown withdrew a prosecution because it was discovered, post charge, that the offence to be tried was not actually part of Falklands law.

"The state of the laws at present is, in my judgement, a real threat to the rule of law and continues to present a risk to justice being done properly," concluded Mr Gumsley.

Non verbatim copies of the Regina v Kevin McLaren Judgement on Point of Law, are available from the Court upon request (free of charge via email and £12 for hard copies)

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

LAST week we had two 'away days' so that we could have uninterrupted time for in depth discussions on a number of subjects including monopolies, immigration and infrastructure. We were joined by senior FIG officials from the portfolio areas covered and I felt it was a good use of two days and that we made some progress toward resolving a number of policy questions. The morning we spent on areas of infrastructure planning probably raised as many questions as it answered and of course every member will have one or more favoured projects that they wish to see at least underway in the life of this Assembly. Further consultation on general principles such as where various developments could take place is underway but in the meantime members have an even longer list of potential capital project areas to consider.

IN addition to the many possible priorities aired during the election campaign there is the ever growing requirement for more housing as the average occupancy falls, and the days when many adult offspring lived at home until they married are long gone. Other priorities are forcing themselves up the list through sheer necessity, things like the probable need for more prison space, for more acceptable methods of waste disposal, for additional classrooms and offices and for additional power capacity. We will have to put broad price tags on some of them and then look at the very long list in terms of what we agree are urgent, essential, desirable, needed longer term or simply nice to have. It is also clear that our ambitions may well outstrip the capacity of the currently available workforce, hence the need to look hard at immigration and devise a coherent policy. It will not take a genius to see that, forgetting affordability for a while, we have a wish list that will occupy many years and undoubtedly new requirements not yet thought of will inevitably arise.

SOME of them will be a result of oil development which, while very welcome, will put pressure on medical services and on utilities and housing. Much work has been done on the oil readiness plan which is a public document, but as yet we can only estimate possible population increases. What we do know is that many services are nearing capacity.

THIS week we have an 'away morning' to give more time and thought to rural development and to FIG staffing and the more general issue of housing. As already alluded to there are a great many more households in the Islands and more young people see the advantage of investing in their own property rather than pouring away money in rent.

Falklands family history link for Island Parish's Eliana

THE Falklands has had an historically close relationship with Uruguay and the strongest evidence of this is found in Lafonia, the 600,000 acres of 'flat lands' south of Goose Green, named after the British-born Uruguayan entrepreneur Samuel Lafone.

An industrious man Mr Lafone was a wealthy cattle and hide merchant who obtained the land through a government grant in 1845 to rear stock and eventually purchased it in 1851 after founding the Falkland Islands Company, which had been incorporated by charter in the same year.

Investigating the link is his great great great granddaughter Eliana Lafone, who jumped at the opportunity to visit the Islands as a production assistant for the BBC2 series An Island Parish.

The link to the Falklands was a recent revelation to Eliana. She had just moved to the production team for An Island Parish and when she informed her father of the unique opportunity to go to the Falklands the family link came to the forefront.

"My father claims he told me a long time ago but I only really found out about two months ago when the opportunity to travel here came about," she said.

Eliana's father went to a British school in Uruguay with Islander Mensun Bound whose brother, Graham Bound he met again recently and passed on encouragement for Eliana to visit the Islands and gave her a list of names to help her find out more about her family tree.

After some research into what

Samuel Lafone achieved, Eliana said she is proud of her family's role in establishing agricultural industry in the Falklands and is keen to learn more, but has found it almost overwhelming to see her family name so integrated into the history.

"Booking into Lafone House was a strange conversation," she said adding that she hopes to visit Lafonia too before she leaves in early March.

The unique opportunity to explore the Islands and her family heritage came about almost by chance, and after adjusting to the weather she's enjoying the pace of life. "I really like it here, it's so different, and it's especially good to get out of London."

"Everyone is treated the same and it's so friendly, but I'm going to have to get out of the habit of waving at everyone before I go back," she said.

BFBS upgrade

BFBS is carrying out upgrades to their satellite system which may affect viewers who receive their BFBS TV from a satellite receiver in Camp and via a DTT set top box or digital TV at Mount Pleasant.

From 9am on Wednesday January 29, you may lose your TV services for about an hour.

If you have a satellite or DTT set top box or Digital TV, you need to rescan it to continue to receive BFBS TV channels.

You should not attempt to rescan your set top box before 1pm local time. The changes in the Falkland Islands are different for military and civilian users. Military users will see the live and 'delayed' TV services change channel numbers and they will also receive two extra live channels. For users in Camp, the 'delayed' services will move to different channels.

Listen to BFBS Falkland Islands on FM for additional information, and if you experience difficulties call BFBS on 73003 or email mikaela.roche@bfbs.com

MLA meetings

IN addition to the system of monthly public meetings and one-to-one meetings Legislative Assembly Members hold, they are testing a system of Constituent Meetings over the next two months.

Two MLAs will be available to meet with members of the public between 4pm and 5pm on Thursday afternoons at Gilbert House for those members of the public that wish to discuss issues with them in a more relaxed setting. On February 6, MLAs Poole and Hansen will be available.

Kailand gets up and at it

They said he may never walk and now he's taking great strides

At just five years old, Kailand Ford, has just made his fifth 15,000 mile round trip from the Falklands to see the specialist team at The Robert Jones and Agnes Hunt Orthopaedic Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, in Oswestry, Shropshire.

In 2012, Kailand, who has cerebral palsy, was referred to the Orthotic and Locomotor Assessment Unit (ORLAU) following initial assessment in Oxford and through his mum having read on the internet about treatments offered at Oswestry.

Kailand is the son of Islander, Paul Ford and Karen Armstrong-Ford who is originally from Berkshire, where his grandmother still lives. Kailand's sister Kia (7), is very proud and protective of her brother. Karen is typical of those who settle in the Falklands having moved here 'for a year' 15 years ago as a travelling primary school teacher, loved the lifestyle, met her future husband and happily stayed on to become a resident.

Within a year of his birth, Kailand was diagnosed with quadriplegic cerebral palsy which meant that regular medical trips back to the UK would be inevitable.

To begin with, his paediatrician said Kailand would find it very difficult, if not impossible, to walk. However Kailand is a very determined, tough and sociable character, is in the top groups of his class in maths and literacy, and has let nothing stand in his way, getting about quite quickly, and loving the great outdoors. In fact he is quite a danger to others with the walker device he uses.

Karen who returns to the Islands with Kailand next week said that while the family had considered the care at the John Radcliffe Hospital, Oxford to be amazing, the treatment at Oswestry was out of this world. "The staff here are fantastic - very knowledgeable, kind and considerate, planning our three appointments each year to coincide with school holidays to avoid too much disruption for Kailand or for me." The long haul flight means that the trip is at least 28 hours each way, with just one stop at Ascension Island. "We do physiotherapy exercises on the plane to stop Kailand's joints from becoming too stiff on the journey," said Karen.

Karen is wistful however, reflecting that 'every cloud has a silver lining', in that her sister, who has a medical condition which prevents her from flying, does get to see the family because of the frequent trips they need to make.

Even before Kailand was born, Karen and her mum were involved in fundraising for cerebral palsy. They have also benefitted from the Stephen Jaffray Memorial Fund.

Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon, Mr Andrew Roberts said they were delighted to be doing the best they can for Kailand.

"He is a remarkable, bright young lad with a lovely personality. He copes well with the extremely long journey and has a very supportive family and physiotherapist back at home," he said.

Exploring the Falklands to kayak the world

THREE friendly French explorers landed in the Penguin News Office this week to share their ambition to kayak around East Falklands. Adventurers Nicolas, Yola and Laurent arrived in Stanley with their other team members Renaud, Noelle and Yann, and are eagerly anticipating the start of their adventure.

Collectively the group are known as Le Monde En Kayak, which translates as kayak the world, are professional explorers who travel to isolated and rugged locations across the world to test outdoor adventure equipment on behalf of sponsors.

"We travel to places that are exceptional and wild," said Nicolas, adding that they have been planning this expedition for over a year and have dedicated significant time preparing physically and mentally for the three weeks they will spend at sea.

They are all experienced kayakers whose last expedition took them to Greenland, and have trained offshore in Scotland and Cornwall for this new challenge.

Nicolas, Yola and Laurent with mascot Jo the Polar Bear

"In Greenland the biggest challenge was the ice but here I feel it will be the wind. We were caught out by the sun yesterday though," said Nicolas smiling with a rosy face and waving a high SPF factor of sun-cream that he now keeps close to hand.

The team will stop onshore for water and to pitch tents and are hopeful their planned route from Stanley to Choiseul Sound, Goose Green and the archipelago of islands north of East Falklands will provide inlets with some shelter.

"We expect to be spending hours or days waiting for the weather," said Yola adding they hope to be back in Stanley to fly out on February 15.

Their kayaks were ordered through Southern Imports and to save taking them back with them the group hope to sell them on in town. Penguin News has offered to pass on names for those interested in purchasing one.

The team will update their progress on their website, lemondeenkayak.org

1. What is your most prized possession? My tattoos
2. If you had a motto, what would it be? Don't cross oceans for someone who wouldn't jump puddles for you
3. What is your happiest moment? Getting a job as a teacher here in the Falklands
4. If you could set up a business in the Falklands what would it be? A tattoo and piercing shop or a sushi bar
5. What in your everyday life drives you crazy? People that expect to be treated with respect but don't reciprocate
6. What is your nickname and why? Not sure ask Neville, he normally has a good one for everyone each week
7. What is your favourite TV programme? Nashville at the moment, so many awesome songs and Gunner is quite a delicious man.
8. What would people be surprised to learn about you? Pink/red is not my natural colour
9. What is your funniest childhood memory? Cutting my own hair - with no mirror - putting it all in a handbag and popping it in the bin whilst mum was asleep on the sofa. Mum then walked into my room later that day to catch me cutting out a Forever Friends picture out of my duvet cover because "I wanted it on my wall"
10. What would your 'Mastermind' specialist subject be? How to explain where the Falklands is....did that soooooo many times whilst away
11. Who would play you in a film about your life? Whoever plays Katniss Everdeen! More of an alter ego I suppose
12. Where did you meet your partner? Currently between partners at the moment and I don't mean a sandwich situation
13. What did you want to be when you were a child? A teacher, although I only practised doing the register, there's a lot more to it I can tell you!

Islander Sam attended college and university in the UK and is currently the Year 2 teacher at the Infant and Junior School. She has travelled across America and is making plans for more overseas exploration, with Australia and Thailand high on the wish-list.

Increase in violent crime and recruitment concerns for RFIP

THE Royal Falkland Islands Police (RFIP) had a busy year compared to 2011/2012 with the number of incidents reported increased by 24 per cent (from 1,037 to 1,282), the number of crimes reported increased by nine per cent (from 124 to 135) and the number of incidents requiring reports increased by 12 per cent (from 50 to 56). Coronial Court investigations also increased from seven to 10.

In his annual report to the Police Committee, Director of Emergency Services and Chief of Police Barry Marsden said that while some of the crimes are created by the proactive nature of policing there had been a noticeable increase in the category of violent crimes from 44 to 64, an increase of 45 per cent.

Regrettably three of these assaults were upon members of the RFIP some of whom are still suffering from injuries some 12 months after being assaulted, he said, adding that also during the year the RFIP have had to deal with two uncommon offences of knife crime. "To counter this emerging threat members of the RFIP have been trained and equipped with CapTor Incapacitant Spray so that they can better protect themselves and members of the public from violent attacks," said Mr Marsden.

To act as a deterrent and enable better evidence to be gathered it is intended to introduce the wearing and operation of body cameras by officers which will enable better post event investigations.

Mr Marsden also noted a perceptible drop in the figure of persons reported for speeding from 16 to seven, "due in some part to the continuation of staffing difficulties as reported in the previous annual report." He said it was pleasing to see the numbers of road traffic collisions had reduced from 11 to eight, and, that people who are driving without proper documentation are being discovered and dealt with, the figure rising this year from four to 14.

Staff recruitment and retention had been problematic throughout the year, said Mr Marsden. "Sadly two long serving local members left the service (one sergeant and one constable) taking with them much needed experience and skills who were then replaced with untrained overseas contract workers." He added that it was quite clear that the RFIP was not attracting local people and was struggling to get experienced police officers from other countries. The result was that experience level had dropped considerably, with at one point only five constables out of 12 having more than two years experience.

Efforts to make the RFIP more attractive to experienced candidates resulted in ExCo approving the post of senior constable to be created recognising and rewarding individual experience and skills.

Mr Marsden said a more recent recruitment round had attracted 29 candidates of which over half have relevant police experience and it was hoped the RFIP had turned a corner in attracting experienced officers from other countries.

Police priorities for 2013/14

- 100 per cent of all 999 calls answered within 10 seconds.
- Police Officer to be onsite at any urgent incident in Stanley during normal working hours within 10 minutes in 94 per cent of cases.
- Police Officer to be onsite at any urgent incident in Stanley out of normal working hours within 15 minutes in 84 per cent of cases.
- To reduce violent and acquisitive crimes. (Not to exceed 88 incidents)
- To reduce or eliminate repeat incidents of Anti-Social Behaviour. (No of repeat incidents not to exceed 31)
- To maintain or improve the previous years crime detection rate of 83.1 per cent.
- To finalise the development of community policing into a Neighbourhood Management Policing Model.
- To arrange consultation meetings in Camp (East & West) to gauge public expectations of the RFIP.
- In consultation with advisors prepare papers for ExCo consideration regarding a new emergency services radio system to enable interoperability in the event of a major incident.

Careless drivers ignore the signs

UNBELIEVABLE! What is difficult to understand in temporary road signs indicating 'Road Closed Access Only' and 'Diversion'?

If I received £1 for every vehicle whose driver has assumed it does not apply to them and subsequently had to turn around and retreat because the road is indeed blocked I would be well pleased.

My sympathies go to the road team who have had to resort to blocking the whole roadway and adjacent greens with cones whilst they are trying to get on with the job in safety, unmolested by careless drivers in passing vehicles, tour buses included.

There's more than one east/west road, explore.

Thank you from tall ships

JUST a brief note of thanks to the people of Stanley and surrounds for their kindness and hospitality during the visit of the three tall ships in December 2013. It was a home away from home and every one was very friendly and considerate. All the best to you all for the new year.

Fabricated scuttlebutt

I WRITE in reply to last week's letter which contained a rather exuberant and frankly fabricated account of the 'carnage' that took place at Whalebone Cove. The analogy of the elephants and lions was preposterous to say the least, and was only used to embellish a personal dig at dog owners. The author, whom I now liken to Coronation Street's 'Norris', penned this unwarranted scuttlebutt as retribution for having the audacity not to respect his position as the self-proclaimed Laird of Cape Pembroke.

Every time I take 'Cruncher' and 'Gnasher' onto the common, they exercise by running - dogs do that - and yes, sometimes birds take flight. Not in response to being hunted down by a rabid, drooling pack but simply because they run nearby. The same as if a jogger, motorbike or even Norris' Land Rover approached. Their exercise on that day was not to "chase anything that would fly," as alluded to, but chasing each other as they did on every one of the other 364 days last year. My dogs have NEVER worried, injured, maimed or killed a bird, elephant or lion.

The Common is not for the exclusive use of his paying followers, and on which there is to be no other sign of human existence.

On that day I detoured from my normal route to keep out of their way. Obviously as we could still be seen, my irresponsibility was reprehensible. God forbid the tourists should discover that we own pet dogs! I could continue but must dash as the hounds and I are off to the Serengeti to hunt zebra.

Government to care for '82 memorials

Paul Wilson (DIO) with Colin Summers (PWD)

WAR memorials from the 1982 War were formally handed over to the Falkland Islands Government by the Defence Infrastructure Organisation (DIO) on December 18.

The FIG Public Works Department has now taken over the management and maintenance of the war memorials which until that date were managed by the Ministry of Defence's DIO.

The handover included memorials at Darwin, Goose Green and Fitzroy and also the grave of Lieutenant Taylor (Royal Navy) located at Goose Green.

Head of the DIO in the South Atlantic Paul Wilson said:

"DIO has a close working relationship with the Falkland Islands Government through the Public Works Department."

Catering and rations cycle fundraiser for Whizz Kidz

NINE members of Catering and Rations Squadron at MPA took part in a 24 hour sponsored static cycle ride to raise awareness and money for the charity Whizz Kidz. A total of £301.13 was raised for the charity which supports disabled children.

The cyclists covered a distance of 1,230 kilometres.

Yearning for a puppy - read this first

SENIOR Veterinary Officer Steve Pointing discusses responsible dog owning in the Falkland Islands

You will remember the old advert about a puppy not just being for Christmas - which is true enough - but the fact of the matter is that when you get a new puppy you can expect that dog to be with you for the next 12 or 14 years.

All prospective new puppy owners should bear that in mind. Dogs require a lot of time and attention so think really hard about whether you are prepared to devote so much of your spare time to looking after them.

In the Falkland Islands we don't have the luxury of having a RSPCA or Battersea Dogs' Home to take in unwanted dogs and find them a new home - that responsibility often falls to the veterinary service and, if we can't find a suitable new owner, then we have the unenviable task of having to euthanise perfectly healthy dogs.

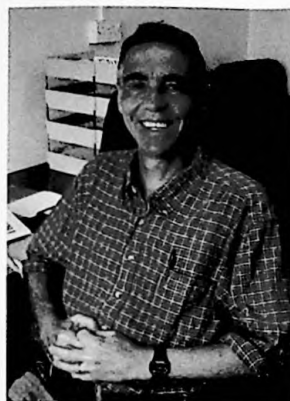

The most common source of dogs in the Falkland Islands is from puppies born to farm dogs. Unfortunately the breeds that are most commonly used for working with sheep do not always make the best pets for living in town. This is particularly the case for the Border Collie which has been bred to round up and drive sheep and frequently feels frustrated if it can't do this.

Collies tend to be intelligent and energetic and they need lots of exercise and mental stimulation. If you can't provide this type of lifestyle then it is probably better that you don't get one of these dogs.

Unfortunately many people today choose a dog as a fashion item or statement and that really isn't a very good idea. Many pedigree dog breeds have a wide range of medical conditions linked to their very narrow breeding base. Unfortunately in the attempt to breed in the 'desired' characteristics a lot of 'undesirable' characteristics are included at the same time, and these include an increased tendency towards skin, eye, joint and heart problems. Some pedigree breeds have a much greater chance of developing these problems (even at a young age) than is the case with cross bred dogs.

The same applies to dogs which have been bred to show extreme physical characteristics such as very short limbs or foreshortened noses, for example the Bulldog and the Basset Hound. In both of these cases the dog has the same number of teeth and the same number of leg bones as any other dog but the teeth have to fit into a very much smaller area of jaw bone in the case of a Bulldog and the legs bones and joints of the basset hound become distorted and thickened in order to fit all the bones into an abnormally short limb. We have, in effect, taken what would constitute the "normal" skeletal pattern for a healthy dog (for example a Border Collie, where head, muzzle and limbs are in proportion to the body size) and severely distorted one or more parts of the skeleton to create a pedigree breed.

This genetic manipulation does not come without its consequences. In the case of the Bulldog there can be difficulties with breathing, giving birth and tooth decay and in the case of the basset hound an increased chance of arthritis in many of the limb joints as well as spinal problems and chronic ear problems.

Dogs are supposed to be man's best friend but I am not so sure that the reverse of this adage is quite so true.

The other thing that you need to take into account is that you need to be able to spend a lot of time with your dog especially in the early stages.

It is essential that puppies are well socialised at an early age. They learn most of their good and bad habits during the first 12 months of their life and that is the period when you really need to spend some 'quality' time with them otherwise you will be laying up problems for you and your pet for years to come. A well socialised and well behaved dog is a joy to be around whereas the opposite can be a complete nightmare.

We frequently see dogs with major behavioural problems as a result of them not having their basic needs for discipline, exercise and socialisation adequately met. Trying to rectify these psychological problems is much more difficult than not allowing them to develop in the first place.

Please think twice before acquiring a puppy and, if you decide that you are ready to take on the responsibility of owning a dog, then choose the type of dog carefully and don't just get one on a whim because you've seen "adorable puppies - free to good home" on Facebook.

There are already too many dogs in Stanley that have been passed from one owner to another because the original owner was not ready or fully prepared for all the hard work that owning a dog involves. Don't let that be you!

Hana takes up a new life in Stanley

IN contrast a story of responsible and humane dog re-homing.

Stanley residents Isobel and David Castle have recently re-homed a three-legged dog called Hana from Serbia.

Pauline Sackett of the Mucky Paws kennels at Fitzroy, became involved with Forgotten Paws in early 2012.

A Serbia Forgotten Paws volunteer group including

Pauline was formed, brought together by their love of animals and the impact of the powerful images and distressing stories found online regarding stray animals and animal shelters in Niš, Serbia.

The group aims to improve the lives and welfare of the dogs and cats in shelters as well as neutering strays in Serbia. The group has grown immensely with support across the globe, and animals re-homed in many different countries, and this now includes the Falkland Islands.

Pauline said she first spotted Hana in some photos and was drawn to her beautiful eyes, and so began the long process of sponsoring her, finding a foster for her six month quarantine in the UK and then her vet checks and passage to FI.

Hana had a deformed foot from what was believed was an injury as a puppy, the vets in UK checked her over, attempted a restructuring operation but ended up having to amputate her right front leg.

Pauline said this gave Hana a new lease of life and she flies around on her three legs.

"To see her running you would never guess that she has a missing limb. I originally planned to bring Hana to the Falklands and keep her with me but then, a chance meeting with Isobel, chatting about dogs in general and before we know it, Hana has her forever home with Isobel and David!"

Isobel and David said Hana was settling in well to a very quiet, peaceful life now.

"We would like to thank all those involved in Serbia, UK and the Falkland Islands for the enabling her to have the chance of a new and happy life as a much loved pet."

The Clipperton project

The Clipperton Project is an international non-profit multi-disciplinary initiative, which uses notions of exploration in order to energise and empower audiences all over the world with the possibility of what they can achieve. Our flagship work involves arts/science expeditions to some of the world's most remote territories.

In March 2014, The Clipperton Project will be running an expedition to South Georgia aboard the Hans Hansson. The expedition will be led by Gordon Liddle who has 18 years experience of South Georgia.

http://www.goldenfleecexp.co.uk/english/hh_specs_en.html

Leaving on 10th March from Stanley and returning on 29th March, the expedition will be investigating the decline of Albatrosses, links to microplastics in the southern ocean and invasive species carried by plastics. Aboard will be scientists and artists from around the world, including Scotland, Australia, Spain, Mexico and Holland. A rare opportunity has become available for one or two people to join us on this once-in-a-lifetime journey.

As TCP is cross-disciplinary, participants need have no one particular background, but are expected to have a overwhelming can-do attitude, a sense of the world and its possibilities, and to contribute their share of the expedition costs (£350/night aboard). Please contact TCP Director Jon Bonfiglio on jon@theclippertonproject.com for more information.

Eager Juices NOT from Concentrate

Nothing Added, not even water

Eager Juices come in 1 litre sizes and are 100% pressed and squeezed.

However what really makes them unique is that they do not need to be refrigerated until opened. They do not contain any artificial preservatives and use packaging technology that allows the fruit to taste as good as the day they were first juiced

CONCENTRATE JUICE

Whenever a juice is made "from concentrate", there is reason to beware of it. Such juices are first concentrated by high heat over a relatively long period, which is prone to destroying all nutritional value but this is hardly the worst aspect. The worst part is that the juices are then combined with tap water. This tap water composes about 90% (or more) of the fluid of reconstituted juices. Therefore, you may be drinking more impurities by drinking juices that are made from concentrate than if you drank your local tap water, due to it having been shipped to multiple locations and the excessive processing. The quality of the resultant juice is a product of the tap water quality at the bottling plant, which could be worse than your local tap water. The final product may still taste like delicious juice, but it is often little more than flavored tap water

Kevin putts himself ahead of the field in the Standard Chartered Open

LAST weekend 21 golfers contested the prestigious Standard Chartered Open. This is a two day competition that is a keenly anticipated fixture in our golfing calendar.

The direct involvement of the hard working team of volunteers from sponsors SCB ensuring a well organised and enjoyable event. The company flags and on course banners always add an extra special feel to the contest. Open golf tournaments mean there are no handicap allowances and this results in the title being fought out between the top players in the field.

Day one had high scoring from most players and one or two of the pre-match favourites fired themselves totally out of the contest.

Troyd Bowles posted a decent score of 76 to hold a one shot lead over Kevin Clapp and Glenn Ross. Joe Duncan shot 78 and Roy Smith and Wayne Clement stayed in contention with rounds of 79 apiece.

On day two Kevin immediately made up the one shot deficit on the overnight leader by scoring a par on the first hole and from that point onward was never out of the lead.

Kevin Clapp proceeded to put on a master class in chipping and putting to record his third open event title; adding the 2014 Standard Chartered Open to a West Open title won back in 2007 and the coveted Stanley Open in 2010.

Kevin steadily built and held a two shot lead from Troyd and the defending champion Glenn Ross. With five holes to play, chances to catch the leader were likely on the tough par four 14th or the short par five 15th. All players recorded good pars on the 14th and then made fairly miserable bogeys on the 15th.

A solid par for Kevin on the 16th and a chip-in birdie on 17th gave him a three shot lead heading down the last.

Fellow golfers gathering to await the arrival of the final group were able to watch a typical example of Clapp's short game skill as yet another difficult up and down settled all issues.

set up a winning total of 149.

Elsewhere Ian Stewart righted the ship by posting a weekend best round of 71 and Wayne Clement surged past Glenn Ross into third place with a solid round of 74.

Sarah Bowles collected the best lady prize and Gordon Lennie collected the prize for the best net total over the two days.

Stanley Golf Club wishes to thank the Standard Chartered Bank for an excellent weekend of golf. Particular thanks to Hayley, Julie and girls for the excellent BBQ and prizes.

This Sunday it is Captain's Day and significant mostly in that it is the last chance to collect points and qualify automatically for the 2014 Falklands Cup. The top eight players in the league standings for each side qualify. The two team captains will then have the unenviable task of choosing three wildcards and a reserve and there is always someone disappointed to be left out. The two teams will hopefully be announced in next weeks Penguin News.

Sign in for Captains Day by 9:00 for a 9:15 tee off.

The Falkland Islands Company Ltd - Vacancies

The Falkland Islands Company has a vacancy for an Assistant Foreman in our Port Services section.
The right applicant should be physically fit, reliable, of sober habits and hold an Arie and HGV driving licence. Some previous mechanical knowledge would be an advantage.
For further information on this position please contact Jimmy Forster, FI Shipping Manager on 27629 or email fi.shipping@fic.co.fk

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY
PO Box 378, Stanley

An exciting opportunity exists to become Executive Secretary to the Falkland Islands Chamber of Commerce.
The Chamber of Commerce represent the majority of private sector business interests in the Falkland Islands.
In this newly created role you shall become involved in a wide range of initiatives, including working with government and NGOs, promoting the Chamber of Commerce and representing the expanding Private Sector Industry. This is a particularly interesting time for the Islands as business opportunities grow and the public and private sectors work together to minimise any negative impacts resulting from a developing oil industry, whilst drawing from the opportunities that present themselves.
This position could suit either full or part time working for the right candidate, and the Chamber Council would be keen to discuss such terms and conditions with the successful applicant.
For an application form, job description and further information please contact Amelia Appleby on 22264 or email manager@commerce.co.fk
Completed application forms and CVs should be received at the address above by midday Friday 31st January 2014.

Government is not 'dithering' Attorney General tells Judge

THE Falkland Islands is not "dithering" in addressing the state of the law the Attorney General Mark Lewis stated this week following criticisms made by Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley last week.

It was reported in Penguin News on January 24, that Mr Gumsley had both questioned the time it took for cases to come before the Court and also commented, "The state of the laws at present is, in my judgement, a real threat to the rule of law and continues to present a risk to justice being done properly." With regard to the latter he referred to two harassment charges being dropped against Kevin McLaren due to them being marked 'not known in law'.

This week Mr Lewis told Penguin News that on the contrary government was, "taking a planned approach to dealing with the issues. The Government believe that justice is being done in the Falkland Islands and is committed to ensuring that this continues to be the case."

He assured readers, "that the Falkland Islands Government is committed to and is actively addressing problems with access to the law as well as improving prosecution practice."

Mr Lewis said Government had approved an action plan and funding to address the state of the laws generally, "and make them more accessible to the public," describing it as a "huge piece of work."

Executive Council recently agreed to the appointment of a Law Commissioner, "to drive this project forward over the next two years," said Mr Lewis.

In addition FIG has also approved and funded (together with the FCO) the Criminal Justice Reform Project to codify and modernise the criminal law.

Mr Lewis explained that the project is being taken forward in full consultation with all stakeholders, including the Court and the politicians: "To drive forward this work the Attorney General's Chambers has, in addition to the normal legal team, the temporary benefit of a specialist criminal justice lawyer on loan from the UK Crown Prosecution Service. The work is well under way with draft legislation expected by August of this year and new procedures are being developed and introduced across government in readiness."

The Attorney General's Chamber has also appointed a specialist prosecutor into a post that became vacant last year. Mr Lewis said this was already leading to better criminal case preparation and presentation. He also stated that the timescale within which cases are brought before the Court in the Falklands was generally shorter than that in the UK, and there was no backlog of cases.

He added: "This appointment has not increased the number of lawyers in the AG's Chambers, but introduced specialist prosecution experience to Chambers in response to previous criticisms from the court."

Referring to the Senior Magistrate's ruling that the harassment charges against Mr McLaren be stayed Mr Lewis said, "I am reviewing that ruling. Previous cases brought under the Protection of Harassment Act 1997 have been brought in good faith by the police and AGs and have been heard before the Court without challenge."

"But to ensure that harassment is a criminal offence in the Falklands, I will be bringing forward urgent draft legislation for consideration by Executive Council."

"Those previously convicted under the Protection of Harassment Act 1997 will be contacted by AG's Chambers to discuss their cases as appropriate."

Happy 30th birthday to iconic fish and chip shop Woodbine Cafe

THE Woodbine Café fish and chip shop celebrated its 30th anniversary of trading today.

Opened by Pauline Hayward and then husband Dave Hawksworth in 1984, their first customer was former Governor Sir Rex Hunt. The café now owned by Pauline still boasts loyal customers from the day of opening and as a thank you to them and the customer base grown over the years the café has slashed its prices for the day.

The pair were originally motivated to move to the Islands to set up the café after they viewed footage of the Islands on television.

Islanders favourite fish? Tastes have change said Pauline. It used to be local mullet but now Grenadier and Kingclip are more popular and imported Haddock is the biggest seller.

Chips have caused the biggest headache over the years. Until the stores expanded their stock the only way to keep up with a one tonne a month requirement for chips was to import potatoes and hand cut them for the fryer. "With the boats only coming in every three months we'd have to order three tonnes at a time and keep them in a container in the front garden. Sometimes they'd keep but sometimes they'd arrive as water."

30 years on, Pauline said she is ready for a change, "I always said 30 years would be it." The iconic Woodbine Cafe is likely to be up for sale soon. Full story on www.penguin-news.com

Comment by Deputy Editor Sharon Jaffray

THE final discussion at Monday's public meeting (page 4) left me feeling a little anxious about the future for returning students as although our MLAs assured government was actively trying to assist them into the work place, I had a feeling I'd heard it all before.

Even if there is a programme now in place and actively pursued, I'm wondering how many prospective candidates have been lost as they hammered on departmental doors which remained firmly closed. For some though, the lack of even a courtesy response let alone any encouragement on the best course to adopt has resulted in careers being pursued, often successfully in other countries.

In my little world alone I can think of one friend who was turned down for a position in the medical department and left the Islands to take up the exact same work on agency fees, earning far more than that on offer at local rates. Another left when the tourism career door was slammed in her face and has gone on to become a highly respected and influential member of the world-wide cruise/tourism industry; recognition and expertise we could have made good use of at home.

I recognise that not all students qualify in subjects suitable for work in the Falklands and a minority have no urge to return, but this means it is even more important to invest in those who genuinely want to put something back into the Islands.

A worrying point raised at the meeting was the fact that 20 years ago, when MLA Phyl Rendell was director of education, these matters were being addressed at the right stage; offering guidance to students and assisting them into the work place. Public recognition that the system has gone downhill rather than improved is not a healthy message, but the honesty is appreciated.

And the sad thing is that when the previous (2009) Assembly were elected they were fully armed and ready to kick some human resources and departmental backside to ensure qualified/experienced students and local workers would get a foot on the succession ladder, even shadow contractor posts to learn on the job.

So, bearing in mind there was a recognised problem prior to 2009 and the amount of drum banging that goes on in Legislative Assembly about young people being our future, effort applied to this scores a mere two out of ten in my book, while attainment scores just one. The kind of school report I lived in fear of taking home as a child, so I always made sure my attainment marks were high. But then, I always lost points for talking too much in class too.

Falklands students witness man setting himself on fire

TWO Falklands students in the UK were witness to a man setting fire to himself in a dental surgery in Chichester on Monday.

Speaking to Penguin News this week the pair, Aiden Morris and Matthew Lazo, who are studying at Chichester College, were at the surgery when a middle-aged scruffy looking man wearing a camouflage jacket, tattered jeans and trainers walked up to the reception.

Aiden said the man spoke to the receptionist about a letter he had received following an earlier treatment from an employee, who the lads later heard no longer worked at the dental surgery.

They argued for about 15 minutes, said Matthew, and a queue had formed behind the man at the reception desk. The manager was called, and attempted to shake the man's hand and introduce himself. The man refused to shake his hand and continued to ask for the employee who no longer worked there.

After several attempts to persuade the man into his office the manager said he was returning to his office and if the man did not wish to follow he should leave the surgery.

"The man stood there and pulled out a see-through, shampoo-like bottle full of what we assumed to be urine and sprayed about half of the bottle on his jeans and shirt," explained the lads.

"He put the bottle back in his pocket and then calmly stood upright, looked at us and said 'In case of a fire, please evacuate the building.' Before we could process in our heads what was going on, or notice that he was concealing a lighter in his hand, he bent down and set himself on fire."

Everyone in front of the lads ran for the exit, but Aiden and Matthew were the last ones to react and furthest from the exit, "with the guy standing an arms length away from us. He wasn't reacting to the flames, more embracing it. Looking back at it he seemed to just be accepting the fact he was going to die."

At this point the man was completely engulfed in flames, said

Matthew and Aiden

Aiden, "and too far gone for anyone to have dealt with the fire without fire extinguishers. So we both got up and barged past him to meet up with the rest of the people who were already outside."

As they did so the receptionist grabbed the fire extinguisher and attempted to extinguish the flames. Fire, police and ambulances (two of each, said the boys) arrived soon after.

Aiden and Matthew were questioned and the man was taken to hospital. The pair have yet to discover whether the man died, was seriously injured or whether the flames were contained to his clothes.

Aiden told Penguin News: "We don't understand why he would come prepared with a bottle full of lighter fluid and a lighter to a dentist. It doesn't make sense to us, but we assumed that he may have been planning on using it on the man he was looking for. At the time, we didn't really realise just what had happened and after a few hours it became more real, thinking of how serious it could have been."

Aiden's mother Michelle who lives in the UK commented "I was extremely concerned for the boys, both because they have witnessed something so terrible but ultimately for their safety."

"I hope both boys are offered all the support needed to get through this terrible ordeal."

Mike in Melbourne

MEMBER of Legislative Assembly Mike Summers has been in New Zealand and Australia this week as part of a tour presenting the Falklands as a modern, thriving democracy and promoting the Islanders' right to self determination.

In Wellington he met with and gave a speech to local politicians, academics and members of the community with an affiliation to the Falkland Islands. It was reported his address was well received, as it was in Melbourne also according to the FCO's High Commissioner in Canberra, Paul Madden.

A COW and calf were sold for the top price of £615 at the Saladero cattle sale last Sunday.

Department of Agriculture Agricultural Advisor Kate Dunn told Penguin News that more than 45 people attended the open cry auction with registered bidders competing to secure their preferred animals.

On offer were male and female cattle including bulls and heifers, as well as cows with their calves.

The top cow sold was six years old and her calf was three months old.

A three year old bull was the top priced male, selling for £450.

The cattle, purchased by Falkland Islands farmers will be used as breeding animals.

Kate explained: "The National Beef Herd (NBH) is in place to provide a pool of proven genetics to Falkland Islands farmers to ensure ongoing genetic diversity and to improve beef production across the islands.

"The animals are bred and raised at the Department of Agriculture's, Saladero Farm before being offered to farmers for use in their breeding herds."

Neil Judd was auctioneer and DoA staff prepared the animals and sale facilities.

Oly makes a hit with Falklands filming

FORMER Falklands resident and video producer Oly Dempster is back in the Falklands, this time with cameraman Duncan Lees filming commissioned footage for the Falkland Islands Government website.

Oly has already provided short films about the Islands way of life, and the popular pieces have had up 50,000 hits he told Penguin News this week.

This time his focus is on special interest groups and he will be capturing images of nature photographers, colt tamers and marathon runners among others.

Oly has worked with popstar Justin Timberlake and actor Ray Winston and has provided services for Nike, Adidas and the NHS. Check out:

MLA Short: Housing is in 'heck of a crisis'

MLA Gavin Short described the local housing situation as "a heck of a crisis," at Monday's public meeting held in the Parish Hall.

"There seems to be nothing in the private sector and government is bogged down with people coming in. The current housing project at Sapper Hill might take the heat out of it, but it's likely we will soon have to build more," he said.

MLA Edwards said FIG had made the decision some time ago to, "rein back on building," in the hope the private sector would step in and fill the void, however that had not happened. "There's a lot of private land out there suitable for building," he added. Government had since had to step back in, he said, but pointed out that it cost FIG in the region of £6 million to build 30 houses, such as currently under construction on Sapper Hill. By comparison he said 30 mobile homes like those at Murray Heights could be put on site for £1 million.

MLA Edwards said it had been suggested there was a need for a further 30 houses to build, "but that is only one thing from a list of 1,056 priorities." He said you could then end up then having to decide whether 30 new houses or a new school was priority.

It is estimated the houses at Sapper Hill cost approximately £120,000 each to build, however it cost up to £80,000 per plot for services and infrastructure. MLA Edwards reminded the meeting that the plots developed at East Stanley in 2002/03 had cost £70,000 each to service and had then been sold on at a fraction of the cost.

MLA Barry Elsyby questioned whether the solution for the housing problem lay solely with FIG. "There's plenty of land out there, the price for renting accommodation is good so there should not be any reason why the private sector do not build houses to rent." He said some of the problem had been created by FIG creating new jobs, so more houses were needed to meet the needs, but it could not just be left up to FIG.

MLA Short said he was concerned, "we're going to sit on our hands wondering what to do while the problem just gets worse."

East sports

DARWIN Harbour Sports Association has announced dates for their annual sports week at Goose Green. Horse racing will take place on March 1 and 2, dog trials on March 3, Children's sports and mechanical bull on March 4 and the shearing competition on March 5. Lucille McMullen, mobile 55958, is the contact for entries for the dog trials and shearing competitions.

LIEUTENANT Colonel Tony Davies, OBE and his wife Beverly had their marriage of 10 years blessed at Christchurch Cathedral, Stanley last Sunday. The blessing was conducted by the Reverend Richard Hines. They were joined by Islands friends and 1982 Veterans and their wives from the UK. A surprise Guard of Honour from the Welsh Guards detachment at MPA turned out to add colour to the occasion. The blessing was followed by a reception at Malvina House.

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

THE additional 'away morning' last week covering discussions on housing, rural development and FIG staffing was another good opportunity for MLAs to work with directors to identify particular issues to be addressed. As in the previous week we did not come up with definitive answers, but made some progress. Too often we look at individual problems in an ad hoc way and sometimes hunting down the information needed to make an informed decision is not easy so it is good to work with those who have the facts at their fingertips. The subject of recruitment and retention of staff stimulated a particularly useful discussion with many ideas to be explored. As well as asking why people leave it is worth investigating the positive as well and asking people why they choose to stay, or when talking to those newly arrived, what attracted them in the first place.

I am fortunate to be a fast reader as this week we have a fairly heavy, in all senses, pack of Executive Council papers to review. A number are simply for information or very straightforward matters that simply require an Exco stamp of approval. Members review and discuss the papers as a group so that the three Exco members get a sense of others' views, although they are not bound by them.

There were some interesting items raised at this week's public meeting and MLAs hope that by offering the weekly Thursday slot with two MLAs we will encourage those who want a longer and more in depth discussion on any subject to come and talk in a smaller group or as individuals. It may also appeal to those who do not wish to speak in a larger meeting with microphones and cameras. People may wish to raise different subjects depending on the portfolios of the members attending and if more than one come in with subjects for the different portfolio holders or with an individual issue they wish to discuss privately then a second meeting can move off into another room. Roger Edwards and I begin this week, and the times and two members attending in subsequent weeks will be in Penguin News each Friday. It must be emphasised that these sessions are in no way intended to discourage people wishing to see individual members on any matter from making a separate arrangement to do so.

Locals should be trained to take up contract posts in Government

AT Monday's Public Meeting MLA Jan Cheek said she did not think there was any contract job within government, "we could not ultimately train a local to do."

Member of the public Mark Pollard had asked MLAs what was being done to train up locals for certain positions within government. He said he understood the need for contract officers but questioned whether there was a drive within government to train local people and pay them good wages. "Why are people leaving, is it the pay, the conditions or even better options in the private sector," he asked.

MLA Jan Cheek said the previous Assembly had put aside considerable funds for training which had only recently in some cases been taken up. "In terms of wages they are being looked at to see if we are competitive," she said.

MLA Phil Rendell said there was a series of issues: "wages, working conditions, being valued, being performance managed and progressing up the scale." She said all these things had been looked at during MLAs 'away days' and the civil service had also been tasked to talk to their staff, both contract and local to see what the issues are and why they are leaving.

MLA Gavin Short said he had suggested people should wander around work places and find out the feelings of employees. "I was looked upon like a lunatic," he said. However, he was going around, sitting on peoples desks and talking. He said Human Resources (HR) should be doing the same, "talking to people on their own turf," to get a better understanding of how people feel. "I report back, but we are not allowed to get too deep into HR stuff," he added.

Mr Pollard said there seemed to be a lot of emphasis on recruitment from overseas and asked if there was a list of contract officers' jobs that locals could be trained up to do which was offered out to post graduates and potential trainees. "They need to be encouraged and offered an incentive," he said.

MLA Barry Elsby said government departments had been told to plan for succession and MLAs were conscious of the need for it to be carried out.

How to incentivise people for certain jobs was different and he had started talking with the Director of Education, "because we don't want to wait until someone has been to University and then discover the degree they have is not suitable for the type of work they want to do.

It's giving students at an early age more career information so they have an idea what they can aspire to and put them in touch with the relevant department and keep in touch with them throughout training, encourage them to spend time in the workplace while home. "It's joined up thinking, but it's taking time," he said.

MLA Jan Cheek commented that what MLA Elsby had described, "is exactly what MLA Phil Rendell had done when she was Director of Education."

Phil Middleton highlighted there was no information or encouragement offered to, or effort to target those who had already trained overseas. "We should get them back," he said.

MLA Michael Poole said some departments had kept in contact with students and guided them through college and university. "It's a matter of spreading good practice through the rest of the departments," he concluded.

Reflecting a need to tailor training to ensure it fits demand, the recent Training Centre under-spend of £97,000, reported at the Standing Finance Committee on Wednesday was described as "unfortunate" by MLA Rendell.

The number of vacancies and withdrawals from the Apprentice scheme was noted as the cause and in response the Centre hope to "have another run" at recruiting this year said MLA Elsby. He noted a need to "drive forward" the Centre alongside with the Training Centre's manager Eileen Davies with an emphasise on promoting the opportunities available.

Falklands for Philippines

£20,704.82 has now been raised for the Philippines Typhoon Appeal by the people of the Falklands. £20,000 has already been remitted to the Disaster Emergency Committee in UK.

The Appeal in the Falklands will finish after the Grand Raffle for which tickets are currently available at a £1 per ticket from various outlets in Stanley.

A fisherman and a legend

Remembering Mickey Clarke

JAMES Martin Clarke universally known now as 'Mick' or 'Mickey', was born on January 25, 1932. He was third of the four children born to 'Jim' and Jane Clarke of Pioneer Row, in Stanley, and is survived by his younger brother, Rudy.

At the age of 5, just before Rudy was born, came the devastating news that his father Jim, the man to whom, it was said, young Mick was attached at the hip, had died aged 41 while working out on the harbour on the schooner Shamrock. Mick always maintained he could remember the policeman arriving to give the news to his poor mother. In latter years a photo of his father's grave was to bring a lot of deep comfort to Mick. He kept it on the wall of his room at the hospital.

So Mick's early life was tough; it was especially tough of course for 'Nanny Clarke' his mother, who took in washing and ironing to make ends meet. Rudy retains fond memories of going out shooting regularly with his older brother and with Tex the dog to get the geese that were needed to help put food on their table.

If asked about his riotous teenage years, Mick liked to boast that he and Roddy McKay had been run out of town by the sheriff. He was alluding to the fact that for disciplinary purposes they'd both been sent to live with Mick's aunt out on Speedwell Island.

From there Mick began his first proper job working with skipper Sandy Bonner on the celebrated AK Hen, and John Allan recorded Mick's name in what John called 'the Albemarle Roll of Honour'; those who worked for the South Atlantic Sealing Company between 1949-1952 along with colleagues such as Riley Short, Dave Thom and Fin Finlayson.

Other jobs followed including a year or two on the RSS Shackleton and a spell as a delivery driver for the FIC, but eventually Mick settled with the Falkland Island Government's Public Works Department where he would end up as Foreman and one-time Peat Officer.

His professional experience grew with HGV and heavy plant vehicles. Privately he once owned an old Bren Gun carrier; very useful from which to shoot, an old Champs vehicle and an AJS scrambler bike. Mick also owned a peat carting lorry for a while in which he would take guest passengers for trips out to Surf Bay and Cape Pembroke. On one occasion the passengers were noisy and a little worse for drink and this apparently irritated Mickey; but he quietened them down by gently employing the lorry's tipping mechanism.

That was all a bit rich really from someone who one evening in his early 20s, after a few drinks of course, had commandeered the Governor's car which was later left hanging over the wall of the Public Jetty.

Mick steadily gained other experience too, besides working with vehicles. He was comfortable working safely at height and so was ready and willing to paint tall radio masts. He painted the tin roof of the Cathedral Church suspended from a bosun's chair. He was responsible for the positioning and installation of Britannia on top of the 1982 Liberation Monument.

He was soon known as a very fair foreman at PWD and was popular with his men. But whatever employment he was involved in over the years, and however much he enjoyed doing it, he was never happier than when he was 'huntin', fishin' and gatherin'.

It soon became the custom to announce on the radio when Mickey Clarke had fish for sale down at the Public Jetty. Sometimes he sold it; and sometimes it seems he gave it away out of the kindness of his heart. On hearing the news recently of his death, one person wrote to Julie: "Sorry to hear your sad news, will never forget how kind Mickey was to my dear mum. He would always fill her bucket with fish and never take any money."

The theme of kindness emerged in yet another way, too. "I wanted to share a memory I have of your Dad," someone wrote. "I was in my mid-teens and life was quite a struggle. I was feeling very low and I was in the West Store with hardly any money and your Dad came past. He put his hand on the top of my head and ruffled my hair and he said 'you are a good girl you are.' Do you know, I walked home feeling ten feet tall and that memory always stayed with me. Even when others told me I was useless my mind used to think, 'Well, Mickey Clarke thinks I'm a good girl.'"

Together with kindness, the theme of courage also emerges the more one hears about Mickey's various occupations and exploits. It's a tricky thing to take a boat to sea around these Islands; especially when you get caught in rough weather or a storm. In some ways it was an even trickier business to deliver supplies overland to camp settlements during the Argentine occupation in 1982. But Mickey did both and many were and remain profoundly grateful for it.

The day before his funeral Mickey was taken on his last trip in a boat. Family were on board, enjoying chocolate and telling stories (just as Mick would have wished, he always had a bar of chocolate in his pocket) while his coffin was carried from the old Government Jetty to the Public Jetty. The once strong and tall fisherman, 6'4" tall and with hands like peat shovels, and such a tight grip, was no longer at the helm.

Some years ago, especially in 2004 when he was in New Zealand and had undergone heart surgery, Mick's health problems grew more complex. While in Chile in 2011 for repair of a broken hip, matters grew worse. Mick returned to the Islands and was cared for in an exemplary manner by Tooie, and by an extraordinary team of professional carers, devoted family members and close friends. He may have been poorly and quite weak at that stage but as late as January 2011, together with two of his daughters and with his eldest son Michael, he managed a final emotional journey out to West Point and was able to travel on the Condor for the last time.

The presence at his funeral of such a wide range of friends including former colleagues, members of the Falklands Club of which he was a respected member, together with many of Mickey's large family (I think you comprise seven surviving sons and daughters, 15 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren) is testimony to the love, affection and respect in which he was held and will be remembered.

The word 'legend' is sometimes used from this pulpit to describe a Falkland Islander who has left his or her distinctive mark on the life of this Island community. We must surely add another name to the list. So much more could be said.

Whether you remember him as the man who dangled you from his big arms and danced you round the room as a little girl whilst you stood on his feet; whether you remember him as the man with whom you first went to sea; whether you remember him as the man who, well on in life, still knew just when the tide was right, when everything had to be dropped, because there was nothing more important than going fishing; in whatever way this giant of a man became your hero.

New Zealand penguin pays Falklands visit

Snares crested penguin

A LONG long way from home (normally a resident of New Zealand) a Snares Crested penguin was spotted and photographed by Adam Howe at Blue Beach on East Falklands on the weekend.

The species breeds on The Snares, a group of islands off the southern coast of the South Island.

The species, also known as just 'Snares' is currently rated as 'vulnerable' by the IUCN as its breeding range is restricted to one small island group. The current population is estimated at around 25,000 breeding pairs.

It is a medium to small, yellow-crested penguin of a height between 50-70 cm.

A FUN-FILLED 'BioBlitz' has been planned by Clare Cockwell as part of Falklands Conservation's Protected Areas Project.

Hawk's Nest Pond Nature Reserve, between Little Chartres and Fox Bay is the attractive venue for the event on February 15. Starting at 10am, continuing overnight and finishing with breakfast the next morning, Mrs Cockwell described it as a, "great outdoor family event where expert naturalists and members of the public work together to do a fast and intensive survey of all forms of life in a natural space."

The BioBlitz is a race to find as many different species of plants, birds, insects, fungi, mammals and fish as possible in 24 hours, and everything found will be written down to make a species record to help Falklands Conservation develop a plan for managing the site. Mrs Cockwell said: "At our BioBlitz you can get involved in all kinds of fun and exciting activities and learn how to find and identify the wildlife on your doorstep. From pond dipping and bug hunting to birdwatching."

It also has a serious side: "Participants will have a chance to try out some of the techniques that scientists use in the field, and the information we get will be used to help us put together a plan for managing the site. Knowing what's there is an essential first step towards this," said Mrs Cockwell.

Some great volunteer helpers are lined up already, she added: "Richard Lewis, an associate researcher at Kew will be leading plant activities, Helen Marsh will be dealing with species records in the base camp tent and showing people how to preserve their finds for the herbarium and John Carlin will be bringing some children from FC's Watch Group out for the weekend."

California Club Rush at Hawks Nest Pond: Ruby and Abigail prove you're never too young to learn about natural habitats

Mrs Cockwell said there was still funding available for two volunteers to travel over and help out. "This could either be existing FC volunteers, or anyone new who fancies joining the volunteer register."

Camping is available at Old House Stream, in the Patricia Luxton National Nature Reserve, and basic refreshments, shelter and first aid provision will be available at the site. Call Mrs Cockwell on 42089 and take along: a notebook and pencil, outdoor clothes, and a packed lunch.

Sea theme wedding for Jason and Talia in NZ

PUKEKURA Park in New Plymouth, New Zealand was the beautiful setting for the marriage of Falkland Islander, Jason Stephenson to New Zealander, Talia Manu on Friday January 3.

Jason's parents, Katrina and Zachary Stephenson along with brother Dylan and grandparents, Rudy and Camilla Clarke made the long journey to New Zealand to attend the event.

Along with the bride's huge family a small contingent of Falkland Islanders and their families who live in New Zealand also attended the wedding along with relatives who travelled from Australia.

With the Stephenson's love of the sea the theme for the wedding was nautical with the bridesmaids wearing blue dresses with lattice detail and Jason and Talia's 10 month old daughter Ava wearing a sailor dress and hat.

The theme continued through to the reception with all the tables being decorated with blue and table numbers set within an anchor.

Looking smart in morning suits Jason was accompanied by bestman Dylan and three groomsmen and Talia by a maid of honour and three bridesmaids.

A lovely touch was a gift to the bridesmaids from the bride and groom of necklaces made by Roxanne King of 'Heart of the Falklands'. The necklaces comprise two glass vials, one filled with white sand from the groom's home in the Falkland Islands and the other with black sand from the bride's home in New Zealand.

"The day before the wedding there was a wonderful surprise when the wedding party met with the celebrant who was conducting the wedding and she turned out to be ex travelling teacher Myra Pitt's second cousin," said Katrina. It was a wonderful day filled with lots of celebrating which was enjoyed by all, said added.

Over the garden fence with Ginge Kidd

I HAVE probably mentioned elsewhere that this gardening year has been a bit tricky for our household one way and another. And so it continues to be. Did anyone else get caught by that rather nasty frost last week? I woke up very early to a bright and beautiful day, so lovely that I thought I would start the day then and there, with my usual pint (and a half) of tea.

Looking out of the kitchen window as I waited for the kettle to boil I was shocked to see the roof of the car turning white as the sun struck it, and then I saw the grass going white also.

Tea forgotten I rushed to get Bill out, and minutes later we were outside and trying to water the potatoes to counteract the effects of the frost already burning their leaves. We keep three hoses in strategic places and all ready to use on various borders, however, they too were frozen. Disaster!

By the time we had thawed the hoses and their nozzles a good half hour had passed and the damage to the potato leaves was very visible. Nevertheless we soaked them all well but only time will tell if we managed to save the crop. As the potatoes were so late planted this year growth is rather behind anyway. The frost must have been quite savage because never before have I seen hollies being scorched, and in all the years I have grown them this is the first time the rhododendrons have been affected.

The cold spell acted as a wake-up call for the pumpkins I guess. Up until now we have only seen long stems ending with plain (male) flowers on them. At long last small fruit at the end of a few stems before the flowers have meant the females have finally put in an appearance. It is seconds work to remove the petals of the male flowers and pop it into the female flower. Pollination done, we will now hope the season will be long enough to give us some decent pumpkins. The tomatoes continue to grow and most are dripping with fruit; feeding has become an every other day task. The swedes outside are also growing well and all the rows are nearly thinned and weeded at last.

The self-set potatoes in the tunnels have proved very large and we are making good use of them. As they come out I'm replacing them with brassicas and, as the carrot seeds planted outside continue to play peek-a-boo, I have put more short rows of those under cover. The ones planted in the tunnel three weeks ago are roaring along. I'm hoping these will also provide us with some more even if they grow no bigger than finger thick. A carrot, rather like swedes and potatoes, forms the backbone of too many meals to go without it. Also more rows went in of golden turnip, beetroot, various oriental greens, lettuce and more brassica seeds. Every inch of space is in use.

I still find it rather difficult to bend my knee enough to be able to step over, rather than into, the plants in the flower borders. But I do manage to weed from the paths, or where I can walk through gaps between plants, and I can also wield a mean weed killer spray! Bill and his bunch of little helpers have been doing sterling work out there and trailer loads of weeds have made their way down to the dump. They all seem to have a great time, and there has been the added enjoyment of talking to passing tourists of course.

I've mentioned before just how unbelievably kind and helpful I have found family and friends to be during this time.

Susan Whitney is another such person, she came to chat about plants and swap some, and has come back twice since to pull out weeds, a friend indeed!

It is wonderful to see all these clean areas appear, I'm now itching to start planting the rest of the new plants received from the Garden Centre and of course the roses grown from cuttings. These have made an awful lot of growth now and most are ready to flower. This is a time I love, for you never really know what the colours and sizes of the flowers will be, especially if they are cuttings from roses growing indoors, where the colours always seem rather different anyway.

Arina on Pebble Island has sent me many cuttings of roses and other plants. This time she has outdone herself; I received an envelope containing photographs and seeds of a cabbage which has been a staunch perennial with her. The photos show it to be a sturdy many headed cabbage. Here's hoping it behaves in the same manner here. That and the perennial kale seeds Marge gave me some time ago could save a lot of seed trays and pricking out in the spring.

The garlic cloves I planted in one of the raised beds outside last autumn is dying down. I look forward to lifting them to see what size they have managed to grow to. They will then sit on a bit of mesh in the tunnel to dry off ready to be put away in net bags.

The earwigs are behaving rather strangely this year. It is almost as though something is killing them off. Each time I lift something off the ground and discover some, they die before I can reach for my pest killer gun. Long may this continue.

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.

Mount Kent: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Returning home to St Helena?

Enterprise
St Helena

creating opportunity, enabling growth

With the Airport on schedule to open we are busy training and upskilling anyone who wishes to work in hospitality.

2onMain Restaurant has been set up to provide up-skilling and accredited training in Professional Cookery, Food and Beverage Service and Customer Service to Saints of all ages.

We would like to hear from Saints living and working away from St Helena who are already skilled and working in the Hospitality Industry.

If you think that you have the necessary ingredients to support us here whilst enriching the island's skill base we would love to hear from you

The punishing South Georgia Half Marathon

Micky Sutcliffe, Dickie Hall, Bjorn Basberg, James McKenna, Simon Browning, Matt Phillips, Daniel Johnston and Martin Collins

GIVEN the amount of climbing required by the unforgiving terrain of South Georgia, the King Edwards Point Half Marathon is worthy of an Iron Man Challenge accolade. Eight runners took part in the 13 mile race on January 12 this year. One of the brave runners, Base Commander of the Research Station Dickie Hall, gave Penguin News an insight on the day...

Most of us had not run it before but having done many practice runs it was a nervous start in the knowledge of what was to come. The first kilometre is easy, nice and flat around the cove to Grytviken, the next four kilometres after this though are solidly uphill to the top of Brown mountain at 324 metres (most of this altitude is gained in the fifth km so that is definitely a walking section). From the summit it is a steep and sometimes hair-raising descent back to sea level on the return to KEP.

And this isn't even halfway.

Once you are back to where you started just turn around and head back out. This leg is longer but not so steep and not so much height gain - a mere 200 metres this time. Up and over Lewis Pass down scree and through bog to Maiviken Hut, a circuit of the hut (no time to stop for tea this time) then back up and over the pass. Once you are back at the top it is a relief to know it is downhill all the way from here.

With a blistering pace of 1:53:24 Martin Collins OBE takes the trophy this year, but the exciting part of the race is yet to come with Micky Sutcliffe and Daniel Johnston racing neck and neck to the line. Micky takes second place in 2:06:10 with Daniel just two seconds behind. A great race and some very sore legs the next day.

Winner Martin with the trophy

PO Box 378, Stanley

An exciting opportunity exists to become Executive Secretary to the Falkland Islands Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce represent the majority of private sector business interests in the Falkland Islands.

In this newly created role you shall become involved in a wide range of initiatives, including working with government and NGOs, promoting the Chamber of Commerce and representing the expanding Private Sector Industry. This is a particularly interesting time for the Islands as business opportunities grow and the public and private sectors work together to minimise any negative impacts resulting from a developing oil industry, whilst drawing from the opportunities that present themselves.

This position could suit either full or part time working for the right candidate, and the Chamber Council would be keen to discuss such terms and conditions with the successful applicant.

For an application form, job description and further information please contact Amelia Appleby on 22264 or email manager@commerce.co.fk

Completed application forms and CVs should be received at the address above by midday Friday 31st January 2014.

Argentine policy on Falklands 'is doomed' says FCO Minister

ARGENTINA'S policy of ignoring the views of Falkland Islanders is, "doomed to failure," Minister of State for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Hugo Swire tells Falkland Islanders prior to his visit next week.

In a message to Falkland Islanders via Penguin News Mr Swire said he was honoured to hold Ministerial responsibility for the Falkland Islands, "which has a very special place in the British consciousness and in British history. And next week I am finally able, for the first time, to come down to see the Islands and their people for myself. I could not be looking forward to it more."

Mr Swire said, "these are genuinely historic times for the Falkland Islands. Last year, the people of the Islands made headlines the world over, as pictures of votes being cast in the historic referendum in March were broadcast around the world. With a level of voter turnout that politicians in other democracies around the world can only dream of, the result was a clear expression of your wish to remain an Overseas Territory of the United Kingdom. It sent a resounding message to the world that the Falkland Islands' people exist, that you have a voice, and you must be listened to."

He said it was a pity that the Government of Argentina continued to close its ears to that message, and that, "it seeks to deny your fundamental right to determine your own future. It is shameful that they should make threats against those involved in legitimate economic enterprise or try to harm those seeking mutual trade and prosperity with the Falklands' neighbours."

A nation of some forty million pressuring a community of three thousand in the twenty first century, "is not an edifying sight," he added.

Minister of State for FCO
Hugo Swire to visit next week

"But there is another way," said Mr Swire. "Both the Falkland Islands Government and we ourselves have said we wish to sit down with the Government of Argentina to discuss a range of practical South Atlantic issues, including natural resources, communications and confidence building measures. We believe we have much to talk about, and that there is value for all sides – and for the region – in greater co-operation between us."

He emphasised however that such meetings, cannot, should not, and will not exclude the Falkland Islands Government, "who must be party to any discussions affecting their future."

He believes Argentina should welcome that opportunity, "rather than spurn it. So let me be clear and unambiguous: if the Government of Argentina believes that hostile rhetoric and threats against the livelihoods of the Falkland Islands people will pressure the UK into negotiating the sovereignty of the Falklands – above the heads of the people whose home it is then it is sorely mistaken. The British Government will abide by our responsibilities under the UN Charter to respect your right of self determination. Argentina may continue to choose to ignore the views of the Falkland Islanders, but it is a policy doomed to failure."

The Minister stated that, "despite noises from over the water," the future of the Falklands looks increasingly bright.

He said: "You have a flourishing economy based on fisheries, agriculture and tourism. You have a significant budget surplus and enviable low unemployment. And you are investing, with ever greater success, in the education of your youth to equip them with the right skills in an increasingly complicated but interconnected world."

"In addition to all this you now stand on the brink of great change, as oil production comes closer and closer to reality. I do not pretend that significant challenges do not lie ahead. They do, and these developments will need to be managed carefully. Some difficult decisions will need to be taken. In all of this, though, we will of course continue to stand alongside you."

"If 2012 was about remembering the past, then in many ways 2013 was about stating a vision for the future: a hopeful vision with the next generation at its heart. 2014 will hold challenges as you make important decisions about your future economic development. But the Islands are in an excellent state and I believe you can face the coming years with enthusiasm and confidence. I am delighted that I will see the evidence of this first hand very shortly, and I look forward to getting to know these unique islands for myself."

Farmers urged to plan for less income as wool prices reduce

FARMERS are being urged to plan for income reductions in the order of 15 to 25 per cent for the season's wool production with the potential for more reductions, MLA Phyl Rendell announced in Legislative Assembly last week.

Senior Agricultural Advisor Neil Judd told Penguin News this week that the impact of falling wool prices was understood by many farmers. He said efforts were being made to sustain overall income through continued farm improvement, plus diversification of income through beef production and lamb were being implemented.

Asked about the impact of falling wool prices on new and prospective farmers, he said they were, "strongly supported with contingency planning in an attempt to minimise impact of income falls and also through the Farm Improvement Programme."

He acknowledged however that it was possible to, "imagine that the potential fall in price and wool income may not be fully appreciated by some farmers particularly those less involved in the direct sale of their wool and therefore are less able to make direct date and year price comparisons."

The cause of the drop in the wool price is complex. MLA Phyl Rendell summarised it saying the prices had been, "impacted on by the global economy, the resurgent British economy and struggling Australian economy interacting to place downward pressure on the Falkland Islands wool prices."

Falkland Islands farmers with finer woolled sheep have been averaging around £4.50 - £5.50 per kilogramme clean.

Comment by Editor Lisa Watson

BEARING in mind the mountain of criticism, over many years, aimed at the Falkland Islands Meat Company, the General Manager must have experienced a frisson of satisfaction last week, (were he listening to Legislative Assembly coverage) when his seasonal employment policy was held up to a Public Works Department reeling from labour shortage, as an example to follow.

A seasonal gang of road workers, house builders or any other type of labour required does sound a practical solution. Of course it will cost more but what's the alternative - our infrastructure development grinding to an embarrassing halt just as the oil companies ramp up their operations?

Before the (very likely) long-suffering Housing Officer trots over here and shakes me by the shoulders, it in turn seems to be a reasonable argument for another 30 accommodation units (cost of £1 million on site we are told) to be used in the short term by workers and perhaps in the longer term by young people waiting to raise funds to build their own houses. Oh dear do I hear horrified screams of 'shanty town'?

And on the matter of accommodation was it really in the best interests of Government to have sold Lookout Lodge last year? They might have, as they assured us in mid 2013 achieved 'best value' at the time, but based on current thought processes, a lengthening Housing List and a lack of labour, it could have, had it been retained, proved to be pretty damn priceless.

STILL on the theme of labour shortage it's always odd to hear individuals question the necessity for 'foreign' staff in Stanley's service industry.

Surely it's perfectly clear that without those individuals willing to travel to the Islands and take up the work on offer we'd be spending our days in various outlets around Stanley in some very long queues for a very long time.

The Falkland Islands simply does not have the human resources within to fill service industry employment requirements.

And let's face it, the Falklands isn't everybody's cup of tea. I'm just very grateful it's somebody's.

Planning and regulations

ELEVEN applications were approved and one deferred by the Planning and Building Committee on Wednesday.

An application to locate a Portakabin at Plot 60 Lookout Industrial Estate by Falkland Garage was approved, as was permission to construct an eight by three metre wide concrete car park at No3 H Jones Road by Byron Holdings Ltd to support the approved extension of the building. Head of Environmental Planning Stephen Butler said it was "not ideal" if parking on the street outside of the building on the street was permitted to continue as it obscures the view of cars exiting the car park. Construction of two 60m x 20m steel framed, insulated warehouses at 1-3 Boxer Bridge Road was also permitted for Byron Holdings Ltd.

Approved at the Sapper Hill development was the construction of a one storey dwelling at Plot 9, Rex Hunt Road for Arturo Tellez, and an amendment to Plot 29, Rex Hunt Road to add a porch to the construction of a dwelling with an incorporated garage for Darryl Ford. Construction of a two car garage at 2 Rex Hunt Road was also approved for Vicky Lee.

A garage at 17 James Street was approved for Brian Aldridge, as was outline permission to erect a dwelling at 4 Narrows View for Angela Baber. An outline application to build a two storey house with integral garage at the rear of 5 Villiers Street from Wayne McCormick and Alison Baker was deferred for more information.

All three sites proposed for the Margaret Thatcher Memorial were approved with notes on the suitability of each, and suggested amendments, to be forwarded to the committee in charge of positioning the bust.

Subject to approval from the Historic Building Committee, amendments to the Dockyard site were approved for the Museum & National Trust. However, concerns were raised about whether parking provided on-site was adequate. It was assumed that most visitors would travel to the new museum on foot, but it was agreed visiting coaches should use the nearby Malвина House Hotel drop off area. In addition staff should be advised to use Town Hall parking and seven spaces allocated on-site for public use.

Mr Butler reported amendments to the Planning Ordinance are hoped to be brought to ExCo in March. He said the Falklands had been "internationally criticised" for having weak building regulations, and for its regulations to support preservation of environmentally important habitats. "It all comes down to having a strong EIA (Environmental Impact Assessment) in place," he told the committee.

Concerns within the EIA report and Crown and Camp Development Rights were discussed and moving it forward for public consultation was approved, emphasising the need to reassure Camp residents that any introduced regulations were aimed at preventing "scary development" from big companies who could take advantage of the currently weak regulations, said MLA Poole. It was agreed an extraordinary meeting should be held to digest the large amount of information.

Schools out for ruptured boiler

A RUPTURED flexi coupling to the pressurised heating system within one of the Falkland Islands' Community School plant rooms set off plant room alarms and fire alarms on Wednesday.

A team from the Fire and Rescue Service attended the scene. Due to a potential electrical risk, the power supply to the school and leisure centre was isolated.

Part of the boiler house and the staffroom were affected by water damage resulting from the ruptured coupling.

Children were asked not to return to school that afternoon or the following day.

Headmaster defends Government training programme

COMMUNITY School Headmaster Martin Winward has defended comments made in Penguin News claiming a lack of support for local students pursuing careers in the Falklands.

He said work being carried out in, "skilling up of our future generation of workers," by "colleagues and wider stakeholders," is, "excellent."

Mr Winward states: "The pre-16 programme that currently exists at the Training Centre is a means of preparing young people with vocational skills to clearly map out their skills and competencies in readiness for employed work and further training at 16."

He said the Manager at the Training Centre is working closely with Deputy Headteacher at FICS in reviewing current provision and suitability in readiness for new entrants in June this year. He told Penguin News: "FICS is committed to supporting the Training Centre in matters relating to careers and development of Islanders, he said.

"Engaging employees is key to improvements whilst recognising their needs and constraints. Building on the success of previous individuals who have gained accreditation and gone onto paid employment is where we need to mirror the 'recipe for success' in promoting this offer to others during our recruitment drive."

Mr Winward noted that, "Given the budget cycle still has some way to go before year end we are hopeful that the current recruitment round will see more places being filled and the monies allocated to training for this purpose. The £97,000 figure that was quoted last week is for the Training Centre budget as a whole and much of this sum is committed with a healthy amount still available for new recruits."

MPA thief walks with conditional discharge

MOUNT Pleasant man Gareth Scott Hudson (19) left court on Thursday with an 18 month conditional discharge after he was found guilty of two charges of theft, namely a Samsung mobile phone and a carton of tobacco.

"You're a thief," Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley told him, adding that the sentence was "inappropriate," and did not reflect the gravity of the offence.

Mr Gumsley's efforts to hand down the appropriate sentence of Community Service was thwarted by a lack of provision for work to be carried out at Mount Pleasant, "despite the best offices of Probation Officer Jason Rice," who told the court his attempts to establish such a system had, "fallen on deaf ears."

It was an "entirely unsatisfactory situation," said Mr Gumsley. By law he was unable to impose a harsher sentence and a fine was unrealistic as the defendant was unemployed and had no savings.

A charge of burglary was dropped against the Sodexo employee on Wednesday when it became apparent that a witness statement taken at Mount Pleasant by a reserve police constable with the help of an interpreter did not conform with the Code of Practice adopted by the Royal Falkland Islands Police (RFIP).

Crown Prosecutor Simon Rowe said the RFIP believed codes were in force and had been operating within them, however he accepted procedure had not been followed and he therefore had little confidence in the interview and could offer no evidence on the alleged burglary of a mobile phone. A not guilty verdict was recorded.

Mr Hudson had pleaded guilty to the phone theft at an earlier hearing.

Other issues emerged during the trial for the theft of tobacco which a patron had accidentally left in a plastic bag at the 120 Facility bar at Mount Pleasant on November 22. CCTV footage had been retrieved of Mr Hudson clearing the bar, approaching the bag and for a full minute occupying himself with what the prosecution said was transferring the five packs of tobacco to his pockets. Mr Hudson had claimed he had been checking for his keys and picking up some darts.

However Falklands Legal defence lawyer Simon Crowder acting for Mr Hudson said a "lack of code had been pervasive throughout the entire investigation." Footage which may have allowed further witnesses and evidence to be gathered for the defence had not been viewed by the reserve police officers investigating the case and when they had returned to 120 Facility more than two weeks after the incident it had been automatically over-ridden by the system, argued Mr Crowder. Mr Gumsley accepted there had been a breach of rules, "but not such as to justify abstaining the trial."

Hefty fines for test failure

STANLEY man Macauley John Davis (18) was fined a total of £460, disqualified from driving for two years and ordered to carry out 200 hours community service after he admitted driving without insurance or vehicle licence and failure to provide a specimen of breath.

Crown Prosecutor Simon Rowe said police had been alerted by an anonymous phone call that Mr Davis was drink driving on the night of January 19. Mr Davis pulled up on his own accord on Dean Street soon after midnight with one passenger in the vehicle. Mr Rowe said he refused to leave his vehicle and become obstructive to the police in their duties when arrested and taken to the Police Station.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley said his hands were tied with regard to sentencing as correct procedures had not been followed, there was no pro-forma on file and therefore no evidence that police had warned of the consequences of refusing to provide a breath specimen at the Police Station. Mr Gumsley said he could only sentence on the first refusal and would have to deal more leniently than he would otherwise have done.

Mr Gumsley said he had no doubt Mr Davis had been heavily over the legal limit, adding that if he had taken a test and been within a guideline range he may have only lost his licence for one year. However as there was no way of determining the level of alcohol in his system he was disqualified for two years, so, "trying to get away with it had not worked," he added. A fine of £400 for lack of insurance was imposed and £60 for not having a vehicle licence since October, both of which were calculated to be double the costs of having proper documentation in place.

For choosing to get in a vehicle and drive after drinking and behaving like a "complete and utter idiot," when the police pulled him over, 200 hours of community service was to be carried out, said Mr Gumsley, reminding Mr Davis that this would also have been half if he had provided a specimen when requested. Mr Davis was also ordered to pay £85 prosecution costs.

Three month deferral for drink driver

"I'M still not convinced I shouldn't be locking you up," Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley told Stanley woman Samantha Laura McCormick (21) on Wednesday as he deferred sentencing for three months.

Miss McCormick who has a number of relevant alcohol related convictions stretching back to 2006, had pleaded guilty to drink driving (89.2mg) on December 21 at a previous hearing, when she was banned from driving for three years and the case was adjourned for a pre-sentence report to be prepared.

Miss McCormick agreed to be placed on the Black List (prohibition order) and will undergo a voluntary probation programme with Probation Officer Jason Rice.

Mr Gumsley reminded Miss McCormick that the offence crossed the custody threshold, "without a shadow of doubt," and that she had a lot to thank Mr Rice for, "he is convinced he can do something with you," he said.

Mr Gumsley said he did not believe a word Miss McCormick had said about being committed to changing her lifestyle, adding that he remembered well from her previous cases hearing the same story. "To use a silly slang word, it is all complete tosh," he said.

If Miss McCormick complies with the current orders a non custodial sentence will be handed down at the end of the three months, however lack of compliance will result in the case being re-listed, "and you will go to prison," said Mr Gumsley.

Speeding fine

STANLEY man John Paul Cancino Contreras (25) was fined £170 after he pleaded guilty by post to speeding on the Stanley to Darwin Road. Mr Contreras was recorded travelling at 53 mph by a police officer carrying out static speed checks near the Mount Kent turn-off on January 11. His licence was also endorsed and he was ordered to pay £85 prosecution costs.

Natural death

A VERDICT of death by natural causes was recorded by Her Majesty's Coroner on Monday at the inquest into the death of Thomas Biggs (86)

Mr Biggs was found deceased on October 14, on the floor of his home on Thatcher Drive. No injuries were observed apart from a small abrasion on his head. A post mortem examination established that Mr Biggs had been suffering from heart disease as well as lung inflammation.

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

JUST a quick disclaimer to begin. I write this column to give a sense of some of the things I am thinking about in any given week and some of the more interesting meetings and events. It is certainly not intended to be a comprehensive round up, nor a press release from the Assembly. I'm sure most readers are perfectly aware of that but a couple of my fellow Assembly members apparently have a problem with it, hence this clarification.

IN spite of cancellations of some expected visitors the diary is full again this week including various working groups, a meeting to look at the 'oil readiness' of maritime policies and legislation with visiting consultants and another on the Islands Plan.

My early fear that we may become bogged down in process at the expense of progress has not yet been totally assuaged. I think everyone has had to adjust their expectations somewhat, those who put out more hostages to fortune more so. The stern reality of the potential demands on fairly static revenues is something we all have to work around. I am an incurable optimist so I believe that common sense will prevail and with a bit of pragmatism we will start to make some real progress on priorities no matter how difficult the choices.

PLEASED though I am to get full marks for honesty at the last public meeting I think in fairness that I should point out that when the education and medical services came under a joint director it was a near impossible situation.

This was confirmed in the 'review of the review' commissioned by the last Assembly that had inherited this joint directorate from the previous one. Anyone who had to spend so much time dealing with medical and social services problems clearly would not have the time to dedicate to follow up with our students. Furthermore as previously mentioned for good reasons, MLAs are not involved in appointments to FIG posts although we do have some input in the selection of a Chief Executive and can agree the creation or deletion of posts.

Promoting the Islands we love The Role of Special Advisors

OVER the past two years, the previous Legislative Assembly has steadily increased their Public Diplomacy efforts, including involving members of the public in overseas tours and local media work.

MLA Michael Poole said the current Legislative Assembly is keen to continue involving members of the community in Public Diplomacy undertakings.

"Within this, we hope to work more collaboratively with agencies and organisations within the Islands. We all have the same common goal to promote the Islands that we love, and to make sure our views are represented.

"To reflect how important this work is considered, anyone who chooses to take part will be titled 'Special Advisor' and will be provided with appropriate support," he said.

The role of a Special Advisor will be to represent the community and to promote the Islands. The role can include media work overseas and in the Islands; talking to journalists and other visitors to the Islands, and showcasing what the Falklands is all about.

It may also involve travelling with Assembly Members and/or Officers whilst they are overseas.

Community members will be selected for assignments according to their skills, interests, availability and will be at the ultimate discretion of the leader of the visit.

"MLAs trips are not always constant, and not every Special Advisor will be able to attend every trip," explained MLA Poole.

A short application form has been put together, which covers basic details such as age, current employment and any special skills or interests applicants might have. There is no deadline for expressions of interest, instead it is hoped to achieve a more fluid system where anyone might put themselves forward at a given time, and join a 'pool' of Special Advisors.

Applications forms are available from Emily Hancox and Krysteen Ormond in the Public Relations and Media Office, and having taken part in Public Diplomacy themselves, they are both more than willing to answer any queries you might have about the role.

Call 27400 or email KOrmond@sec.gov.fk for more information.

Consultancy for airlink

FUNDING for a consultancy for Director of Central Services Simon Fletcher to identify an airline which could offer flights to the Falklands that would help to develop tourism has been approved by Executive Council.

MLA Phyl Rendell said this work had been on-going for some time and the Development Corporation had carried out some valuable work on the business case for such a link. Now, she said FIG wanted to move ahead and see what opportunities there are for flights to the Islands.

Tourist Board Chair MLA Michael Poole said the work envisaged would involve looking at how a flight may work; who would run it, where it would operate from, regularity and suchlike.

"It is hoped that this will serve tourism in a number of ways, but also other industries too. The work needs to feed into and out of the work in terms of the Tourism Development Strategy; it's all a bit chicken and egg at this early stage, but we need to start somewhere."

MLA Poole said he was unable to quote the figures budgeted to carry out the consultation as it would reduce FIG's negotiation position.

"For now we are just asking to see if it could be made to work practically. If yes, then more work would be needed, if no, then it puts it to bed for this point in time anyway," concluded MLA Poole.

Oil and tax safeguard

A SAFEGUARD to protect Government against loss of revenue from capital gains tax from oil companies was agreed at Executive Council on January 29.

Companies are currently required to pay a capital gain on farming into a licence and under the current concession they are granted five years or on the production of 'first oil', whichever the sooner, to pay their tax.

The amendment allows companies to defer payments until 'first oil' but require there to be a formal agreement between the company and FIG. It was acknowledged that some companies could not pay the sums in question until production commenced, and this would prevent investment in further exploration and appraisal activities that was not in the national interest.

To Dick with complaints

DICK Sawle has been appointed as Principal Complaints Commissioner by His Excellency the Governor Nigel Haywood. Phyl Rendell stepped down from the post following her election to the Legislative Assembly.

Coin to mark the centenary

EXECUTIVE Council has agreed that a £2 coin will be struck to mark the centenary of the Battle of the Falklands which will be commemorated on and around December 8, this year, pending Royal approval of the design.

Pobjoy Mint has undertaken to supply an initial consignment of 200 coins, free of charge to the Falkland Islands Government, with any additional coins required being invoiced at 50p each.

Pobjoy Mint felt that the occasion justified something more than a commemorative coin and have recommended a circulation coin which should reach a much wider audience.

The design depicts HMS Glasgow in battle, with the wording 'Battle of the Falkland Islands' and the denomination in the surround. The date, 1914, appears in the sea. The submission has been considered by the Commissioners of Currency who are content that the proposal be progressed.

Right to speak at Planning meetings

PROPOSED changes to Falkland Islands Government Planning Ordinance may mean that people will in the future have the right to speak at Planning and Building Committee meetings, if they have written to the Committee about a development.

In future a developer may also be asked to contribute to the cost of related infrastructure such as a road exit.

The public will have a month to comment on the proposals before they are put before the Legislative Assembly.

Posts approved in Government

THE post of Trainee Internal Auditor for two years has been approved by ExCo, funded by the Community Development Scheme. MLAs have also requested that FIG review its policy on the number of contracts an officer can have before going onto local terms, (currently five years) due to the pressures in FIG to recruit and retain staff. Two Marine Ecologist posts have been approved to work on the offshore hydrocarbons gap analysis. These are jointly funded by FIG and the oil companies.

Extreme track for Ponds' motocross

Arthur ahead of Scott and Jay

A NEW event awaited us at the Ponds track last Sunday, as dreamed up by Jay who had been influenced by similar extreme events staged in Wales. With tyre garden, stacked pallets, lorry tyres, chicken runs and a fantastic grass track expertly crafted by Malcolm Ashworth (thanks Malcolm) it made for an altogether fun event.

The day didn't start well with rain, wind and mist, but at least Robert turned up with his new burger van; we weren't going to go hungry. After flashing the van's generator up, the weather turned, bikes, riders and spectators started to arrive and the day looked promising after all.

The Pee Wees and Juniors took to the new course first. Adam Dickson was the only junior, but we had a full field of PeeWee riders with a pair of brand new Hondas in the line up. They comprised two youngsters who had amassed enough brownie points to be awarded big style.

Regan Newman was one such lucky rider whose twin shock Yamaha had almost expired at the Lorenzo event. The effort of nursing a wheezing Yamaha around a track paid off as she recorded two wins on her new bike. Lane McKay, also on a new bike, took to racing in fine style as he logged up second place, a great achievement on his first attempt. Elisha Joshua rode well taking third place. Rebecca Clarke and Kyra Smith both rode with confidence. Travis Jaffray had an unlucky day; he gained a second place in the first race, and a broken bike in the next event. Boys take note; the new generation of motoX riders is made up almost entirely of girls. What's going on?

A packed field of Clubmen lined up for the next race, along with Angeline Joshua and Sian Nightingale.

Setting a blistering speed, Angeline was on a mission. Storming into the lead she set a reckless pace for us all to chase, but this was not the PeeWee class where women rule and it wasn't long before Paul Joshua and Jimmy (no! I'm not sexist) Moffatt thundered past. Both riders vied for the lead in wheel-to-wheel combat with James Tyrrell hard charging in third place. Mark Allen and Gary Tyrrell both gained 14 points towards the championship ratings.

A depleted Expert race it may have been, but it did not dampen the enthusiasm nor the excitement of this senior class. Arthur Turner (with his newly found youth) Jay Moffatt, Scott Henry Roberts and Nathan Lowe never fail to entertain the crowd. Arthur was the first to set the race pace, with Scott and Jay in his wake. For a good few laps it was Scott and Jay eating Arthur's roost, but thinking they should leave some room for a Robert burger. Jay and Scott overtook the old man; Scott giving chase to Jay who made a late dash for the cash.

The last and most popular race of the day is a fun event open to all. The Beer Leg attracts all of the most serious riders as the winner gets a case of Bud. Gary must have been pretty thirsty as he creatively carved out his own track. Not to be outdone, Jimmy on an Adam Dickson sponsored Suzuki, soon found a fast way around Gary. Adam Dickson on a JM sponsored KTM fought a game of attrition with the two cheating bs, but it was Arthur who took the case, with a great end of day win.

A massive thanks to the FIC whose land we raced on, the lap counting girls and officials, Andrew Gowdie for export medical cover and Shane Clarke who spent all day chucking tyres around. Also a big thumbs up to Robert McLeod for the excellent catering he provided.

ASCENSION ISLAND GOVERNMENT

DIRECTOR OF FISHERIES - £42,000 SALARY (£61,000 PACKAGE)

The Government of Ascension Island is seeking a suitably qualified individual to establish and run a new Fisheries Management Programme in Ascension's EEZ.

Ascension is a tiny (34 sq mile) UK Overseas Territory in the South Atlantic with a non-permanent population of 800 people. It provides a base for US and UK military bases, the BBC and Sure South Atlantic Ltd (formerly Cable and Wireless) to undertake activities there in support of national security and communications objectives.

Ascension has a 200 mile Economic Exclusion Zone. The Government has been operating an interim fisheries management process since 2010 which needs to be upgraded to a fully comprehensive, structure, administered by Ascension-based staff. A review is being commissioned to provide options for a new regime which the new Director will implement and manage.

The Role

The successful candidate will undertake the following within the first 2-year contract (see below for contract details).

- Co-ordinate and lead the response to the review recommendations – working closely with the Island's Administrator, Elected Council, Solicitor General, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and relevant stakeholders.
- Implement a comprehensive fisheries management regime, including managing the assessment of fisheries applications and the appropriate issue of licences, appropriate to achieving the long-term sustainable utilisation of Ascension's biological and economic resources.
- Oversee the implementation of a system of effective fisheries regulation to ensure licensed vessel compliance with necessary monitoring and reporting standards and to prevent illegal, unreported and unregulated (IUU) fishing.
- Ensure the fisheries management regime integrates and complies with the requirements of international fisheries management authorities in the administration of the AIG fishery, specifically the International Commission for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (ICCAT).
- Build links with fisheries managers in the Falklands, South Georgia and St Helena and with relevant UK authorities.
- Develop the Fisheries Department on Ascension – maximising value for money and synergy with other departments, especially the Conservation Team.
- Ensure synergy with ongoing Darwin Funded Biodiversity Action Plan work led by the Conservation Department.
- Act as liaison with Ascension's tiny domestic fisheries sector, and the developing tourism-based interest in accessing the Island's inshore potential (i.e. sports, spear and rock fishing)

Qualifications, Qualities and Skills

Candidates should possess the following:

- Proven experience and/or good understanding of fisheries management principles, techniques and regulatory procedures:
 - o Including (but not limited to); the identification of appropriate quota limits, vessel inspection procedures, deployment of fisheries observers, monitoring and reporting systems for catch validation and remote monitoring techniques and capabilities (VMS).
- Experience of the development of emerging fisheries, including sports fisheries.
- Understanding of relevant national and international legal requirements, procedures and investigations, or a wide understanding of the key issues relating to the same.
- Financial appraisal, modelling and forecasting skills.
- Strong interpersonal skills, and developing partnerships and relationships with stakeholders from elected officials to NGOs.
- A self-starter, effective leader and manager.
- Strong communications skills
- Proven experience of working within a public service environment, providing support to senior managers, elected Councillors, policy development and budget management.
- Strong personal resilience attributes – Ascension is a remote Island, with a small community. The job holder will be a senior manager on Island with a recognised local profile.

The Package

We offer an initial 2-year contract with a competitive salary of £42,000 (taxable on Ascension Island). All contracts on Ascension must be limited to a period of roughly 2 years. They are renewable. In addition, the successful applicant will receive benefits to an estimated value of £19,000 including:

- Fully maintained and expensed car
- One mid-contract return airfare to the country of recruitment/residence for the family
- Rent-free housing, with electricity and water allowances
- Free schooling for dependent children up to 16
- Free medical care, dental care and optician services
- A terminal gratuity on satisfactory contract conclusion

An application form and recruitment pack can be obtained from Director of Human Resources, Alan Nicholls (alan.nicholls@ascension.gov.ac).

Applicants who wish to discuss the position further may speak to the Island's Administrator, Colin Wells. To make an appointment for a consultation contact his PA Nicola Dillon (nicola.dillon@ascension.gov.ac, tel 00-247-7000 Ext 100).

Applications must be received by Alan Nicholls (alan.nicholls@ascension.gov.ac) by no later than 21 February 2014. [Interviews will be undertaken in London during the week beginning 3 March 2014.]

Veterans thank Islanders

WITH regard to our recent visit to the Falkland Islands by myself, James Peters and Andrew Malcolmson who is the brother of Guardsman David Malcolmson (KIA).

We wish to express our appreciation to all Islanders and in particular to: Penguin News who raised the awareness of our visit together with our association with The Falkland Islands 1st Cubs and Scouts.

Sheila and Ian Stewart for their seemingly limitless hospitality, a position which was also shared with Jan and Tim Miller who organised the meeting aloft Tumbledown with the boys, girls and staff of the Cubs and Scouts. Tim also spent many hours driving the party to all locations of our desire as far west as Ajax Bay.

Patrick Watts was invaluable on Tumbledown with his knowledge, patience and understanding of our own contribution. Without the help of this fine man, we would have indeed struggled to make sense and identify the geography and defined locations which were our primary objective.

FITV and their reporter, Josh, who delivered a selfless service by the coverage and pertinent questions they sought to obtain from us in a manner most professional.

Ellen Davis who looked after us at Liberty Lodge. Ellen does indeed possess a talent which is either natural or borne from experience of our veterans which allows her to reach out to individuals and put them at ease.

Kevin Kilmartin and his wife Hattie of Bluff Cove displayed such instant warmth to our party that their appreciation made the trip to their farm, unforgettable.

We cannot fully put to the written word what needs to be expressed. The Islanders should feel extremely proud of the distinct fashion in which you serve us on our return.

Multiculturalism is not the answer

THIS letter is a response to Graham Bound's article in the PN dated January 10.

As usual middle class men in suits like MPs (especially MPs and journalists) have totally got it wrong. The problem is not race, but multiculturalism. Bounders thinks like most suits that it is the same thing. I will remind you Mr Bound that British people were never asked in this pinnacle of so called democracy if they wanted to live in a multicultural society. After all "Britain is not a democracy" it likes to think it is. It should be called an Estates General. You cannot vote for the Head of State, you cannot vote for the House of Lords, the plebiscite can only vote for one third of their legislature, hence not a democracy.

How is it that the last Labour government had only 11 million votes out of a nation of 60+ million? One eminent Conservative MP stated that Britain benefits from doctors and nurses from the Indian sub-continent in that the British do not have to pay for their training and education. My simple question is who does pay for that training? I would suggest that the people who pay are the poor people of the world. Let's face it, doctors and nurses are needed more in the Indian sub-continent than in Britain. The next questions is where do British medical professionals go? I would suggest to you that they go to the USA, Canada and Australia where salaries and conditions are better. So, in short, the best off pay the least, the lesser off pay less and developing countries pay the most. Typical West hypocrisy!

On a related point that I also find extremely vexing; how can Britain be a sovereign state when it cannot decide its own laws; they are decided in Brussels? What then is use of Home Secretary Theresa May and while I'm at it, what use is the Foreign Secretary William Hague when all British foreign policies are decided in Washington?

The main point I am trying to make is that man is a pack animal. The West does not recognise this and we must ensure that we do not fall into the same trap. Most of the troubles we are seeing in the World today have been created by Imperial Power "East and West" forcing different cultures together. For instance the carve up of Africa dividing people from different cultures against their will by the West and dividing up the Ottoman Empire in 1919. Many years ago a Tory MP made a prediction that "there would be rivers of blood," in Britain, which was greeted with hails of derision from all sides of the House. I would controversially suggest that Enoch Powell was correct. It had already been started with a trickle, the trickle being PC Keith Blake having his head chopped off on the Broadwater Estate, Brixton. More recently we have all seen the terrible hacking to death of poor fusilier Lee Rigby on the streets of his own capital and that is purely the result of multiculturalism. I strongly suggest that we the Falkland Islands, an embryonic nation, get it right and learn from the mistakes of others. I believe that we should have immigration from the UK, English speaking people, St Helena and indeed the rest of the English speaking world. With respect to South Americans in general, I do not believe that we should have an influx of Spanish speaking people because "our friends" whose name escapes me, will claim that we have a Latin culture, legitimising part of their sovereignty claim.

So Mr Bound I hope you get the point of this letter. The last time I walked on the streets in Deptford, East End of London I was met literally by hundreds and hundreds of Vietnamese boat people. I have many great memories of growing up there. I am now a complete foreigner in my own town.

How a close community has been totally destroyed due to an immigration policy.

Your questions answered

Q As Stanley is the main residence for Camp constituency MLA Phyl Rendell who is also currently on the Stanley electoral role, are FIG paying travel costs to her secondary residence of Bleaker Island on a weekly/regular basis as happens with the other Camp MLAs whose primary residence is in Camp?

The Clerk to the Legislative Assembly, Claudette Prior MBE provided the following response...

A Under the terms of the Member's Remuneration Ordinance an MLA is entitled to claim reimbursement of any sums reasonably and actually spent on travel expenses within the Falkland Islands provided such travel is undertaken wholly and exclusively in connection with Assembly duties.

MLA Rendell is treated no differently from other MLAs in regard to her expenses claims. MLA Rendell does not claim in respect of accommodation while she is in Stanley, however, she does claim for flights to and from Bleaker Island if she returns at the weekend.

Q What are the rules for portfolio holders' having to declare an interest and if their spouse has a commercial interest in an industry are they able to lead on that department?

A There are detailed rules concerning the declaration of interests by MLAs and these are set out in the Legislative Assembly Standing Rules and Orders.

They include a requirement that MLAs declare the name of companies in which the MLA or spouse/partner has a beneficial shareholding of a nominal value greater than 1 per cent of the issued share capital or more than £25,000. In addition MLAs are required to declare any relevant interest which might reasonably be thought by others to influence his or her actions, speeches or votes etc even if the MLA receives no financial benefit.

Declarations of interest are a matter for individual MLAs as is whether having declared an interest, they continue to take a part in any proceedings or deal with any matters relating to an issue in respect of which they have declared an interest.

Tracing the family of Mary Toone

I AM trying to trace the family of Mary Toone, who I believe recently passed away in Southampton, England. I have been friends with Geoff and Mary for over twenty years, ever since they lived in Grimsby, Lincolnshire and they ran the Seaman's Hostel there. After they moved back to Southampton, we corresponded usually twice a year and when I didn't hear from her this Christmas, I checked the Southampton newspapers and found her obituary. I know that Mary was from the Falkland Islands and she had a sister who used to work at Government House.

My brother, who is David Whitney met her when he was working there between 1988-1992. Whilst there, my brother obtained a Wreck Map for Mary, from John Smith, Curator of the Museum, to bring back for Mary, which John signed, and he mentioned at the time that he knew Mary also.

I was very sad to hear of Mary's death and hope that Mary's sister or family might see this and contact me as I would like to know about the last few months of Mary's life, if that is possible with your very kind assistance.

Reports from the Legislative Assembly

Where they stand on MST

MEMBERS of the Legislative Assembly aired their sometimes opposing views on the matter of the potential abolition of Medical Services Tax (MST) at last week's Meeting of the Assembly.

MLA Michael Poole created the opportunity with the Motion that it was in the "public interest," for individual members to indicate their initial views prior to the final budget deliberations on the issue of MST.

He drew attention to MST being a "key campaign issue in November." It was discussed shortly after the election with the Financial Secretary tasked to consider ways it might be removed. Ultimately it was agreed at a meeting of Executive Council that it would be sensible to look at the issue within the budget process. He explained that this was primarily because MST would raise roughly £9 million over the next five years, a total of about 3.5 per cent of Government revenue.

MLA Poole said a debate would be useful in that it would show where MLAs currently stood on the issue and would also create an understanding of how their minds might be changed, "during the budget process either by our colleagues or by officers' input as well."

His own personal view at that point said MLA Poole was he would like it removed and, "to see a budget that helps the lower earners in our community more than possibly previous budgets have."

"Firstly I think the tax hurts those people that we want to help the most, lower earners, self employed people and small businesses," said MLA Poole. He also felt MST had been misrepresented to the people.

Its removal would fulfil some campaign promises, "that a number of us made," he said, but acknowledged that if it was removed the £9 million gap would have to be "bridged."

MLA Bary Elsby agreed describing it as a very, "unfair tax, it's unjust and it needs to be changed such that the majority of people do not pay it."

He said MST was created when Government needed the money but the current Government was in a different situation, "where we are not struggling to balance the books as they were," but commented that the decision was flawed and that the natural way would have been to adjust income tax to avoid the poorest members of society being targeted (MST means tax on the first £1 earned).

He noted that Government had already changed the situation by introducing a £15,000 threshold for MST from the beginning of this tax year. He indicated further options might include either abolishing it entirely or, "increase that threshold even more perhaps to £40,000 or £50,000."

MLA Rendell agreed Members had listened to the Financial Secretary's recommendation that the issue should be examined during the budget round, rather than have, "a knee jerk reaction," following the election. At the same time she said she was, "still strongly opposed to this tax even though the threshold has been raised to £15,000 and many of the less well off fall out of it."

She described it as, "employment tax," and was, "minded to see it removed completely," and also asked her colleagues, "to consider it carefully," during the budget.

MLA Michael Poole
MST "hurts those we want to help the most"

"and I hope we can remove this tax and look at gaining revenues from other sources."

MLA Hansen stated that his views had not changed and he too was very keen to abolish it or set it to zero per cent, but also recognised it required proper discussion.

MLA Edwards said he did not want MST to be abolished, "but perhaps we can reduce the rate to zero. I am happy for it to be discussed in the Budget Select Committee, that's where it should be discussed; in the round."

MLA Cheek felt the decision should be made, "when we have all the facts," in the budget round.

She said even after raising the threshold to £15,000 it still raised a substantial amount of revenue.

"If we are to totally remove it then we need to find a significant sum to substitute that. We are nowhere near balancing the budget at the moment without it. So not to look at it in the round would be irresponsible."

She agreed one of the options might be to raise the threshold further, but said she had been a bit disturbed by suggestions about raising MST to £4,000.

"It might look as though Members don't want to pay it. Perhaps they don't," she said.

MLA Cheek said the best way to assist the less well off was to, "complete the work on what is a genuine living wage and then match the minimum wage to that. Self respecting people don't want concessions or handouts they want to be able to earn a decent wage and pay their way."

MLA Gavin Short was as adamant as always on the issue of MST. "I don't have a problem paying it."

He said he had been paying it before some of the Honourable Members were born and even then, "I had no problem as a young person paying this."

He suggested that bringing the subject up at this point was akin to those countries that asked a question again and again until they received the answer they wanted. He argued the hospital was not going to cost less as time went on it was going to cost more. "And be very careful what you do or you are going to have to start taking money away from other things we really want to be doing as well," he said.

MLA Poole concluded: "Sometimes we are a little bit conservative in our budgets. Government does have a healthy bank balance I think we can afford to give something back to the community."

"This is an easy and simple way to do it if we were to set MST to zero from an agreed date hopefully at some point this year, so I appreciate everybody's views and I look forward to those discussions."

Labour shortage brings mounting pressure

EVERY department within Government Public Work is feeling the impact of a labour shortage. MLA Gavin Short made clear in his portfolio report at last week's meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

He said in the past government had just enough staff to, "do what we were tasked with," but now they were around twenty people short and this was, "shaping what we can and can't do."

Apart from two people the Camp road gang has been removed from West Falklands in order to work on the Port Louis section of the road on East Falklands.

He said the water section was also suffering quite badly but should there be a major mains fail, "we do have a plan B."

Pipelines for the new water source were to be laid by PWD but lack of man power has meant this will be contracted out.

The same applies to the, "new mains to Gordon Lines," and this should be completed prior to the beginning of the next oil round.

He assured that Government had enough people for this season's Asphaltting.

The Power and Electrical Department were short staffed also and pressures were mounting said MLA Short, adding with regard to all departments: "We either have to find ways to back fill posts that are vacant or find other ways that works get done."

He said they were looking at ways to get labour into the Falklands to fill posts and hoped by next summer to make meaningful progress especially on Camp tracks.

MLA Edwards urged the Transport Advisory Committee to meet early and form long term plans and, "forward the appropriate funding necessary to the Budget Select Committee so that it can be taken properly into account."

MLA Elsby suggested that like FIMCo (Meat Company) using seasonal workers a road gang could be brought in from South America. MLA Short agreed and said this had been raised.

In her Motion for the Adjournment speech MLA Rendell also expressed her disappointment that West Roads work was not continuing for now, saying Government needed to out-source. We need to privatise, and give companies longer contracts so that they have the confidence to buy the machinery and do these projects for us, said MLA Rendell.

She also felt FIG should look at bringing in a workforce, saying that it had been done in the past.

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Bands:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.

Lower Plants Project Officer
Based in Stanley, Falkland Islands
Starts from 1 April 2014 for up to two years
Salary: £21,000pa

Falklands Conservation is looking for a degree level botanist with practical experience of plant surveys to implement a new (Darwin Plus funded) lower plant conservation project in the Falkland Islands. Working closely with UK and local partners, the successful candidate will have excellent communication skills, be happy working in a remote and sometimes challenging environment and have experience of monitoring techniques and data management. Knowledge of the Falklands, familiarity with lower plants and GIS are desirable but training will be provided. Falklands Conservation is willing to consider secondment arrangements. A full job description and an application form may be obtained by e-mailing: adminofficer@conservation.org.fk
Closing date for applications: noon (FI time) Friday 21 February 2014.

Conservation Officer
Based in Stanley, Falkland Islands
Permanent post starting from May 2014
Salary: £27,000 to £29,400pa based on experience

Falklands Conservation is looking for an experienced conservation professional to lead its research, monitoring and site management work. The ideal candidate would have a relevant PhD and 3+ years' relevant professional experience in conservation including managing research & monitoring programmes, project management, data management, experience of writing scientific publications and official reports, and successfully applying for grants. A full job description and an application form may be obtained by e-mailing: adminofficer@conservation.org.fk
Closing date for applications: noon (FI time) Friday 21 February 2014.

Warm up for the Falklands Cup

A SMALLER than usual field of 12 golfers turned out for Captain's Day on Sunday, January 26. Those that did sign in were quick to don waterproofs before heading out.

The weather quickly turned more favourable and despite some light showers there was an enjoyable morning of golf.

Kevin Clapp continued his run of form from the previous weekend and emerged as the winner with a solid 37 points.

In second place came Troyd Bowles with 36 points, ahead of wife Sarah who narrowly beat Ian Stewart on a count back, both with 35 points.

With the Falklands Cup looming in the not too distant future it did not go unnoticed (by the Kelpers at least) that first, second and third places all went to Kelpers XI players.

Last Sunday, February 2, the Decor Services sponsored Monthly Medal was competed for between a more usual number of 18 in the field, including some new players from Mount Pleasant Complex.

The sun made a rare appearance and even the wind dropped below the usual gale force that appears each Sunday.

Ian Stewart played a very solid round of golf and was the winner with a gross score of 73, nett 65.

Second place went to regular visitor from MPC, Joe Duncan whose round of 75, nett 67 included an impressive three birdies.

Stanley Golf Club wishes to thank Decor Services for their continued sponsorship of the Monthly Medal competitions.

The captains of the Falklands Cup teams, Roy Smith for the Kelpers XI and Ian Stewart for the Presidents XI, announced their three picks as follows: Rodney Lee, Tony McMullen and Tim Bonner for the Kelpers (with Ieuan Ford as reserve) and Gary Clement, Drew Irvine and Rod Tuckwood for the Presidents (with Graeme Hay as reserve).

This weekend, February 8 and 9, is the much anticipated Stanley Open, kindly sponsored by Consultancy Services Limited, to be played for over two days.

Sign in is at 1:45pm for a 2pm tee off on Saturday.

Strong support from Uruguay

A PUBLIC opinion poll held in Uruguay recently revealed 80 per cent of the population supported developing commercial and cultural exchanges with the Falkland Islands according to a visiting delegation of Uruguayan parliamentarians.

The group, invited to the Islands by the Falklands' Government, highlighted common interests in fisheries, hydrocarbons, tourism and culture, viewing them as areas to be developed.

Member of the House of Representatives and Chairman for International Affairs, Jaime Trobo emphasised the need to "bring closer countries which are neighbours; to understand each other and exchange ideas."

"What we are longing for is to get on a plane at Montevideo and in two and a half hours be walking on Stanley waterfront," said Mr Trobo.

Following discussions with Falklands' business people the parliamentarians felt Uruguay might aspire to provide 60 per cent of Falklands imported goods.

In a press conference on Thursday they also stated they were here, "defending our right to integrate with you... The fact that we are here is a clear sign of that."

Speaking of the Argentine problem they said Islanders should, "construct a strong lobby," to promote their interests into the South American region.

They said as a result of this visit a friendship group would be established in Uruguay and they hoped one would be created in the Falklands, for conversations and cultural exchanges encouraging positive relations.

Daniel Mañana of the National Party for Rio Negro complimented Islanders on the "great organisation" of health, infrastructure and education and in promoting the commercial potential of a small country.

Argentina should co-operate with Falklands hydrocarbons development says Minister

AN incoming Argentine president will realise the policies as carried out by the current Argentine Government, "have been counter-productive and have not achieved anything and they should be looking towards the prosperity of their own people," Minister of State for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Hugo Swire told a press conference held at Government House on Wednesday.

He said if Argentina wished to address those problems, "part of that should be cooperating with the economic expansion of its neighbours, the Falkland Islands."

Mr Swire emphasised that the British Government would like to see companies from all around the world taking part in hydrocarbons development in the Falklands, "including Argentina."

He said: "It is not the Falkland Islanders who are preventing it, it is one country who is trying to prevent other countries from getting involved and they won't be successful."

As soon as one company discovers a viable find of oil in the Falklands, "I think you will find other companies will come here," he added. Mr Swire said it was testament to the companies already in the Islands developing hydrocarbons, and those that want to come that they, "are not prepared to be bullied by Argentina."

Asked whether he saw the involvement of American companies as helping in securing the Islanders rights to self determination, Mr Swire said he did not see those rights as, "under threat." The people of the Falkland Islands, "have spoken very very clearly," and the, "great majority of the international community accept that, he added.

'Inflexible' housing policy questioned

THE subsidising of plots of land by Government for first time buyers is acknowledged as generous, but the requirement not to sell or rent the property in the first ten years, or else trigger a repayment of the subsidy, is off-putting, say some potential buyers.

With first time buyers tending to be young, not being able to rent out their home, (which brings a commitment to remain in the Islands for ten years, thus reducing freedom to study or travel within that time) is felt to be discouraging.

Penguin News approached MLA Mike Summers on the subject and he explained the policy was introduced following the East development of Stanley some years ago in order to, "protect against individuals profiting from the subsidy available for some buyers."

He agreed however, in the case of leasing for a determined period there should be room for some flexibility.

Potential buyers approached by Penguin News agreed they did not expect to profit from the subsidy by sale, but the ruling was highly restrictive.

MLA Summers agreed that relaxing the policy on buyers made sense if it would benefit the Islands as a result of Islanders, "taking a year or two out to study at a university," for example.

He also clarified that the current policy restricts the lease of a property but does not restrict the house owner from taking in a lodger.

Any changes would need to be researched further, and if introduced, would be carried out retrospectively and apply to those subsidised plots already agreed upon, said MLA Summers.

Speaking of housing in general, he added that at a recent Housing Committee of February 5, it had been agreed that a more, "strategic view on housing," should be taken that supported local need and ensured houses allocated for the local pool were not overlooked.

Comment by Editor Lisa Watson

THE philosopher Voltaire's musing: "I may not agree with what you have to say, but I'll defend to the death your right to say it," is admirable however there are moments when I can sympathise with science fiction writer John Scalzi: "If you want me to treat your ideas with more respect, get some better ideas." Because there are times when one knows with absolute certainty that another's ideas are horrifically, scarily wrong.

One of those is the (hopefully minority) view that some teenage minors subjected to sexual abuse from adults should, "take some responsibility," for what they have been, or may be, subject to.

Bearing in mind the very robust comments on the matter from the Senior Magistrate over past months, one might confidently assume he has educated to the contrary, the minds of the ignorant or misguided. Unfortunately having heard stories of alternative opinions recently it seems that is still not the case.

If Mr Gumsley will forgive my paraphrasing his comments, a child is a child by law and it is incumbent on the adult to take responsibility for his actions.

A child is also a child by nature: a product of society, upbringing, peer pressures and vulnerable to all of the confused and turbulent feelings characteristic of that age, and as such must be protected by law. And in turn if an older man cannot 'control' himself in the face of underage teenage sexuality then that man must be removed from temptation and from society.

On a more positive note, the aforementioned unpalatable opinion seems restricted to only a few, and we must hope that the recent spotlight on the subject of paedophilia (and I have only referred in this column to one small part of the subject) which has lead to a great deal of debate about the matter, alongside the planned Government education programme and advertising campaign, will mean it will be confined to even fewer.

A FaceBook friend reporting this week that he had started his evening interpreting for a Minister of State and ended it cooking in the Vic Bar, summed up how life in the Falklands has a tendency to keep a person well and truly grounded. A parallel experience involved me feeling a bit posh one evening while dining next to a Lord of the realm. I felt a little less grand crawling out of bed at 6.30am next morning in order to complete my Penguin News paper round. If you'll forgive the vulgar turn of phrase, to be 'up yourself' in the Falklands takes an awful lot of effort.

Byron Heights clean-up follows fuel spill

THOUSANDS of litres of diesel spilled on to Byron Heights on West Falklands last week, following a rupture to a pipeline pumping the fuel from a sea-level pumping station to fuel storage tanks on the Ministry of Defence facility on the mountain.

During refuelling last Tuesday, a rupture in the pipeline was identified, resulting in the loss of fuel into the surrounding peat. Initial assessments of the incident were delayed by poor weather conditions on the mountain. MoD and Falkland Islands Government environmental officers travelled to the area, and met with local landowners to discuss the situation and proposed remediation measures.

MoD personnel found the rupture and pipework was replaced. A further section was also replaced as a precautionary measure.

A series of trenches were dug to minimise the distance the diesel could travel, and equipment has been put in place to collect and remove as much of the spilled fuel as possible, including multiple booms on the watercourse.

Head of FIG Environmental Planning, Steve Butler visited Dunbar Farm with the MoD on Wednesday to liaise with the land owners and ensure that they were made aware of the approach to the clean-up operation. They discussed concerns and suggestions for how events could be avoided and addressed in the future.

Yesterday the MoD confirmed that Interserve Ltd personnel continued to work on the extended fuel pipeline, supported by a works party from the Welsh Guards, who will remain during the re-commissioning of the fuel line.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Lease applications for plots at Murray Heights

THE Falkland Islands Government would like to invite lease applications for the mobile home plots at the new Murray Heights South site. The plots are available to individuals and businesses for owner occupation, sub letting or employee accommodation.

Applications will be received on a first come first served basis with final plot allocation being completed monthly.

Full details of the application process including costs, park layouts, plot sizes and how the applications will be processed are available with the application forms from the main office PWD during normal working hours from Monday 17th February 2014.

Andy Trish with a happy group of students and staff at Stanley House

Helpful hero Andy donates technology to school children

1982 VETERAN Andy Trish has personally delivered to the Islands a mass of technology and software to benefit Camp school children.

The unassuming hero told Penguin News the inspiration to help use his wealth to improve the opportunities already provided at Camp Schools followed a visit to Goose Green School two years ago.

During that visit, which was purposefully aligned to mark the beginning of the 1982 War, he had met a lot of friendly people and in particular the Camp children and said it was because of them that he enjoyed every single minute of his trip and was enthusiastic to give something back.

Mr Trish built up his computer company NCI Technologies from his home and now employs 35 staff with an annual turnover of £3 million.

Alongside the Belling Trust he has been involved in schemes that make similar donations in the UK that amass to around £150,000 every year. "I asked the Trust if we could do something in the Falklands, they did some checking of the rules to make sure they could and we got the venture moving." They collected a lot to donate but keen to give more, Mr Trish set out to raise more.

In total, he collected around £15,000 of technology for Camp students and £20,000 of software which can be used at all the schools.

Mr Trish has spent the week visiting North Arm, Goose Green and Fox Bay schools to deliver four laptops to each and each Camp school is to receive the same.

At a presentation ceremony at Stanley House on Wednesday evening he met with students and parents, some of whom he had met on his previous trip he and his "mad welshman" companion tried to take them on in a game of football.

"I went away and raised some money for you," he told the Stanley House students, adding "unfortunately I've spent it."

He then revealed to the they now had four laptop computers, an interactive projector and a Wii U console with controllers, games and all with software and set up included.

"You can use it for school stuff or for play stuff. It's all for you" he said and joked, "just please don't ask me to play football again."

During his trip he had identified another need and said this was only the beginning of his involvement with complimenting the IT available at the schools of the Falklands.

The children have again made it a very worthwhile experience for Andy. "I've been involved in schemes like this before, but this is the best reaction I've had so far" he said.

Drink driver rushes to pub after crash

STANLEY woman Lynn Jane Summers (38) was remanded in custody on Tuesday after she was found guilty of three charges; driving under the influence, causing an accident and failing to report an accident.

The offences occurred on December 9, and the case had gone to trial after the defendant persistently denied the offences.

After hearing evidence from four witnesses, the defendant, and statements presented by Crown Prosecutor Simon Rowe, Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley said he was satisfied Miss Summers had driven the off-duty taxi after consuming, "a number of vodkas and umpteen beers" and had also "rushed to the Globe for a drink" after crashing her vehicle into a parked car, and had therefore caused and failed to report an accident.

Mr Gumsley said the Camic breathalyser reading of 148.9 mg of alcohol in 100mls (35 mg is the legal limit) of breath was the second highest reading he had ever seen, and told Miss Summers the charge of drink driving was, "seriously aggravated by the damage caused to another vehicle and by you trying to cover your tracks."

He said there was a risk she would go out and, "get tanked up and cause another incident," and should be remanded in custody. "The evidence had been 'overwhelming,'" said Mr Gumsley adding that Miss Summers "was delaying the inevitable" by denying the charges.

Following the preparation of a pre-sentence report, Miss Summers will be sentenced on March 7.

After the trial, Mr Gumsley said the actions of Stanley resident George Toolan who had notified the owner of the vehicle hit by Miss Summers, and promptly called the police, was worthy of a commendation for doing the right thing.

Chief Medical Officer resigns

ANGELA Rowlands, the Chief Medical Officer at King Edward Memorial Hospital, has tendered her resignation and will be leaving later in the year.

Graeme Jackson, Director of Human Resources said: "We will be sorry to lose Angela who has chosen to leave for personal reasons."

"As part of the succession planning process for the hospital we will be recruiting for a number of positions over the next few weeks with the aim of ensuring continuity of service for the community."

Prevent child abuse through education

A FAMILY Assistance Order has been made public, with the leave of the judge and the family involved, which criticises private fostering arrangements made for a child who subsequently witnessed sexual abuse of another child, and later care of the child by the Crown and Social Services.

Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley reflected on, "the lack of checks and assessments carried out on such an arrangement, it apparently not being felt necessary by the Crown to have any form of social services consideration of what were clearly informal foster arrangements. Although hindsight is a wonderful matter, I cannot but reflect that had such simple and obvious procedures been in place we may not be here today."

He also criticised the resulting rehousing of the child without adequate checks of the household once the child had given evidence to the police on the matter and noting that, "she was effectively left without adequate support; support she should have been given by any competent depart-

The child referred to as 'C' to prevent identification, is highly commended by the Senior Magistrate in his report for her bravery in alerting others to what she had seen. He said he was extremely pleased to see the child's parents had now felt able to tell of their pride in her for doing the right thing and was equally pleased to note a letter from the family with whom she lodged, "late as it may have been coming, thanking her for what she has done."

Following lengthy criticisms of the Crown and Social Services for inadequate care of the child during proceedings he commented however: "I am pleased that recent improvements in social work practice have resulted in attention being afforded to C and her situation being given priority by the authorities. All is far from resolved in Social Services but the commitment of the staff there now is a clear beacon of hope in what has hitherto been a foggy department."

He said improvements in Social Services had given him, "confidence to conclude that problems will now be spotted and worked through and that the assistance that has been promised will be provided."

As part of his conclusion he added that the Government had promised that, "in relation to the attitudes that were displayed to C and her family by some in the community, and in respect of the knowledge or apparent lack of it, of children and their parents about sexual abuse, that there is to be an education programme and/or an advertising campaign to let the whole community know about these matters and understand them more fully."

He said: "Vigilance through a proper understanding brought about by education is perhaps the greatest hope that a society has to defeat, in so far as it is possible, the behaviour of paedophiles which seems to be so worryingly prevalent in the Falklands. I hope, I can only hope, that the education programme promised will in fact be delivered."

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

WE have very welcome visitors this week, including 'our' Minister whose visit coincides with that of the four politicians from Uruguay. They have braved howls of disapproval from their neighbours in Argentina to visit. It's good to know that there are politicians in South America who will not allow themselves to be dictated to by a neighbouring country whose leaders have colonial designs on our country. We have had an opportunity to exchange views with them and they have a very full programme for the rest of their visit.

WE joke about the visiting season in summer which keeps us especially busy. Visits in winter are less frequent for the very good reason that if possible and practical it is good for visitors to see the Islands at their best and get a sense of the size of the country and its many different parts. If we can't fully win them over by arguing self-determination and logical truth then the friendly people and wildlife can complete the conversion.

OTHER meetings in a very full week include a discussion of ways to change the format of Assembly meetings in order to facilitate more debate. A number of the proposed changes, for example the portfolio reports, can be done under current Standing Rules, others will require some changes. We have a pre Exco meeting to review the very small number of papers coming to the mid-month meeting. The plan is that more frequent meetings will prevent delays in getting Executive Council agreement on policy papers and any urgent matters. On Thursday we have a half day session of media training, always a chance to learn new techniques to get our messages out. Also on Thursday I fill a short slot in the induction programme for new FIG staff to give an outline of the role of Legislative Assembly and Executive Council in the government structure. On Friday, which in theory at least was to be a day for constituency work I have a morning meeting related to part of my portfolio and in the afternoon chair a meeting of the Development Board.

Your questions answered

Q What is the current total of the outstanding invoices due to Government from unpaid Port and Harbour dues, and any other marine related invoice/s issued by FIG?

The following responses were provided by FIG Financial Accountant, Claire Mitchell...

A The January 2014 debtors' figures have not yet been collated, however in order to ensure an efficient reply could be provided, the figures in the table below are as at 31 December 2013. It should be noted that FIG's invoice terms are 30 days, therefore any amounts included within the current category are not considered to be outstanding, but have been included here for completeness. It should also be noted that the payment for the fishing licence debt of £825,099.80 was received by FIG in early 2014.

Q What is the average annual income from port and harbour dues and marine related industry. Is the 4-6 months and older debt of £546,000 due to a large number of businesses or is there one business/company that owes a significant amount; if the latter how much of the total owed is attributable to them?

A The actual annual income on a resource basis from the marine related industry, including port and harbour dues, for 2013 was circa £24 million.

The Falkland Islands Government Access to Information Code of Practice governs FIG's policy on providing access to information and responding to requests for information. Appendix One of the Code of Practice clarifies 'exempt' information, the release of which, is not considered to be in the public interest. This includes: 'Information about the financial or business affairs (or the contemplated financial or business affairs) of a particular person ...'

As such FIG cannot provide any further detail in relation to the amount of outstanding debtors as at 31 December 2013.

Q How much is owed to FIG from outstanding invoices issued by KEMH for unpaid medical fees originating from the Marine Industry?

A As at 31 December 2013 £128,092.64 was owed to FIG in relation to unpaid medical fees originating from the marine industry. This includes £2,091.60 as current debtors.

Q Of the Falkland Landholdings (FLH) 2012/13 clip sold through the Wool Company and shipped to Central Lanera, Uruguay:

What are the current losses on valuation and what efforts have FLH made to obtain the wool's full worth from the Wool Company?

FLH Manager Owen Summers replied...

A When FLH decided to commit some of its wool to Central Lanera it was selected from lots where half could be sold conventionally and the other half through Central Lanera for tops. There were differences in timing of sales and micron and once adjusted to take both into account to compare like with like the difference in value was £6,975 which over 20,848 kg equates to a potential loss of 33p greasy (approximately 47p clean).

FLH only committed 4.2 per cent of its entire clip to this trial and is not claiming for loss of earnings against the Wool Company as it was fully aware of the potential risks or gains.

Correction

LAST week we reported MLA Mike Summers laying a wreath in New Zealand in honour of Private Richard Absolon as the "only New Zealand soldier" killed during the 1982 war. In fact Sergeant Ian 'Kiwi' Nicholas Hunt also lost his life, in a 'blue on blue' incident during operations.

Ever helpful - Ray Hansen 1929-2014

RAY was the first person I met at Hill Cove, more correctly he met me, like the hundreds of others he greeted or said farewell to as they arrived or departed on planes, be they Beavers or Islanders. It was a job he did in his working life, and in retirement.

Ray had so many skills. He could cut tussac or peat, or pull down a house and rebuild it, he could shear with both hand and machine shears, and class wool. In the days of dipping when we brought the sheep down off the mountains he did the drafting, drafting three ways up to three thousand sheep an hour. How fortunate I was to have a friend and helper so proficient in all the tasks occurring in camp. As a big farm Ray cared for the settlement as if it were his own, even after split-up he made every effort to keep it neat and tidy.

Ray looked after the water supply to the Point settlement ensuring that the filter at the dam was not blocked and if there was an airlock he knew where to bleed the pipe – how many times did he hear the cry: "Ray, I've got no water."

When Hill Cove no longer had a storekeeper/bookkeeper he took over running the store and when the farm was split up he took over the stock and continued to keep it running. He always said he broke even or made a small profit, but on the occasions when he asked me to check his figures I could not find a profit!

Most of all I will remember the person he was – if something tickled his sense of humour he became helpless with laughter, his eyes screwed up and tears ran down his cheeks. I never knew him to be too busy to stop what he was doing and give a helping hand. When the farm was split up and Sally and I took on one of the sections he never said no if I called him and asked if he could help with whatever it was we were doing.

It was not just the people of Hill Cove he helped. He and Dene looked after all and sundry who arrived on their doorstep, be they Phantom pilots, refuellers, stray military, and local visitors. West Falkland will miss him.

Teacher recruiting to include face to face interviews for the first time

THE Infant Junior School is currently recruiting for a Learning Support Assistant to replace a recent resignation. Director of Education Annie Tempest told last Thursday's Education Committee.

She added that staff whose contracts end in August 2014 have all replied regarding contract renewal and a recruitment round for teachers for September 2014 is underway and will include face to face interviews for the first time.

A Senior LSA post remains unfilled and two Higher LSA appointments were made, one is an 'acting' appointment. The Part time clerk position has been filled and safeguarding training is due this month following actions from the Lucy Faithful report.

At the Falkland Islands Community School, teachers Wendy Wilson and Zoe Gill have had a settled start with induction well under-way. Steve Gill is now full time teacher at FICS and advertisements for new posts have been published in TES. Recruitment will take place in London. Teacher advertisements are for mathematics, complex needs, and design and technology (D&T)/food/textiles. The current teacher for the latter subject and a Learning Support Assistant will leave FICS on the March 10, a replacement specialist teacher is being organised to come to FICS with a two week hand over expected.

Ms Tempest reports that the recent LSA advertisement has attracted two candidates and interviews have been carried out. In addition two local teachers are considering returning in August 2014.

Chris for BAFTA

FALKLAND Islander Chris Didlick has been involved in making a short animation that has been nominated for a 2014 British Academy Film and Television Award (BAFTA).

Chris is based in London and is co-owner of Box of Toys Audio, a company he started three years ago that undertakes work for independent film makers and commercial companies, including some well known names such as Sky, Disney, Recobok and Citroen.

He worked on the music and sound for the BAFTA nominated short animation "Everything I Can See From Here."

Training Centre staff 'motivated and enthusiastic'

THE Training Centre has just had its annual visit from the External Quality Consultant from City and Guilds, reports Director of Education Annie Tempest.

She said the overall comments were good and it was remarked that the Centre, "continues to support its candidates well and that all staff were motivated and enthusiastic."

She said sanctions were placed on three qualifications however. The first of these was IVQ Construction as there were some concerns over the portfolio structure and lack of progress of certain candidates. An action plan has been put in place for the assessor.

Supporting Teaching and Learning in Schools has also been sanctioned owing to the lack of an Internal Quality Assurer. A new remote IQA has since been identified and as soon as she commences, this sanction will be lifted.

Sanctions were also placed on Information Communication Technology owing to the absence of an IT Tutor and Assessor. Ms Tempest said an action plan is in place to find a new Tutor/Assessor in order to be able to offer this qualification in the future.

1. What is your most prized possession? I would say it's my Kenwood Chef

2. What is the best (or worst) piece of advice you have ever been given?

The worst piece of advice Colin gave me is that I wouldn't be able to set up a cake business in the Falklands, although it seems to be working out ok so far. Thanks Colin!

3. Who would you most like to have a cup of tea/tot with?

I'd like to have a few tots with my mates from the UK, followed by a cuppa to cure the hangover

4. What is your most embarrassing (or happiest, you choose) moment? My happiest moment recently is swimming with dolphins at Long Island on my birthday, followed by a bbq and a Hercules fly-by (obviously arranged especially for me and not a complete coincidence at all)

5. What in your everyday life drives you crazy?

Being late, however it still doesn't make me early for anything!

6. If you could travel anywhere in the world, where would it be?

I would love to travel to the Galapagos Islands

7. What is your favourite TV programme?

The Great British Bake Off, just because I'm a little bit fanatical about baking

8. What song makes you feel happy when you hear it?

Sitting on the Dock of the Bay by Otis Reading. It always reminds me of the tall tale my Dad told me when I was little that Otis died half way through the song so someone else had to whistle the last part... I believed him for years too!

9. What would people be surprised to learn about you? I'm gullible... (see above)

10. What is the one, single food that you would never give up? Chocolate... and wine. Can I have two please?!

Jo came to live in Stanley from the UK in May 2013, with her husband Colin and their two children. She currently makes special occasion cakes and is looking forward to beating Trish in the Horticultural Show chocolate cake competition!

FAREWELL TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR MR NIGEL HAYWOOD AND MRS LOUISE HAYWOOD

The following arrangements have been put in place for their farewell.

On Monday 24th February a parade will take place on Victory Green and Ross Road commencing at 17:20 hrs. At 17:30 hrs HE the Governor and Mrs Haywood will arrive and proceed to the dais. The farewell parade will include a Royal Salute. Following the Salute an inspection will take place. The inspection will start at the Tri-Service Detachment representing BFSAI and move to the FIDF Detachment, RBL and Associations, and will conclude with Members of the Legislative Assembly and FIG Directors.

HE the Governor will then return to his position in front of the Parade, turn about and receive the 17 gun salute. On completion of the 17 gun salute the Governor will turn and face the Parade. The Members of the Legislative Assembly and Directors will fall out and rejoin the spectators.

The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, escorted by the Parade WO, will approach HE the Governor to receive the Governor's sword for safe-keeping until the Governor Designate is sworn in.

The Governor and Mrs Haywood will then speak with youth groups and spectators before returning to Government House.

Members of the Public are cordially invited to attend the parade and are asked to be in position no later than 1715 hrs. It is appropriate for medals to be worn for this occasion.

Expression of Interest – Public Diplomacy, Special Advisors

Members of Legislative Assembly and the Public Relations & Media Office are seeking expressions of interest from members of the community for the role of Special Advisors.

The role of a Special Advisor will be to represent the community and to promote the Islands. The role can include media work overseas and in the Islands – talking to journalists and other visitors to the Islands, and showcasing what we are all about. It may also involve travelling with Assembly Members and/or Officers whilst they are overseas.

MLAs trips are not always constant, and not every Special Advisor will be able to attend every trip

If you are interested in participating in the FIG Public Diplomacy campaign in the role of Special Advisor, application forms are available from either Krysteen Ormond kormond@sec.gov.fk or Emily Hancox chancox@sec.gov.fk

Further information about the role can be obtained from Emily and Krysteen by email, or by calling the PR & Media Office at Gilbert House on +500 27400.

Argentina looks into the abyss - again

IT seems that the temperature is rising almost unbearably in Argentina. I am not referring here to the dreadfully humid and oven-like summer climate (well, dreadful for a Falkland Islander anyway) that provokes the annual migration by 'Portenos' who can afford it to their own Mar del Plata or across the River Plate to the lovely 'balnearios' of Uruguay.

No, that which I refer to here is political and economic heat, and unlike the weather, it is likely to continue rising beyond the arrival of autumn.

The government of Cristina Kirchner has always been a chronic denier of inconvenient truths and an exaggerator of its own success (to be fair, the British government is pretty good at this too) so it's no surprise that, judging by the reports I have been able to read and from conversations with friends in Argentina, the government is steadfastly denying the dire economic situation that is enveloping it.

Some pundits are even predicting a re-run of the cataclysm of 2001, during which rampant inflation, bank runs and violence led to President Fernando de la Rúa declaring a state of emergency swiftly followed by his resignation. Argentina officially defaulted on some $93 billion of international debts and opened a revolving door to the Casa Rosada through which several presidents passed in a matter of months.

As ever, it is the ordinary people who are suffering most in Argentina.

According to Uki Goni (a very good journalist who I remember writing for the Buenos Aires Herald but now writes for the Observer), the pain really started in January this year when the government depleted central bank reserves by pumping funds into the currency market to artificially shore up the value of the peso.

But when the haemorrhaging funds left just $30 billion in the central bank (that's like you or me having about £50 in our Standard Chartered Bank accounts) this policy had to stop, and prices on the high streets began rocketing.

Since then reports Goni, some prices have been rising by 25 per cent in a week.

Medicines have risen by 35 per cent, and some shops even took stock off their shelves because they did not know how to price them appropriately.

I'm no economist, but if this chaos has not been leading richer

Bound Ungagged

Argentines to get their cash out of Argentina and into more stable banks and investments in Uruguay, Brazil or further afield, then I would be very surprised. That, after all, is what I would do.

I'm no sociologist either, but if this pain does not soon lead to huge and violent protests that the government is unable to control, then I would also be very surprised.

Any normal mortal entrusted with the government of the country would be finding this situation unbearable, and that might be why President Kirchner is reported to be unwell (for the second time in a few months) and possibly handing over the reins of everyday government to her senior lieutenants.

In any case, her plans to keep control of Argentina almost indefinitely, if not personally, through a Kirchner dynasty, are now quite hopeless.

Her late husband Nestor did oversee a revival of Argentina's economic prosperity, and the early success of Cristina's government owed much to the momentum of that early success. But the momentum is long gone.

Some time soon Mrs Kirchner will be out of power and fighting to retain some shreds of the cult of personality that she nurtured despite poor judgment, xenophobia and short-termism.

She may well soon be fighting charges of corruption in court or from exile.

While it is hard to feel sympathy for her, any decent person has to feel for ordinary Argentines. Fair enough, they have all too often voted for the appalling Peronists who have no fundamental ideology to steer their judgement, and simply do whatever is necessary to buy the votes of the working classes.

But the political classes enjoy unfair educational and economic opportunities in Argentina, and it is their duty to govern well and honestly. They choose not to and the poor ordinary Argentines suffer.

As well as feeling sorry for ordinary Argentines, we could feel a little bit sorry for ourselves. Only when politicians in BA become more mature, honest and pragmatic will Argentina stop bullying Chile, Uruguay and, of course, the Falklands. But let's not hold our breath.

One day that maturity will arrive in the Casa Rosada, but not before there is a great deal more suffering.

Power to the Argentine Press

One of the targets of the increasingly autocratic Argentine government is the Clarin publishing group. Clarin is a hugely successful media empire encompassing print, the web and cable TV.

Unfortunately for Cristina Kirchner its' journalists have never been shy about criticising her government.

In response, Mrs Kirchner has applied legislation to break up the Clarin group and has even gone so far as to stop mass market retailers from advertising in the group's papers.

I am sure Clarin will fight on and survive. But I hope that the President does not turn her vindictive gaze on the English language Buenos Aires Herald, which does not operate from such a position of strength.

I don't see the Herald often enough these days to know if it dares to be seriously critical of the government, but even if it does, the government will hardly care, because, unlike Clarin, it not influential among the masses of Argentine who vote.

But the Herald has a great and brave reputation. Through the years of military dictatorship, from 1976 to 1983, during which up to 30,000 Argentines were tortured and murdered by the state, the newspaper was almost alone in standing up to the official thugs.

Under the editorship of one of my heroes, an English journalist called Robert Cox, the paper reported disappearances and other abuses and campaigned for recognition of the right of habeas corpus.

Cox was arrested, and only saved from something far worse by the intervention of American diplomats probably on the instruction of President Jimmy Carter (notably, Britain did little or nothing to curb the brutalities of the military, although they did, belatedly, award Cox an OBE).

I don't believe Argentina will ever enter such dark days again, but today we see another government in BA that is certainly doing its best to silence the press.

I wish Clarin well now, and I hope they look to the little Buenos Aires Herald and Bob Cox for inspiration.

Encouraging take up of Illex Licenses

Illex jigger in Stanley Harbour

OUT of 100 available jigger licenses 51 have been taken up and £5.6 million has been received so far, confirmed Director of Fisheries John Barton.

MLA Phyl Rendell raised the subject in her portfolio round up in Legislative Assembly recently and described the situation as, "very encouraging."

She warned that Illex was very much, "subject to climatic conditions and the oceanographic conditions," and as such, "we are not there yet."

Speaking to Penguin News Mr Barton expanded saying, "catches can be variable and as a consequence fees have been refunded in some years. It very much depends on how the Illex season develops. There is a significant fleet of jiggers on the high seas some 400 miles north of the Falklands which have been catching Illex throughout January."

Approximately £10.5 million was raised in Illex revenue last year and £9.5 million the previous year.

He also noted that January 2014 had, "seen an unusual start to the fishing year with only the longliner CFL Gambler fishing in the zone."

"Whilst activity is often low in January; vessels in port over Christmas or away from the fishery for various reasons, there is usually some level of trawl activity, so fishing grounds have been well rested."

Ice class Tronio is new vessel for Fortuna Ltd

FORTUNA Ltd has purchased the 55-metre Marine Stewardship Council (MSC) ice class longliner Tronio in addition to its Falklands registered fishing fleet.

Specifically designed for ice fishing in Antarctica the vessel's annual cycle begins in exploratory fisheries targeting Antarctic Toothfish and will conduct research on behalf of the Commission for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources (CCAMLR) within the Antarctic ice-belt.

In April the vessel joins the MSC South Georgia Toothfish fishery targeting Patagonian Toothfish.

The operation is supplemented with Swordfish quota caught in more northerly waters.

As a certified MSC vessel a traceability system is in operation monitoring daily production that customers can access to verify that all Tronio product comes from fisheries that have been certified to the MSC's environmental standard for well managed and sustainable fisheries.

Fortuna representative James Wallace said: "There is a great deal of scrutiny on you as an operator in Antarctica."

"The high standard of fishery management that we are used to in the Falklands reassures people and has opened doors for us internationally."

Over the garden fence with Ginge Kidd

THE very thought of lying around 'browning' is in no way my idea of fun.

I have never liked a tan anyway and so, every year I promise myself to do most parts of the 'Slip-Slap-Slop' business in an effort not to get burnt to a crisp. Yes, I do start with sun creams and cover my arms with long sleeves and even occasionally remember to wear my gloves when gardening. However, this year the weather has been so dull that it seemed pointless to take all these precautions just for a quick dash outside. I should have known better of course, for those few breaks when we saw bright sunshine were enough to give me almost black hands, well, mahogany anyway and at the end of very white arms, again. I also have right red cheek bones to give an almost feverish look, and a very dark nose where the sun bounces off my glasses. Bah!

This past fortnight has been wonderful in all ways except perhaps the weather. Susan has been back a few times and cleared great areas ahead of herself, then, for two afternoons she was joined by Cynthia and Sophie, whom Tim and Jan had so kindly 'loaned' me from the Garden Centre.

These three ladies worked with a will that saw the flower beds reappearing very quickly. Words cannot begin to express our gratitude and my joy at being presented with a flower garden which is again, in many areas, a blank canvas ready to be filled with all the delightful new plants awaiting a home. There are new delphiniums, daisies, primroses, bergennias, some bulbs and more roses. Of course, many of which have started flowering in their pots already. Then there are the bought plants which consist of azaleas, rhododendrons, pieris, loniceras (honeysuckles) which include one with variegated leaves called Mint Crisp and another with coppery leaves, ferns, astilbes, choy-sas, deutzias and I can't remember how many more. They are all totally wonderful plants and raring to give their best when I can hop into the borders with the necessary tools and compost to pop them in. This week, following all this lovely rain, is looking promising.

I had to go out thinning the plums last week, the little tree was literally dripping with them. There would be little hope for that many of them to fill out and ripen by the end of the season and so I took a pair of scissors and removed a hundred or more fruit off the branches leaving at least as many again behind, hopefully the wind will not remove the rest. The 'family' apple tree, so called because it carries three varieties which will pollinate each other, is also full of fruit. All fingers crossed, the cherries have already been hit by some winds but a lot of fruit remain there.

Also bearing a lot of fruit, and which is now ripening quickly, are the various currants, gooseberries and raspberries. The strawberries outside are still recovering from the frost a couple of weeks ago, but they all look healthy enough. Also looking good but inside, are the grapes and the blackberries.

The grapes also need a spot of thinning to help them grow and ripen.

The potatoes seem to be recovering from being so badly frosted. I will have to plant them somewhere sheltered from the early morning sun next year, but hopefully we will still get something from them this year. Undercover the carrots are coming on well enough to need thinning as are the turnips; the weather is not bothering them.

The beetroot are also doing well. Outdoors I have continued to plant greens of all kinds. All being well they should over-winter and provide some much needed broccoli, cauliflower and cabbages in the spring. I have tried growing some 'Russian' kale this year. I haven't tasted it yet but its purple leaves look most impressive.

The flower beds are giving-up their bounty now. All roses in the yellow spectrum are flowering, with reds and pinks and hopefully oranges, rushing to catch up. They are all looking healthy enough so I guess the weeds did not do any lasting damage. For my own peace of mind though, I have given them loads of seaweed extract mix in their root area just to keep them strong and healthy and ready for the colder weather.

The white double rose with the glorious scent, Rosa alba (sometimes called Chilean rose) is in full flow. What a wonderful, strong and disease free shrub that is. It is a strange one to propagate though, some years half the cuttings will take, on other years they remain stubbornly in the soil doing absolutely nothing until they die.

Talking of white flowers, the Shasta daisy, this is a double one, is flowering away in a corner. I shall have to break it up this autumn as it is now a massive size, and is overtaking that bed.

Now is a good time to take cuttings of any shrubs that have flowered, most of them need a trim at this time anyway. I see our fuchsia shrub is getting out of hand and will need cutting back hard, the indoor ones which reappeared outside got frosted, surprisingly, they are coming up again.

Gentoo at Port Lockroy on Goudier Island on the Antarctic Peninsula, part of British Antarctic Territory

Elinca voyage from Falmouth to the Falklands

VISITING Stanley last week was the yacht Elinca, crewed by fourteen friends from Britain on a nine month trip to sail the Atlantic Oceans.

Penguin News was given a tour of their yacht last Friday and caught up with the two ladies inspired into organising the voyage.

Clare Thorpe and Collette Matthewman visited Antarctica in a Tall Ships race after going through their sail training together. "We really wanted to share the experience with our friends...the reaction was great," said Collette.

Elinca is chartered from Wild Blue Limited in Stornoway, UK, and houses the fourteen crew, who have an average age of 29, in cabins of two or three. Splitting the costs between them, some were lucky enough to obtain a sabbatical and some simply handed in their notice to take part in the adventure.

They set sail five months ago from Falmouth to Cascais in Portugal, then to the Canary Islands, Cape Verde, Rio De Janeiro, and a few stops along the coast of Argentina before reaching Ushuaia. From Ushuaia the boat made two trips to Antarctica before reaching port in Stanley on Wednesday February 5.

Life on board is "cosy" said Collette, "we do everything in watches so we don't trip over each other a lot. It's a good job because the dining table only has four seats with the addition of two boxes.

"You tend to spend three days sleeping when you're not on watch and then you get into the rhythm of it."

"Learning to deal with the ice has been a challenge" said Clare. In Antarctica the yacht was blocked into a cove by an iceberg. "Luckily we had just enough room to squeeze through" she said.

There have been so many highlights of the trip they said, it was hard to pick a favourite.

"The Antarctica trip was as beautiful as expected but there was one day when the sun came out and the landscape was just incredible," said Collette who is a biologist and enthralled by the wildlife of the Southern region.

Clare recalled a hilarious equator crossing when the Captain, James Boyce, dressed as King Neptune. "It was an initiation ritual for when you cross the equator. Your sins are read out, they were written by the crew so were all pretty silly, and after he was found guilty by the jury a fermented bucket of slops was chucked over his head and he was made to take his 'medicine,' a drink of sardines and Tabasco sauce.

"The rest of the crew dressed up to play the roles of policeman and lawyer and such, we'd been at sea long time," joked Clare.

Excited to be in a British territory but saddened they did not get to explore more of the Falklands, the crew were busy ready to set sail again and loading up with black sheep ale and dairy milk.

"The cheese we've had at sea has been pretty tasteless so to get some proper cheese is brilliant. And bacon. We've found bacon," said Jon, an excited crew member who hopped on board laden with British branded luxuries from West Store.

"We have to leave today (Friday 7) because of a break in the weather to reach South Georgia. I'm probably most excited about reaching there," said Collette.

After taking delivery of two mutton carcasses the group were South Georgia bound by midday Friday.

Watching the wildlife and the scenery change so often on their trip makes it hard to keep track of everything they have experienced, cue a cheerful blog of their tour with happy holiday snaps illustrating everything from equatorial heat to freezing dips in iceberg territory. www.adventure2013.co.uk

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.

Mount Kent: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

All change at Falkland Islands Football League

THE Falkland Islands Football League (FIFL) is sad to announce the resignation of Senior Team manager, Ian Betts. After leading the Falkland Islands football team to its greatest ever result at last year's Island Games in Bermuda, with a third place finish, Ian has taken the decision to step aside as first team coach.

Ian led the national team to a record bronze medal win at last year's games after they secured a 6-0 victory against Froya, which also won them the Small Islands Cup.

FIFL would like to extend a massive thank you to Ian for not only his direction and commitment on the field, but also his organisation off the field. His efforts have been essential in the recent success of the football club.

The club are also thankful to all those you have supported and sponsored them in recent years. Stanley Services, Malvina House Hotel and Falkland Islands Holidays enduring support has been pivotal in ensuring the continued development of the club.

A final thank you is also due to the former FIFL Committee members who stepped down at the recent AGM held in December 2013. A special thank you is due to former Chairman Andrew Newman and Secretary Jodi Aldridge, whose hard work and dedication is greatly appreciated.

The AGM also saw FIFL welcome an all new Committee, with the exception of the ever dependable Sharon Gilbert, who continued in her role as Treasurer; Michael Betts was sworn in as the new Chairman, Joshua Peck as Secretary, and Kyle Biggs and Michael Poole as committee members. Further members were added at the February 5 committee meeting with the swearing in of Jay Gamble, Shaun Jaffray and Saul Zuvic.

With a host of new faces the outlook for football in the Falklands looks bright. Since the turn of the year FIFL has been busy addressing the issues and future plans for football in the Islands.

Current priorities have been identified as: ensuring the on-going development of youth football, improving the current facilities available (specifically, the current lack of a suitable playing field) and assessing the potential for women's football in the Islands.

The football club is currently in the process of organising fixtures for the coming months and hopes to hold open training sessions in the near future, and is looking to encourage participation in football throughout the whole community. Whether it is through playing, watching or coaching, and invites anyone with an interest to please contact any of our committee members.

Troyd's seventh Stanley Open

Troyd collects the trophy from Stephanie Gibbs

A STRONG field of 24 golfers competed over the weekend in the major board competition, the Consultancy Services Falklands Ltd sponsored, Stanley Open.

The weather conditions remained similar on both days and a relatively strong wind for players to battle against meant that patience was a necessity. After the end of round one the leaders in the club house were Troyd Bowles on 74 shots, with Roy Smith two behind on 76 and Joe Duncan on 77.

Troyd made a very solid start to day two, by paring five of the first seven holes and having a birdie on the 8th meaning that after the front nine he had an eight shot lead on the rest of the field with 35.

After a good first day round, Roy struggled on day two and slipped back, meaning Joe had a hard task to try and close down the gap to the leading score. Troyd was determined to maintain his lead though and concentrated on playing safe golf and carded a 40 back nine to secure him his seventh Stanley Open win with a total of 149. Joe's day two round of 79 rewarded him with second place on 156, and from one group back Sarah Bowles claimed third with 160.

Ieuan Ford came first in the nett prizes with Steve Vincent second and Rodney Lee in third.

Roy Smith's 76 won best gross score on day one as did John Holt's score of 80 for day two. Nearest the pin in two on the 8th went to Sarah Bowles, nearest on the 17th to Tim Bonner and longest drive to Gordon Lennie.

This is the eleventh year of Consultancy Services Falklands Ltd sponsoring this highlight in the golfing calendar. Members were pleased to see Stephanie Gibbs and Lynne Forster there to present prizes and the club are very grateful for the company's continued support.

Next week will be the Ian Stewart Construction Ltd competition with a return to usual 9:00 sign in time for a 9:15 tee off.

FICS would like to acknowledge the support of Synergy and Nikki's staff in rallying round and ensuring the IT and server was protected during the recent burst pipes. The impact and loss of IT was minimal due to the swift action and work of Nikki's team. Martin Winward, Headteacher at FICS, would like to apologise for not recognising their efforts during recent press coverage.

Thanks to everyone who sponsored me on the Sponsored Slim, which Carmen Miranda set up and a quite a lot of people joined in the fun. The Stephen Jaffray Memorial Fund has helped so many people within the community, so I am very glad and happy to have helped out by raising an amazing £2069.00. Also a huge thank you to the Globe Tavern for allowing me to get many of my sponsors there. Well done also to everyone who took part. Superb! Lani Morrison

Huge task begins on immigration medical forms 'not fit for purpose'

THERE are many important questions missing from immigration medical forms and the form is not fit for purpose, it was made clear at yesterday's meeting of the Health and Medical Services Committee.

Currently anyone over the age of 12 years intending to immigrate to the Islands must present a Falkland Islands Immigration Service issued health certificate filled in by a medical inspector.

A satisfactory health certificate must state that, "in the opinion of the issuing medical inspector, the person does not appear likely, because of the person's state of health, to impose an immediate or future substantial financial or other burden on public resources which, in all circumstances, it is unreasonable to expect them to bear."

However, there is no guidance for the doctors in terms of evaluating what is "substantial" or how to complete the form and most worryingly, "the form is missing half of the questions we should be asking," said Chief Medical Officer (CMO) Angela Rowlands who has started the "huge task" of ensuring medical checks are fit for purpose.

There are also no standards set for completing the form.

Anyone from any part of the world can get any doctor to complete the form, and there is often no doctor's stamp on the form because, "there is no room for one," CMO Rowlands told the committee.

It was also noted that while the medical was to check for fitness to come to the Islands, it took no account of occupation, when certain departments required certain health standards and vaccinations.

CMO Rowlands indicated that with medical checks as they stand people with a serious communicable disease, such as AIDS, or with a pre-existing medical conditions could enter the Islands unchecked.

She added that because the form lacked a requirement to provide a photograph there was also a risk the form presented could not be from the person evaluated by the doctor.

A genuine recognised need to address the issue was noted by all and MLA Summers reassured that new rules introduced should also apply to those renewing work permits.

CMO Rowlands has been in discussion with the Immigration Department and explained any proposed restrictions should be communicated to the community and discussed by the committee to ensure they are appropriate.

Replying to CMO Rowlands concerns, MLA Mike Summers said, "you're pushing at an open door," and fully supported the move to strengthen policy: "You're the expert in what needs to be done, instruct us and we will take it to Executive Council."

Pool open by end of April

THE Leisure Centre swimming pool should be open by the end of April. Member of Legislative Assembly Ian Hansen told Penguin News this week.

The pool was originally delayed from opening when it was discovered that pool pipes, buried in cement, were leaking.

MLA Hansen said when PWD tried to get replacement pipes and some fibre glass to the Islands, a problem occurred when "they wouldn't fly it."

Since then it has been organised for the pipes to be flown by American Airlines from Miami to Montevideo in Uruguay where they will then be carried by MV Scout to the Falkland Islands, arriving March 6.

"Meanwhile all of the other work will be completed including the changing rooms and the reception," he said.

Once the pipes arrive they will be installed by PWD, however the "sealing off" with the fibre glass (some was cracked when the pipes were taken up) will be undertaken by an employee of the company who originally installed the new fibre glass.

All of this will be completed by the end of March and then the process of filling the pool and getting it up to temperature will begin. This takes between two and three weeks.

MLA Hansen congratulated Leisure Centre staff who themselves, "did all the painting inside."

He also commended Simon Fletcher on his hard work arranging for the transportation of the pipes to the Falklands.

Time to welcome the Queen's baton

THE Queen's Baton will arrive in the Falklands next Thursday as part of the Queen's Baton Relay promoting the Commonwealth Games, to be held this year in Glasgow. People wishing to welcome the baton which will be relayed from MPA to HMS Clyde and then to the public jetty via an FIDF rigid raider should be at the jetty by 1830 on Thursday say local organisers. Anyone with a connection to local sport is highly encouraged to wear their club/national team kit.

Comment by Deputy Editor Sharon Jaffray

SUPPORT from the Uruguayan delegation last week gave me a long overdue surge of hope that there really was a chance of overcoming the flight and trade restrictions put in place by Argentina which have attempted to smother economic development to. Not I hasten to add, because Uruguay have offered to set up a direct air or sea link, but simply because members of the visiting party expressed a desire to develop trade opportunities and enjoy the freedom of leaving their country and within two and half hours being able to walk along the sea front of Stanley. And how nice it would be for us to reverse the journey. Just knowing that such support is out there and that Uruguayan politicians have the strength and integrity to stand up to Cristina Kirchner's belligerent efforts to prevent such visits shows there just might be a glimmer of light at the end of a very long tunnel.

Meanwhile another recent visitor to the Islands, Minister of State for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Hugo Swire has continued his support for the Falklands this week as he blasted Argentina's policies saying that Cristina Kirchner's administration was, "irrational and unpredictable." He said the Argentines say they want to talk and discuss issues, but every time there is an opportunity to do so they disappear. "They don't want to talk to us, they don't recognize our existence," he was quoted as saying in an interview with Uruguayan news site Montevideo.com.uy. Thank you Mr Swire and please keep up the good work - I am finally beginning to believe the sincerity of the FCO even if it has taken the best part of 30 years.

Finally this week I had another rare moment when I read MLA Jan Cheek's column (page 4) and found myself first of all nodding vigorously in agreement with her comments, before punching the air and hissing "Yeesss" in a most unladylike manner, as I reached her remarks about education.

My initial urge when allocated this column earlier in the week was to hold forth once again on educational needs and the fact that a perfectly good system had been let slide and now efforts were being made to reinvent the wheel and market it under a different name, however MLA Cheek deftly whipped the rug out from under my feet on that one. Not that I'm complaining, I'm grateful the subject is now being addressed with an open mind and some background knowledge

Ship-jumping jigger crewmen lost at sea

TAIWANESE crewmen reported missing from a jigger over the weekend last weekend have not located it was reported earlier this week.

In the early hours of Saturday February 15, Royal Falkland Islands Police (RFIP) received notification via the Department of Fisheries Operations Section that three crewmen were missing from a Taiwanese jigger operating in Falklands waters.

The missing crewmen had last been seen aboard at 4.30pm Friday February 14, at a time when the vessel was approximately 18 miles from the Reporting Line (for Port William the reporting line is from Menageary Point to Cape Pembroke).

At 7pm their absence was noticed, and a search of the vessel was undertaken. When no sign of the crewmen was found during the search, the vessel attempted to retrace its route in search of them.

At 8am on the next day the jigger arrived in Stanley harbour, where Royal Falkland Islands Police interviewed the crew, before clearing the vessel for departure that evening.

The vessel has since returned to a location 14 miles from the north-east coast of East Falkland, where it seems most likely that the crewmen left the vessel. The vessel will remain in this location for 72 hours.

Attempts to notify the next-of-kin of missing crewmen are underway, and until such time as this has been completed, no details regarding the vessel or the missing crewmen will be released to the media, it was noted in press release.

MLA Phyl Rendell, portfolio-holder for the Department of Fisheries, has expressed her regret at, "the sad loss of life in our waters" and extended, "heart-felt sympathy" to the families and friends of the missing men.

A representative from Pioneer Seafoods, vessel agents for the jigger said, "Our sincere condolences are with the family and loved ones of the missing crewmen."

Crewmen 'jumping-ship' from jiggers occurs almost annually when the vessels visit Stanley in order to obtain fishing licenses. Some have survived and been returned to their ship or country of origin, depending on their preference. Others have not survived the ordeal.

Your Questions Answered

Q THERE has been a small outcrop of Falklands native plants, mostly Thrift, nurtured on the sea verge of Ross Road by the Tourism Centre for the last 20 years and it had gradually expanded to a reasonable size and was often looked at and photographed by tourists.

Sadly it was recently trimmed down. Likewise for some years residents of East Stanley had enjoyed wild flower clumps left on the green area west of the World War memorial outside the cemetery - this has also been mown off.

Why has this been allowed to happen?

Answer provided by Director of Public Works Manfred Keenleyside...

A THE Thrift would ideally have been left as it does look attractive and add texture to the area, but as has happened in the past with new strimmer operatives it was not. It will however be flagged up as something to be left intact for future cuts.

On the positive side there are still flowers appearing on some of the plants and they are still alive and growing.

With the wild flowers in and around the cemetery area, views on this have and I am sure will continue to differ as to if or when the wild flowers should be cut - some prefer the clean cut look, others the variability offered by the flowers, both in and outside the cemetery and the writer of the question appears to be in the latter group.

This feedback will be noted as all that can be done is to try and take account of comments received, which will be happily accepted directly as well as indirectly.

New hospital manager in post but now seeking new CMO

FOLLOWING the resignation of Chief Medical Officer (CMO) Angela Rowlands, work has now started with the new Director of Human Resources (DHR) to recruit this and other vacant doctor posts, confirmed Director of Health and Social Services Hilary Rowland to the Health and Medical Services Committee yesterday.

MLA Dr Barry Elshy was concerned by the "extensive amounts of money" spent recruiting people who do not remain long in the role. He said CMO applicants in the past had been "great administrators," but on arrival were put off by the amount of clinical duties required of them.

There is currently a full team of doctors. "However, the recent advert did not generate any candidates to shortlist which is a disappointment but the rota is covered until May," said Ms Rowland.

Similarly in recruiting doctors, the broad role of duties required was noted as discouraging to applicants. Ms Rowland told the committee someone who could fulfil the role as required, including duties of a GP, ward doctor, gynaecologist and obstetrician could expect to earn £250,000 elsewhere in the world.

MLA Mike Summers said there was, "little point sitting around a table if we're unable to solve the problem," and said it was not acceptable to place responsibility solely on the DHR and suggested, "we have to go back to basics and reassess what we are looking for," and how best to approach recruitment.

"Reviews should be done in even time, not rushed, and we can set out a plan to get it right," said MLA Summers.

Though the departmental budget has been set MLA Summers suggested a supplementary budget request was brought to the Treasury, or redirected from the locum cover budget, to bring salary problems to the attention of government.

Other staffing issues were reviewed by Ms Rowland's report to the Committee. She noted that the new Hospital Manager Bernadette Eivers will arrive in the Islands on March 20.

Ms Rowland told Penguin News: "Bernadette is a qualified nurse by background but has over the past few years managed a range of hospital services, most recently in Leeds where she was the general manager of theatres."

Prior to that she worked in Bath where she was the manager of a range of specialities including radiology and pathology.

She has also been the manager of acute medicine, elderly services, trauma, orthopaedics and A&E: "so she comes with a wealth of experience. We are really looking forward to her arriving," said Ms Rowland.

A new Laboratory Manager will join the hospital in the week beginning March 10 and a new nurse will arrive at the end of that month. Ms Rowland said, "One nurse was recruited locally. She will be going overseas to update her skills. An advert will now be going out in the UK to recruit to the remaining post."

A new nurse to support the Practice Nurse and District Nurse is now in post and two Healthcare Assistants have also been appointed to support the ward and primary care, said Ms Rowland.

She also noted that Dr Uqaili who joined the KEMH in December is undertaking nine GP sessions a week, "and making a big difference to access for GP appointments."

The social worker team is now fully staffed and the two advanced Child Care Social Workers are both in post.

She added that Kathy Frier (locum Social Worker) and Jason Rice (locum Probation Worker) returned to the Islands after Christmas and will be with the team until the end of March/April.

They are supported by a team of skilled social work assistants, she said, adding: "It is pleasing to have a settled social work team."

Lower wool prices for Land Holdings

FALKLANDS Land Holdings (FLH) has sold just a little over 40 per cent of its 2013/14 wool clip so far confirmed General Manager Owen Summers this week.

He said prices had generally been lower than last season and total wool income to date was approximately 50 per cent of last years total.

"Given wool sales to date FLH should now meet its budget for wool income with relative ease subject of course to a total collapse in the wool market," Mr Summers told the FLH Board on Wednesday.

He said there had been some movement in the EMI although nothing dramatic to date, but the strengthening of the pound against the Australian dollar had compounded the price reductions for the Falklands clip.

Prices achieved for the sale of sheep (older animals) to the abattoir were average by comparison to previous years, although numbers supplied to date were small, said Mr Summers.

By comparison prices being achieved for yearling and lamb were disappointing he said.

"This is a combination of the seasonal condition and the introduction of fat score into the pricing system from the abattoir. Managers are aware of the issue and are keeping a good eye on the situation," he concluded.

McLaren trial

THE trial of Stanley man Kevin Derek Charles McLaren (38) began on Wednesday afternoon, having been delayed in the first instance due to the incoming flight carrying prosecution and defence counsel being behind schedule.

Mr McLaren has pleaded not guilty to a number of sexual offences involving four alleged victims and is represented by Falklands Legal Counsel Miss Fiona Rowling.

Mr Joe Hart is the Crown prosecutor for the trial which is being heard by Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley and is scheduled to last three weeks.

At the time of going to print evidence was being heard from a complainant in the case

'Royal' wedding for Johannes and Katharina

AUSTRIAN couple Johannes Klotz and Katharina Haider exchanged wedding vows surrounded by an audience of King penguins at Volunteer Point on February 15.

Attorney General Mark Lewis preformed the ceremony and Derek and Trudi Pettersson were witnesses. 1982 War veterans Andy Trish and Andy Shaw and his stepson Joe, along with a small group of other visitors also attended the pretty ceremony. After the marriage photographs were taken on the beach and near the King penguins.

This was followed by a barbecue reports photographer Derek Pettersson.

Annual inflation at 0.6 per cent and a new 'basket of goods'

FALKLAND Islands inflation for the last quarter rose by 0.03 per cent with an annual increase of 0.6 per cent it was announced at this week's Standing Finance Committee.

This is the first index published using the new basket of goods. Data for the new basket of goods was collected over the preceding 12 months and there has now been enough time to allow re-basing of the index.

As such the retail price index has been re-based to October 1, 2012, the first data point for the new basket of goods.

A paper to SFC notes that the new index provides a more accurate measure of inflation across an up-to-date basket of goods, but that during the verification process an issue arose in which ongoing improvements could be made.

The issue involved the basket of goods in some cases being sensitive to the particular brand of "good chosen to be measured."

Variations in a particular brand of product can have a disproportionate effect on the retail price index which may not reflect price changes in other brands of the same product.

To overcome this problem, the Treasury and the Policy Unit are now analysing the basket to identify a full list of products to which the problem relates and will then ensure that data is collected for more than one brand of these products during each quarter.

A weighted average price will be used to calculate price changes for these goods.

This will eliminate any distortions that could be caused by the availability and pricing of particular brands of goods in the Islands, reported the Falkland Islands Government Accounting Officer and the Policy Officer.

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

I'M keeping very quiet about the fact that I appear to have a whole day's respite from endless meetings this week; I'm hoping no-one tries to fill it, and by the time PN is out I may have caught up on other items of work if it remains free. I'm not alone among MLAs in having a small rebellion against the fact that activity in the form of endless meetings in some instances seems to be a substitute for action. Meetings that go on far too long in poorly lit stuffy rooms are a form of torture and are, as I read in a recent article, likely to occupy 9,000 hours of the average office worker's life. I suspect we are condemned to more. The author of the same article goes on to say that they provide a venue in which 'bored and egomaniacs can hold forth ad nauseam'. Of course all the meetings this week are exceptions to the above, including our regular and very welcome meeting with the Commander British Forces.

The public meeting was an experiment with a new venue as the Court and Council Chamber was not available. I do not think the school street is an ideal location, or perhaps there were just too many seats put out, making the audience look very sparse. It is always mildly amusing to see old policies being trotted out as new but I've no doubt that we have many well qualified and well intentioned people working towards maintaining and improving educational standards.

I would also like to see a more farsighted policy on funding of masters degrees and doctorates in subjects that have relevance and potential benefit to the future needs of the Falklands. The only area where we seem to have done this to any great extent is in funding of Post Graduate Certificates in Education. As a result we have more local teachers in post and likely to join soon who can provide additional continuity in education as well as being great role models, showing their students what can be achieved by hard work and determination.

Remembering Ian Biggs

IAN James Biggs (84) passed away at his home in South Croydon UK on January 21, 2014.

A fifth generation Biggs he was born to Eric Biggs and Helen Biggs (nee McNicoll) at 6, Moody Street, Port Stanley, Falkland Islands on May 6, 1929.

He was the first of five siblings with Eric, Thora, Lorna and Doreen.

As a child he would play with his brother and friends on Sapper Hill and fish in Mullet Creek.

On leaving school he worked for the Agricultural Department of the Falkland Islands Government for two years.

In September 1947 aged 18 he was accepted to work for the Falkland Islands Dependency Survey, travelling down on HMS Snipe leaving Stanley on January 2, 1948.

He began working at Admiralty Bay for his first season with Pat Davis, Jack Reid and the ill-fated Eric Platt.

He then spent a further two seasons at South Georgia, with Pat Peck, Danny Borland, Richard Stock and the Goss family Barry.

Ian and Brenda in 2010

Hannah and their son Brian

In 1952 he travelled to the UK and volunteered for the Scots Guards enlisting on July 21, 1952 at Dundee to serve three years with the colour in the 2nd Battalion serving at Caterham Barracks.

It was here that he met his wife Brenda, marrying her on June 25, 1955.

He then joined the Metropolitan Police Force September 19, 1955 (PC Z221). Working at Croydon for his entire career he received a commendation in 1961.

He and Brenda had two children, Kevin born 1960 and Linda born in 1962.

In September 1982 he returned 'home' to the Falklands to carry out a 6 months tour of Met Police overseas service.

He retired from operational duty in September 1985 but continued with the Metropolitan Police until fully retired in May 1994.

Later in 1994 he returned home to the Falklands, with his son, for what would be the last time.

He spent the rest of his retirement travelling, tending his garden and enjoying time with his family that included his five grandchildren Rosie, James, George, Matthew and Jack.

Ian leaves his wife, two children and four grandchildren. James passed away in infancy.

Happy with MoD response to diesel spill

Dam holding back diesel

ENVIRONMENTAL Officer Nick Rendell speaking at the Environmental Committee meeting on Wednesday described himself as, "happy with the Ministry of Defence's reaction," to the diesel spill that occurred at an MoD site at Byron Heights on February 11.

He said the diesel that had been released from a ruptured pipeline had been limited to a small area. Much had poured down to an access road into a ditch where it was held with dams.

He added that a plan would be produced by the MoD showing how the presence of the fuel would be monitored.

Mr Rendell said they had been asked to take soil for contamination samples from the peat for comparison uses "down the line."

There will also be a formal enquiry with regard to, "where procedures," broke down, noting that as well as the ruptured pipe there had been some problems with procedures.

Education in the spotlight

A NEW management team and a 'holistic' approach to education will bring about higher standards indicated the Director of Education Annie Tempest at Monday's public meeting on education.

MLA Barry Elsby who has the portfolio for education opened the meeting with a presentation referencing the current situation relating to nurseries, both schools and the Training Centre.

Speaking of Falklands' nurseries he outlined the non-existence of regulations, requirements for training or screening of employees.

He said a Nursery Liaison Officer had been in the Islands giving advice for three months and it was clear that all nurseries were keen to develop, undertake training and work towards a voluntary code of practice, "to prove to parents exactly what they are doing."

Talking of the Infant and Junior School/Camp Education (IJS/CE) which now has 253 pupils and 33 Camp pupils, he said another 11 students had enrolled just in the last three weeks. He said there was, "no more room," and breaks were already staggered.

He added that the last Ofsted report only gave the IJS a 'satisfactory' classification, but said there had been much improvement since then and the school had excellent teachers.

The Community School is also under pressure with 153 pupils and nine new pupils having enrolled in the past few weeks. However MLA Elsby described the new Head Teacher and management team as "dynamic."

In 2010 Ofsted described aspects of FICS as "unsatisfactory", but "this will be different next time," said MLA Elsby. He also noted that pupils needed clearer, more focused career guidance to help students in their career choices.

MLA Elsby also referred to the Training Centre saying parts of it were good but there still "gaps." He said it needed to re-develop to meet the needs of students now and in the future.

Responding to a member of the public who described funding for Post Graduates as "limited," Ms Tempest agreed but noted improved accessibility to funding via the Career Development Scheme, saying they were looking at developing this. She also noted there existed a list of skills, (a skills audit) "that we see as paramount to support," such as teacher, doctors and social workers. She confirmed they wished to engage more with overseas students, when asked by a member of the public if this was taking place in terms of how their experiences could help policies or vice versa.

MLAs accepted that there was problem with regard to physical education facilities and it was noted that this was within the top six priorities identified by the Assembly, but ambition had to be "tempered" in relation to funding available.

Issues relating to the Health and Medical Service were also discussed at the meeting.

MLA Summers said they had hoped for a term of calm and "solidity" but this had not happened (referring to the resignation of the Chief Medical Officer) and the Director had a, "difficult task" ahead.

MLA Summers said a new Hospital Manager had been hired and a new Head of Social Services was in place. He assured the public that the hospital was not struggling to cope but staff were "spread thinly."

Give us two minutes...

Tony Ballantine

1. What is your most prized possession? A photograph of my great grandfather and the Bury FC winning FA Cup Final team of 1903, he played in the team and scored two goals!

2. Who would you most like to have a cup of tea/tot with? A glass of champagne with Sir Winston Churchill

3. What is your happiest moment? When my partner Lauraine (above) agreed to go out with me. I had secretly liked her for more than 20 years

4. Who would you make Governor of the Falklands? I need to be careful here as I've only been here six weeks! However, Roger Spink has been extremely helpful and is a great ambassador for the Islands, so I'll go with him

5. What is your favourite TV programme? The Sopranos, well cast, well written and well acted

6. What song makes you feel happy (or sad) when you hear it? Down in the Tube Station at Midnight (The Jam), reminds me of the dark days of recession hit UK back in the 80s. A timeless classic though

7. What's the best book or movie you have read/watched recently? Winston Churchill's war diaries

8. What is the one, single food that you would never give up? Bread (or bread as us Geordies pronounce it)

9. What is your happiest childhood memory? The pop star Sting once stood on my skateboard outside a Newcastle record shop when I was about 12. No one ever believes the story, but it's true!

10. Who would play you in a film about your life? Brad Pitt of course

11. What did you want to be when you were a child? A footballer. My great grandfather, grandfather and uncle were all professional footballers! Unfortunately the genes missed me out - I'm rubbish

Tony is Project Manager for SAICO and will be overseeing the construction of Noble Energy's temporary dock facility. He has a fiancé, Lauraine who has two lovely children, Luca and Libby. In his spare time he likes to play golf and try to keep fit. "I've joined the Stanley Golf Club, who have made me most welcome," he said.

E-petition in support of 1982 hero

AN e-petition to gain recognition for a Falklands hero has been launched with hundreds of signatories supporting it within the first week.

Corporal Stewart McLaughlin, a section commander in the 3rd Battalion Parachute Regiment, died aged 27 during the battle of Mount Longdon, on June 12, 1982.

But despite being hailed for his bravery and devotion he has never received formal recognition in the form of a gallantry award.

His son, also called Stewart, said the family had met with senior officers who said that the Wallasey soldier's actions merited award, but rules governing retrospective awards mean they are unable to do so.

The family said they have evidence he was cited at the time but believe it may have been lost in transit from the Falklands.

More than 600 people have already signed the petition since it was set up last week, and campaigners, including many serving and former members of the armed forces, are planning to march to Downing Street on July 4.

For more information, and to sign the petition, go to website <http://epetitions.direct.gov.uk/petitions/60561>

Child safeguarding training session

Child safety training to boost public knowledge

CHILD Protection Counsel, Justine Hosking, has been seconded to the Attorney General's Department from Cornwall Council to draft a bill of legislation on the safeguarding of children in the Falkland Islands, as a direct result of the Lucy Ann Faithfull report published in October last year.

The exposing report was commissioned due to a rise in the amount of convicted sexual offenders in the Islands and it noted inadequacies in the social welfare system which had caused, "a very public collapse in morale, confidence and perceived competence."

Mrs Hosking said the bill, which is due to go to Legislative Council, also addresses comments and concerns made by Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley who described the system as, "deeply dysfunctional, out of date, under resourced and badly managed."

In addition to drafting the bill Mrs Hosking is tasked with generating public awareness in the Falkland Islands Safeguarding Children Board (FISCB) set up to promote child safety and offer guidance to professionals and the community.

"It's part of a public campaign to communicate understanding about child protection and what they can do about it," she said.

Training sessions at the FIDE Hall were held last week to relay guidance directly to professionals who work with children, assisted by Karen Dale from Cornwall Council, who is a Senior Social Worker and Manager of the Safeguarding Children Board.

Mrs Hosking explained that a broad range of situations where children are potentially vulnerable were covered, including texting and spinning (driving around with men) and information given on suitable responses.

Attending the sessions on February 12, 13 and 17 were teachers, officers from the Royal Falkland Islands Police, Social Services, the Probation Officer, British Forces representatives, medical staff, the Directors of Education, Health and Social Services and nursery staff from childcare businesses on the Islands.

MLA Barry Elsby who holds the portfolio for Education has taken on the responsibility of 'Child Champion', to coordinate communicating safeguarding rules and advice to families and the general public.

The importance of communication and, "a coordinated approach" across Government Departments, childcare facilities and families in the Falklands was highlighted in the sessions, said Mrs Hosking.

"I was very impressed with the professionalism of those who attended," she said, adding there was a good knowledge base in the group, but it became apparent there was a need to know where to go in regard to legislation; "the 2012 child and young people safe guarding procedure is the legislation to refer to."

Now at the end of her six month secondment, Mrs Hosking said that multi agency gatherings like this provide the opportunity to share experiences and coordinate strategy, and she hopes more will take place in the future.

Penny Nicholson is due to take up the Child Protection Counsel position after she leaves.

Who isn't paying tax

THE Head of Finance for the Falkland Islands Government has expanded on her original response to a question sent in by Penguin News relating to persons, possibly MPA contract workers, who may be exempt or do not contribute to Falklands taxes but reside in Stanley with their families.

She was asked who paid for their children's schooling in Stanley and who paid for any medical services they received.

Ms Morrison originally commented: "The Treasury does not maintain records to show which individuals, including MPA contract workers, have families residing in Stanley, because this information is not required by the department to complete personal tax assessments."

This week she added: "With regards to the charging for the education of children within Stanley, within the Education Ordinance there is no statutory authority to charge tuition fees for the provision of education for children under the compulsory age. All those using the facilities provided at Stanley House are recharged for that use."

She added: "MPA contract workers receive their primary care from MPA and their secondary care from KEMH under the terms of a Memorandum of Understanding. Any overseas treatment is paid for by contractors employers."

Speaking to Penguin News, Member of Legislative Assembly Roger Edwards agreed that was the correct situation.

When asked whether families living in Stanley but employed in MPA would have to contribute to the services they enjoy, he replied they would not: "The fact of the matter is there are no official records that monitor where people work and where they live."

"We could well find some people abusing the system. Now that I'm aware of it I can look into it," he said.

Absolutely Opera an absolute delight

Andrew "drips evil" as Yargo

A QUARTET of talented musicians from the Cruise ship Minerva treated Islanders to a rare operatic performance at the Town Hall on Thursday.

The group known as 'Absolutely Opera' contacted Community School music teacher Shirley Adams-Leach through a person they knew on the Islands and organised the show to raise money for the Stephen Jaffray Memorial Fund.

"We wanted to do something different on our tour other than playing on the ship," said Charlotte Collier, mezzo-soprano introducing the company to the audience.

Charlotte Collier, soprano Charlotte Hewitt, and baritone tenor Andrew Armstrong, accompanied by Andrew's wife Caroline on piano, performed a selection of arias from famous productions, including works by Verdi, Puccini, and even the British Airways advert by Delibes.

The three singers shared a few jokes and explained some history of the works they performed before filling the hall with the sound of their powerful instruments, which shook ear drums and enraptured the audience.

It was a great family evening out with varied performances of emotive opera and popular themes, with cakes and refreshments at the intermission provided by the Parent Teachers Association.

Lady Thatcher's 1992 visit in pictures

The front cover of 'Maggie'

A BOOK of colour photographs of Margaret Thatcher's 1992 visit to the Falkland Islands, by Norman Clark and entitled 'Maggie' is available for viewing at the Harbour View Gift Shop.

The 224 page A4 landscape hardback book has a foreword by William H Fullerton CMG, former Governor of the Falklands between 1988 and 1992.

In it Mr Fullerton notes how Lady Thatcher described the visit to the Islands as, "the most moving and inspiring they had ever experienced."

During the visit Lady Thatcher and husband Denis experienced many aspects of Falklands' life both in Stanley and in Camp.

A pleasure to work here

NEARING the end of my one-year physiotherapy placement in the Falklands and looking back at all that has been achieved by the department brings me enormous satisfaction both on a personal and professional level.

Having left the UK with solid training and a sense of trepidation and excitement I cannot believe how warmly I was received by the hospital team, made to feel part of the healthcare system and an essential part of its provision. Working independently initially has brought with it challenges, my workload varies but I have tremendous autonomy to affect how and where I work.

Over the last year Kelly and I have expanded our services and (I hope) have made significant improvements to the people of the Falkland Islands. It has been my complete pleasure to be able to work here, and I want to thank all my colleagues, friends, and Falklands Islanders for making my time here such a memorable one. Being asked to volunteer at the Commonwealth Games in July/Aug as Falklands team physio has to be the icing on the cake!

Moving forwards, I am going to New Zealand, where I can dazzle the Maoris with stories of sheep, long white clouds, wild running and laughter. Thank you.

Nat Hill
Stanley

Mr Fullerton said: "Norman Clark, whose highly professional and imaginative work I remember well from my time in the Islands, has captured remarkably the buoyant atmosphere of the visit as a whole with an impressively wide range of most attractive and skilfully taken pictures..."

He adds: "This book will provide Islanders, and all who were there, with a lasting and most welcome record of those momentous few days into which so much was packed. He is indeed warmly to be congratulated."

The book costs £66 and a security deposit is to be paid on 'Maggie' when ordering a copy.

FAREWELL TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR MR NIGEL HAYWOOD AND MRS LOUISE HAYWOOD

His Excellency the Governor and Mrs Haywood will leave the Falkland Islands on Tuesday 25th February at the end of the Governor's tour of duty.

The following arrangements have been put in place for their farewell.

On Monday 24th February a parade will take place on Victory Green and Ross Road commencing a 17:20 hrs. At 17:30 hrs HE the Governor and Mrs Haywood will arrive and proceed to the dais. The farewell parade will include a Royal Salute. Following the Salute an inspection will take place. The inspection will start at the Tri-Service Detachment representing BFSAI and move to the FIDF Detachment, RBL and Associations, and will conclude with Members of the Legislative Assembly and FIG Directors.

HE the Governor will then return to his position in front of the Parade, turn about and receive the 17 gun salute. On completion of the 17 gun salute the Governor will turn and face the Parade. The Members of the Legislative Assembly and Directors will fall out and rejoin the spectators.

The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, escorted by the Parade WO, will approach HE the Governor to receive the Governor's sword for safe-keeping until the Governor Designate is sworn in.

The Governor and Mrs Haywood will then speak with youth groups and spectators before returning to Government House.

Members of the Public are cordially invited to attend the parade and are asked to be in position no later than 1715 hrs. It is appropriate for medals to be worn for this occasion.

Where we are with tourism

An update with Managing Director Falkland Islands Tourist Board Tony Mason

THIS year's Tourism Awards planned for April 10, will be held at Government House, Managing Director Falkland Islands Tourist Board (FITB) Tony Mason told Penguin News this week.

He said they were, "grateful to the team at Government House for making the awards very special by hosting them."

"The nomination forms are coming in and we anticipate a great turnout on the night."

Categories for this year's event are:

- Driver of the year
- Taste of the Falklands
- Visitor experience of the year
- Tour guide of the year
- Outstanding customer service award
- Public Services
- Agency of the year
- Camp accommodation of the year
- Stanley accommodation of the year

Mr Mason said this year the categories have been broadened to allow industry wide participation and ensure equal opportunity to win an award.

There is one additional category, the 'Managing Directors Award' which is presented to a department or individual who has been supportive of the tourism industry, that may otherwise have been overlooked, he added.

Nominations for the 2014 awards must be completed and submitted to FITB on or before Tuesday April 1.

No late entries will be accepted, "so make sure your forms are on time," said Mr Mason. Nomination forms are available in the Jetty Visitor's Centre.

Regarding attending the event, the two finalists in each category will receive two tickets to the event and the remaining tickets will be given out in a random draw.

To be included in the draw, members of the industry will be asked to complete a ticket request form, available at the Jetty Visitors Centre and should send it in to FITB or drop it in the nomination box at the Centre.

The draw for the remaining tickets will be on Friday April 4 and winners will be notified by phone.

Islands visit

Mr Mason and Personal Assistant Kyle Biggs will be visiting the islands over the next week beginning with Bleaker, Sea Lion, Carcass and Weddell.

Mr Mason wishes to focus on Camp in the following two years to ensure it is supported: "What Camp has to offer to tourists must remain available," he emphasised adding that he appreciated that a great deal of effort had been made in Camp over the past season following the inception of the 'Accommodation Accreditation Programme.'

"We've seen many improvements, and I am really pleased with the close to five star offering at Bleaker Island. We have a long way to go in helping Camp with improvements and I want to make sure everyone is aware of the Tourism Grant on offer which can do just that."

The Tourism Grant is available to anyone who participates in the Accommodation Accreditation Scheme, which was created to support accommodation providers who wished to improve their offering and upgrade their properties.

"It's important everyone understands it's relatively simple to apply for this grant and we are more than happy to provide guidance to anyone who wishes to discuss the application process."

The ratings take place every year in October and are followed up by a report to accommodation providers, indicating upgrades and changes needed to reach the next star level.

Matched funding for upgrades up to £10,000 annually can then be applied for. For example if the accommodation requires repairs and upgrades to the total of £10,000 the Tourism Grant would match fund at £10,000 allowing for £20,000 in upgrades.

The grant can be for any amount from £1 to £10,000 and is also available to Stanley accommodation providers.

Cruise Shipping Miami

The Tourist Board will attend Cruise Shipping Miami in March where once again its representatives will meet with key players in the cruise industry in order to, "strengthen relationships between the Falkland Islands and industry leaders."

Building on strategic partnerships and relationships built over the past few years, "is paramount to the success of the tourism initiatives for the country."

"At this year's event discussions will also be taking place with cruise lines surrounding the port development project," said Mr Mason.

"We will be meeting with tour operators in the Ft Lauderdale and Miami areas."

Coming weeks

The Board looks forward to welcoming the Crown Princess on Sunday February 23, carrying her 2,500 passengers and the Seven Seas Mariner with 700 passengers on Monday February 24.

Travel writer visits

Prolific award-winning travel writer, photographer and broadcaster Marc Stratton visited the Islands last week. Mr Stratton, a freelance journalist, who has provided pieces for Wanderlust and the BBC World Service among others, has a passion for wildlife and off the beaten path destinations.

His programme was a co-sponsored operation between the FITB, Turismo Chile and FITB travel partner Cox & Kings in the UK.

Mr Mason said: "We have engaged with our partners from around the world in aiming to increase visits by co-sponsoring serious operators selling the Falklands."

The itinerary for the week included a visit to Santiago, Chile, onward travel to the Falkland Islands which included visits to Bleaker Island, Sea Lion Island, Carcass Island and West Point and an evening visit to Kidney Island.

The visit to the home of vast quantities of sooty shearwaters made for the perfect ending to Mr Sutton's visit, who described it as one of his best experiences, said Mr Mason.

He said Mr Sutton is looking forward to writing the article and encouraging readers of Wanderlust magazine to visit the Falkland Islands.

On February 22, FITB will welcome Liz Gill, another Freelance Journalist from the UK.

Ms Gill writes for an array of national and consumer media including The Daily Express, Daily Mail, Telegraph, The Times and The Guardian amongst others.

Exploring the outlying islands of the Falklands

A PARTY of intrepid travellers set off from Stanley on the Golden Fleece in late January to circumnavigate the Falklands and explore some of the outlying islands above and below water. The party comprised keen divers (including four members of the Shallow Marine Surveys Group) and others who just wanted to see some of the more remote parts of the islands. We also had Josh Saunders on board for the first part of the trip, filming for FITV.

Setting sail on Saturday January 25, we had a rough overnight passage south to the first stop, Bleaker Island, where we dived to the east of the island.

The water was unseasonably cold (7°C rather than the 10-12°C we expected) and Oliver, who only joined us for one night, bravely (or foolishly) did his one and only dive in a wet suit. Josh and Nat popped ashore to wave off Oli Cooper who had to fly back to be in work on Monday.

Departing Bleaker on Sunday afternoon, the journey continued south and west with an overnight passage to the Arch Islands. The wind continued to blow, but we found sufficient shelter to land on the sheltered side of Sandbar Island where we were welcomed ashore by a group of inquisitive sea lions. Next we dived in a sheltered cove on the east of Main Arch Island, where we encountered numerous lobster krill on the shallow sea-floor and interacted with some rather playful sea lions.

Leaving the Arch Islands, we rounded Cape Meredith in choppy seas, before taking shelter in Ten Shilling Bay (Port Stephens). Next morning we headed to Bird Island, which for many was the highlight of the trip. The rough passage across caused concern that we might not be able to land, but the main landing site on the North East corner was well sheltered from the south-westerly blow. Skipper of the Golden Fleece, Jérôme Poncet, describes Bird Island as a "Little South Georgia" and it was quickly apparent why. The island is a wildlife haven, inhabited by hundreds of South American fur seals, Black-browed albatross and Rockhopper penguins. Numerous striated Cara-caras patrolled the island, which was littered with the remains of Prions, which we assumed were taken by the Cara-caras. After an hour or so ashore (and numerous photos), we returned to the Fleece to prepare for a dive in the cove.

The life on the seabed was wonderfully diverse and the numerous photos taken by the divers will add greatly to our knowledge of the island's fauna, but we were disappointed to see that the non-native parchment-worm was established in the area. The parchment worm has been transported around the world on the hulls of ships, but we hoped that some of the more remote spots out west may have avoided them. While the divers surveyed the cove, Nat and Josh snorkelled with the returning Rockhopper penguins - it is a fantastic spectacle to see the penguins 'flying' past underwater.

After leaving Bird Island we headed west, passing close by Horse Block for Beaver Island, owned by the Poncets and home to a large herd of reindeer (translocated from South Georgia). At Beaver, Nat and Josh flew back to Stanley and we were joined by Eva and Marianne. Following a few rough nights at sea, it was a delight to be anchored in calm waters just off the settlement at Beaver, and be treated to reindeer and guanaco (which inhabit nearby Staats Island) fondue!

After three excellent dives around Beaver Island we headed north to New Island. An early morning dive on the shore of Beef Island was followed by a trip ashore to visit the settlement and the albatross and penguins. The dive off Beef Island was stunning, with clear water and beautifully coloured marine life. In the afternoon Georgina and the scientists from New Island joined us on board while the divers explored the underwater world of Coffin Island.

Next day we set off early, with first stop a dive on the south side of Second Passage Island. Once again the water was very clear and the overcast conditions made it a very atmospheric dive. After the dive we continued the journey north to West Point Island, where we met our old friends Thies and Kicki who are looking after the island.

We left the shelter of West Point and headed towards Carcass Island, but the wind precluded a dive on the southern tip, so instead we headed to Low Island, where five of us managed a dive before the wind increased to gale force.

After Low Island we headed east, gaining shelter from Saunders Island and the company of a pod of around 50 Commerson's dolphins. The dolphins stuck with us for over an hour. After another dive off Saunders, and with strong winds forecast, we headed for the shelter of the settlement bay on Keppel.

We had much better weather the following morning and headed along the north coast of Pebble Island, diving at Government Islet and Janesta Point. Once again we had the company of dolphins - this time both Peale and Commerson. After the second dive we headed east towards Eddystone Rock, where we arrived just after sunset. Eddystone Rock is a spectacular pinnacle that projects from a depth of 70 m to 40 m above the surface and is the rather isolated home of a colony of shags and some itinerant fur seals.

A relatively smooth overnight passage saw us arrive in Berkeley Sound around 7am for the last day of the trip. We dived off Cochon Island. The first dive on the south-east end was a bit murky, but the second dive was beautifully clear. A few urchins were collected and Jérôme treated us to sea-urchin soufflé and roast guanaco, before a final dive off the Tussac Islands in Port William.

All in all a fantastic trip was enjoyed by all. The water was colder than we expected and the wind blew more than we hoped, but we saw some amazing sights above and below water and collected valuable new data on the shallow marine fauna of the Falklands.

Thanks to Jérôme, Nelly and Vanessa, who looked after us very well on the Golden Fleece. Thanks also to New Island Trust, FIG, Thies and Kicki and Mike and Phyl Rendell for allowing us to visit the various islands. Martin Collins

Pleasant Peak: Frequency: 147.225 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves most of the south of East Falkland and repeats Mount Alice Repeater, which covers most of the south of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Mount Alice: Frequency: 147.825 (-600 Duplex) This repeater serves most of the south of West Falklands and links to Stanley via Pleasant Peak and Sapper Hill.

Mount Caroline: Frequency: 147.725 (-600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north of West Falklands, including the cross sound ferry main operational area and links to Stanley via Mount Kent and Sapper Hill.

Marine Band: 156.800...Channel 16 (Stanley area) 2.182 MHz HF In the event that communications fail on all the above frequencies then the RFP may be contacted direct on 153.650 (duplex + 1.6). It is however unlikely that this frequency will be functional from West Falkland Fault Reporting - Users are encouraged to report any faults with the system: Telephone: 28100, E-mail: inspector@police.gov.fk or fax: 28110.

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters.

Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.

Mount Kent: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Green-fingered Pollards win top prizes in garden competition

JOHN and Leif Pollard's gardening skills earned them first place in both the vegetable and polytunnel classes this year, despite the poor summer experienced across the Islands.

The annual Flower, Vegetable and Polytunnel Gardens Competition was held on Saturday.

Event organiser Nikki Buxton said although the number of entries was down significantly from last year due to the poor summer, those entered were of a high standard.

Leif and John Pollard had fenced off small sections of their outside garden to help reduce the effects of the wind, using small hoops partially covered with wind netting. "This has proved very effective both for the sections themselves and the rest of the garden," said Ms Buxton.

There was only one entry in the polytunnel class, as the majority of tunnels had been entered in the pre-Christmas portion of the competition. Ms Buxton said the Pollard's tunnel was filled with onions, lettuces, peas and a wide variety of other vegetables, well protected from wind, weather and frost.

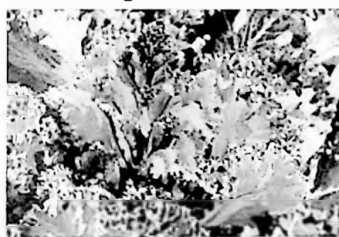

Second place winners in the vegetable gardens were Luch and Lena Morrison who have what

Ms Buxton described as, "a lovely sheltered traditional Falklands' vegetable garden, full of a variety of plants and not a weed in sight."

As Luch's brother Billy is currently overseas, Luch had also tended his garden for the season.

Scouts gain Novice award

The Scouts have started a small traditional vegetable garden at Cartmell Cottage, and won the novice prize for their very promising start.

There was only one entry in the Flower Garden section, the Falklands Flora garden of Community School students and science teacher John Carlin, which was started last year. Ms Buxton said, "the plants are in an excellent condition and the garden has been well laid out, with each plant surrounded by small stones to offset them to best effect."

Horticulture show on Saturday

The Annual Falkland Islands Horticultural Society Flower, Vegetable, Home Produce and Garden Show will be held at the Cathedral Parish Hall on Saturday February 22, with the doors opening at 2pm, £1 per adult and 50p per child or OAP.

There are no entry forms to bother about, just take your exhibits to the Cathedral Parish Hall from 5pm to 8pm on Friday February 21 - or earlier by prior arrangement. No limit on the amount of entries.

"Unless you state clearly that you want an entry back or collected by any person in Stanley, it will be sold in aid of the Horticultural Society," said Ms Buxton.

Prize giving will be at 4 pm on Saturday, followed by the auction and raffle draw. Questions or suggestions: Contact Tim Miller on 21498 (evenings), Nikki Buxton on 52051 or Teena Ormond on 52260. Also on Facebook: Falkland Islands Horticultural Society.

FI Dek Hockey Club
pick teams for 2014

FALKLAND Islands Dek Hockey Club has announced the new teams for the 2014 season. Club Chairman Marcus Morrison confirmed the teams were chosen at random but thought the draw was encouraging for a competitive season.

Captains are to be chosen by the teams.

There are two practice sessions booked at Stanley Leisure Centre on Sunday March 2, 4pm-6pm and Sunday March 9, 4pm-6pm.

The first competition in the Dek Hockey calendar, the Energise Shield, is scheduled to begin on March 16.

Dockyard Open Afternoon - Sunday 2nd March

This winter the museum's long-awaited move to the Dockyard will take place and we would like to offer you the chance to have a look around before we start any work on exhibitions. Come and talk with staff and hear more about what we will be doing in this fantastic area.
Please be aware of the following:
• The Dockyard is still a construction site with a great deal of work ongoing in and around buildings.
• We will do our best to ensure that the area and buildings are safe but hazards will remain and you must take care when moving around.
• We would suggest you do not bring small children onto the site in its current state.
• Please wear sensible clothing and shoes.
• When it opens the Dockyard Museum will be largely impaired mobility/wheelchair accessible but at the moment it is not.
• Please recognise that you visit the site at your own risk and the M&NT cannot be liable for your safety.
• We hope to see you at the Dockyard between 1.00 and 3pm to show you around and answer your questions.

Parking Restrictions on St. Mary's Walk.

F I Museum and National Trust intend to move the RT Hut from St. Mary's Walk to the Dockyard. It is intended to carry out the work next week on Monday 24th and Tuesday 25th February. Parking will not be permitted on St. Mary's Walk, from the Barrack Street junction to Reservoir Road, from 9.00am on Tuesday until the move has been completed. Residents and visitors who park in the area are advised to park elsewhere. Every effort will be made to minimise disruption. If you require further information please contact Gwen Thomson or Darren Plato on 27427.

A presentation hosted by Falklands Conservation:

"Seabird monitoring: the ins and outs of remote sensing technology, and how it all began"

An illustrated talk by Jonathan Handley
18:00 on Tuesday 25th February
Chamber of Commerce

Jonathan will talk about the research project that has been underway for the past 2 summers across the Falklands, and discuss the questions the project aims to answer. He will give insight as to how one goes about investigating animals using GPS loggers, dive loggers, video cameras and diet sampling, and how these may help with conservation of a species. All are welcome to attend

Key changes in new child protection Bill

THE Children Bill 2014 was brought to yesterday's meeting of the Legislative Assembly under a 'certificate of urgency' so that it might, once passed, repeal and replace the now outdated 1994 Children Ordinance.

The Bill includes four key changes from the existing Children Ordinance.

The first of those is that unmarried birth fathers would acquire parental responsibility automatically if their name is registered on the child's birth certificate. Secondly the Falkland Islands Government would assume a new set of statutory duties to provide support (including accommodation and funding) for children in need and their families, children in the care of the Crown, and young adults who have been in the care of the Crown.

For the first time, private fostering arrangements would be regulated and the Falkland Islands Safeguarding Children Board (FISCB) would be given a statutory framework within which to operate.

The Bill will go to Select Committee on Monday, March 3 (1.30pm, Liberation Room) which is open to the public.

Acting Governor is John Duncan

John Duncan OBE

JOHN Duncan OBE was sworn in as Acting Governor of the Falkland Islands yesterday at 5pm at Government House, in advance of the arrival of the Islands' next Governor Colin Roberts CVO at the end of April.

A spokesperson for Government House told Penguin News yesterday that it was, "normal practice in the event of a gap between Heads of Mission for the FCO to reinforce overseas posts with London-based senior staff until the Governor or Ambassador-designate is able to take up their post. This is the case in this instance."

Mr Duncan was appointed HM Governor of the British Virgin Islands in June 2013, a post he will take up in mid-2014. He is currently attached to the Overseas Territories Directorate of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). He was previously Deputy and then acting Head of the former South Atlantic Dependant Territories and Antarctic Department from 1996-98, during which time he visited the Falkland Islands.

Regarding the long gap between the Governors, the Government House spokesperson commented: "succession planning for senior overseas postings is complex. It is rarely possible to synchronise arrivals and departures precisely, which is why there are standard procedures to cover any interregnum."

Fond farewell to Governor Haywood

The parade, which took place on Victory Green and Ross Road, included a 17 detonation salute and the handing over of the Governor's Sword to the Speaker of the House.

His Excellency is pictured here showing his hat to a youth group member who asked him how many feathers it had.

Drink up say MLAs defying judge

A THOUSAND pounds donation to the West Sports Association and to the Darwin Harbour Sports Association was unanimously agreed at the Standing Finance Committee (SFC) on Wednesday afternoon, with the intention the money be spent providing alcohol in place of licensed mobile bars.

The funding is in reaction to the decision by Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley not to grant occasional licences for mobile bars at East and West Sports on Wednesday morning.

MLA Michael Summers told SFC the donation would allow the Sports and their bars, "to continue as they have for 100 to 150 years."

A spokesperson for the Law Courts told Penguin News that the West Falklands Sports Association application was refused because, "the applicant failed to attend, as required by law, despite having been informed of the need for her to do so in a letter sent 14 days previously."

"The applicant had sent someone to say that she was too busy to do so. Consequently, the Court felt unable to consider the application."

The Darwin Harbour Association mobile bar was refused after concerns for public safety were revealed in the evidence provided.

Licenses can be issued by the Summary Court but the Senior Magistrate is hearing all applications after Justices of the Peace indicated they are concerned the Licensing Ordinance is, "unfit for purpose," to provide them with a clear interpretation of the law.

The Courts spokesperson reminded that if the public wished to see how applications for licences are dealt with, were welcome to attend public Court hearings."

Penguin News

Comment by Editor Lisa Watson

MANY years ago while having a wine or two with pals at the house of a former Falklands Conservation Officer I found myself explaining to her that while I and Penguin News would always support the organisation to the hilt and happily promote the responsible protection of our natural environment in any way possible, if she insisted on talking about it to me for any length of time that evening, I would have to leave and go to the pub.

I shamefully admit things haven't changed much; at FIG environmental meetings I still struggle to follow the ins and outs of 'environmental mainstreaming', the various international treaties and what seems to be a never ending list of acronyms that accompany any paper laid before the estimable members of that committee.

At the same time despite my 'Oh good grief not more stats about penguins and plants' attitude, I experienced a puff of pride reading Charles Glover's (Chair of the Blue Marine Foundation) Huffington Post article this week, which, while being less than complimentary about the UK's attitude to environmental protection within Overseas Territories, acknowledged that when it came to preventing illegal fishing, the Falklands was one of few that monitor and enforce this.

Mr Glover's enlightening article which, environmentally speaking, endorses 'good governance' of the territories is highly critical of the UK's 'unfinished business'; and no doubt his criticisms are largely justified, but also arguably oversimplified. In defence of environmental work undertaken in the Falklands had he dug deeper, he might have been suitably impressed with the sheer amount of effort put into advancing a conservation strategy in this little 'fragment of paradise' as he refers to the OTs.

(And if anyone disbelieves me give a call to SAERI, Falklands Conservation or the Environmental Department and no doubt they will cheerfully outline projects, targets, workshops, funding applications, research activity, protected areas and phased approaches until your ears fall off in protest.)

Of course despite the ongoing diligent efforts of our resident environmental protectors, I am sure there will always be something more the Falklands should be doing to come up to the vision of protecting and managing the environment 'to the highest international standards,' as described by Foreign Secretary William Hague.

But I think what we can safely say is, Mr Glover need not be concerned that this territory having its 'own views' on how to run its environment is a 'democratic complication,' in a particularly negative way. Yes a large chunk of the natural environment here serves the population in an economic sense, but this population is exceedingly aware that for this to continue the population must also conserve the natural environment. If he needs any more assurance, apparently we have more environmental scientists per capita than anywhere else in the entire world.

Signing up to UN biological convention is on FI agenda

ALTHOUGH the Falklands has not yet signed up to the UN Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD) it is being actively considered, stated Environmental Officer Nick Rendell, responding to an article that criticised the fact that only four UK Overseas Territories have joined the treaty.

According to Chairman Blue Marine Foundation Charles Clover, writing for The Huffington Post, Britain has not been consistent in applying its conservation principles across all its territories.

He notes there are democratic complications in that some of the territories have their own governments, "which in turn understandably have their own views on how to run their environment."

In the article published this week he notes that only the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Gibraltar and St Helena have completed the necessary preparations to join the UN CBD, describing it as an embarrassment.

Speaking to Penguin News, Mr Rendell said: "The potential for the Falkland Islands to join the UK ratification of the CBD is being actively considered by the Environmental Mainstreaming Group currently. A commitment to the CBD brings with it various obligations and we need to be sure we can meet the targets set rather than jumping in without due consideration to these."

He said a recommendations paper will come from the working group in the next month.

The Falkland Islands Government has signed up to the four other key environmental international treaties: the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES), the Convention on Migratory Species (CMS) (including the ACAP agreement on Albatrosses and Petrels), the Ramsar Agreement on wetlands and the UNECC Kyoto Protocol (aimed at slowing climate change).

The Falkland Islands Government adopted the Falkland Islands Biodiversity Strategy in 2008, said Mr Rendell, "this strategy follows CBD guidance and is being implemented by Government and NGOs to prioritise and further the understanding of biodiversity in our Islands."

In the Huffington Post article Mr Glover goes on to talk of the, "practical embarrassment," presented by the challenge of preventing illegal fishing in remote areas.

"Monitoring and enforcement only currently happens in the Falklands, South Georgia and the BIOT, leaving 3.4 million km² of ocean effectively unpatrolled," states Mr Glover.

Giving Ascension Island as an example he says there was no requirement that fishing vessels granted licences in Ascension Island waters had to dock in the territory before or after fishing, meaning there was also no way of monitoring what was caught.

Mr Glover said the UK Foreign Office had assured conservationists since, that Ascension Island is moving to a licensing regime based on that of the Falklands and will not award any more licences until a new fishery system is launched this year.

FALKLANDS RADIO, ENGINEERING WORKS NOTICES

West Falklands and areas around the Sussex Mountains may be having difficulties receiving Falklands Radio on 102 MHz from Mt Maria and 88 MHz from Sussex Mountain. Engineers are working on the issue but may not be able to restore full service for a while. Listeners on the west generally should check the following FM frequencies which although still under test are working, 97.4 MHz from Byron Heights and 97.6 MHz from Mount Alice.

Maintenance is also being carried out of the 530 AM antenna at Mount William, this can only be done when the weather allows, and so may take from three to four weeks. Transmission may be suspended for some periods during this time.

Falklands Radio is one of the radio channels you can receive on the BFBS Camp television system so might be a useful alternative for now.

McLaren found guilty of 14 sexual offences

STANLEY man Kevin Derek Charles McLaren (38) was found guilty by the Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley in respect of all matters relating to his first trial on Monday morning.

Mr McLaren was charged with two counts of grooming, two of sexual activity with a child, one of inciting a child to engage in sexual activity, three of making an indecent image of a child, five of taking an indecent image of a child and of possession of 16 indecent images.

These were specimen counts of behaviour committed on many occasions over a number of months and attested by text messages, said Crown Counsel Joe Hart.

Mr Hart said the prosecution case was that Mr McLaren had befriended a girl when she was 14 and thereafter groomed, and ultimately engaged in sexual activity with her before she reached the age of 16.

Mr Hart said it was not the prosecution's case that the alleged victim had been physically forced into sexual activity and that it was accepted that the relationship had the appearance of consent. Mr Hart asserted however that Mr McLaren had found a vulnerable girl who had already been sexually used by others and had further corrupted her whilst under the age of 16.

Some 5,896 text messages had been exchanged between Mr McLaren and the victim, who cannot be named for legal reasons, from early April 2011 up until just before his arrest in August 2013, many of which were of a sexually explicit nature.

When Mr McLaren was interviewed by police he accepted he had texted the victim but maintained there had not been any sexual contact until she reached the age of 16. He said the sexually graphic texting was merely "flirting."

Falklands Legal defence lawyer Fiona Rowling submitted that the texting had been sexual fantasy and had not progressed beyond that until the victim reached the age of 16.

Mr McLaren failed to testify in these matters, although Mr Gumsley indicated that by Falkland Islands law, no adverse inference could be drawn in this regard.

Mr Gumsley having considered all the evidence said he found the evidence of the child, along with the explicit text messages, "compelling in many areas," and he was satisfied Mr McLaren was guilty of all charges. He drew attention to Mr McLaren's obsession with sex, with inciting his victim to sleep with other men and several fetishes including red lipstick and anal sex.

Sentencing will take place following the conclusion of a final trial relating to other victims which began on Wednesday.

Second trial dropped

In the second trial involving another complainant, a not guilty verdict was recorded on Tuesday afternoon when the Attorney General's Chambers offered no evidence. Mr McLaren was charged with sexual activity with a child and inciting a child to engage in sexual activity. The decision to drop the case was taken after investigation into how the complaint originated and how evidence had been obtained.

Plaintiffs 'jumped on the band wagon' claims McLaren as he awaits verdict

THE third in a series of trials for Kevin Derek Charles McLaren (Scooby) began on Wednesday morning with Crown Counsel Joe Hart outlining the case which alleges two incidents of indecent assault against a further two complainants.

It was the prosecution's case said Mr Hart that Mr McLaren had entered the first complainant's place of residence without knocking or being invited in some 13 years ago.

When told his girlfriend was not there he said "you'll do" and grabbed the complainant by the arm and forced her onto the sofa, pinned her down and tried to kiss her.

Giving evidence by video link the complainant gave a vivid account of her anguish at being pinned down and how Mr McLaren had been "slobbering" all over her face and mouth; of how he was sexually aroused and how she had feared he would rape her.

A child entering the house had caused Mr McLaren to let her go. The complainant said she had cause to be wary of Mr McLaren as prior to that incident he had touched her leg on two occasions and made repeated sexual suggestions when he was working as a taxi driver.

She said she had told two people of the incident at the time, but their response had been dismissive and along the lines of "Scooby would just be having a joke." The complainant referred to Mr McLaren as, "having the gift of the gab and being able to, 'laugh his way out of things.'"

The second complainant who was initially contacted as a potential witness for the first complainant also alleged that Mr McLaren had pinned her body under his and tried to kiss her, what Mr Hart described as "another aggressive indecent assault."

The second complainant giving evidence also described an incident estimated to have taken place about a year earlier where Mr McLaren pushed her to a sofa and tried to kiss her. She said she remembered well that when she had fended him off he had, "stepped on a jam sandwich," which had been left on a plate on the floor. She said she had managed to deal with the incident by, "blocking it out," but that a lot of memories had flooded back when interviewed. When defence lawyer Fiona Rowling put it to her that the assault had not happened, she replied, "I'm not even going to answer that."

Mr McLaren took to the witness stand for the first time and said he had never been in the house of the first complainant when she had been there, or made sexual advances to her when he was working as a taxi driver.

He said he was not aware of ever being alone with the second complainant although he agreed she had assisted him with learning difficulties around that time.

Both plaintiffs had, "jumped on the band wagon," he claimed as a result of the other allegations against him.

At the time of going to print points of law were being considered with judgement by the Senior Magistrate Carl Gumsley expected to be delivered at 2pm today (Friday).

Falkstock will still rock the Town Hall

FALKSTOCK is still going ahead on March 7, but due to damage caused by a rogue wave whilst crossing the Drake Passage, Polar Latitudes regrets that the Sea Explorer crew, passengers, and expedition team, will not be able to attend the much anticipated event.

"We trust that Falkstock will be a wild success and enjoyed by the people of Stanley. Plans for Falkstock '15 are already underway and we look forward to raising a glass with you next March," said a spokesperson for the company.

Falkstock kicks off at 7pm on March 7, with a night of music from talented local musicians and bands with all proceeds raised donated to the Stephen Jaffray Memorial Fund. There will be special Falkstock t-shirts available for purchase on the night.

Sullivan Shipping Cruise Co-ordinator Sammy Marsh said: "Polar Latitudes have been extremely generous in continuing to fund this event for us and this very worthy cause - I hope to see lots of you there."

End of the road for Blue Bus

THE Blue Bus, a charitable Trust set up in 1991 by Janice Black, Nick Hadden and John Birmingham to do a weekly shopping run around Stanley for the elderly will no longer continue.

Last year the bus needed some major repairs and although the money could have been raised, it was decided at a meeting of Trustees to use the Hospital Bus purchased with money left by the late Maud Sollis, and the assets of the Blue Bus Trust would be sold and funds transferred to the Maud Sollis Trust.

The sale of assets has been completed and the money raised, along with the monies already in the Blue Bus bank account totalling £5,757.87 were transferred to the Maud Sollis Trust.

The Blue Bus Trust will now close; the service will continue but there is only one driver at the moment so if anyone has a spare couple of hours on a Friday afternoon then please call John on 52834 or 21443. No special licence is required.

Legislative Assembly Member Jan Cheek shares a glimpse into her working week

NORMALLY much of the feedback I get from my column comes from overseas readers who, it appears, are some of PN's most avid followers. That feedback, and a scenic flight the length of Stanley, together with the numerous overseas visitors to whom we've spoken recently prompted me to think about how others see us. Viewed from the front Stanley is a pretty, well-kept town with only a few prominent eyesores; however, it is very different from the back, particularly along the bypass. When driving visitors in from the airport I found myself apologising for the mess and explaining as best I could why people store so many rusting carcasses in the prominent vehicle graveyards. It was, I said, part of our long tradition of make do and mend, and never discard anything that might come in useful.

In the same way we are generally welcoming and hospitable but that image is sometimes marred by the kind of 'us and them' comments by a minority who seemingly imagine we could manage without the wide range of professional and skilled people we employ on contract. Of course it is a long term aim to train and employ Islanders to fill many of those roles but there should always be a place for incomers, some of whom will settle and stay as did our ancestors.

This week our meetings included a very good presentation on the next steps to assess the viability of a credit union in the Falklands. It is a concept which has worked well elsewhere, and apparently some credit unions weathered recent financial troubles better than banks because of more conservative lending.

I have joked about placing departing Governors on the pomposity scale but Nigel Haywood had no place on that and while occasionally pedantic, his mastery of languages justifies it. As many of us said a genuinely affectionate farewell to a departing Governor, who will be missed, I remembered working with five and having met 14. The first was Edwin Arrowsmith at the school prize giving where I received the only prize I've ever won, for needlework aged about ten.

Avoid Hyperlipidaemia with healthy lifestyle

The first in a series of health articles provided by the King Edward VII Memorial Hospital

LIPID is another word for fat. Cholesterol and triglycerides are lipids. When the concentration of cholesterol or triglycerides is too high in the blood, it is called Hyperlipidaemia. Having a lipid level that is too high increases the risk of heart attacks and strokes. Hyperlipidaemia is often found when people are overweight, have an unhealthy diet or consume too much alcohol.

Cholesterol is made in the liver from fatty foods that we eat. A certain amount of cholesterol is present in the bloodstream. Some cholesterol is needed by the body to keep healthy.

Cholesterol is carried in the blood as part of particles called lipoproteins, which are low-density and high-density lipoproteins carrying cholesterol.

LDL cholesterol. This is often referred to as bad cholesterol and is the one mainly involved in forming atheroma. Atheroma is the main underlying cause of various cardiovascular diseases.

HDL cholesterol: This is often referred to as good cholesterol. This may prevent atheroma forming.

Triglycerides are the main form of fat stored in the body. Any food we eat that is not used for energy immediately - carbohydrates, fat, or protein - is also converted into triglycerides. The triglycerides are taken up by adipose (fat) cells, to be used for energy if food is not available later. When we think of fat on hips or tummy, we are thinking of triglycerides.

In some people a very high level of cholesterol runs in the family, due to a genetic problem. This is called Familial Hypercholesterolaemia.

Hyperlipidaemia is often found when people aged 40-74 years with no known disease are screened to assess the risk of having heart attacks or strokes. People below 40 years are screened if there is a family history of Familial lipid disorder.

A healthy diet and medicines can help lower the lipid levels. A healthy diet has other benefits too apart from reducing the level of cholesterol.

Briefly, a healthy diet means: low salt, low fatty foods, fruit, vegetables, fish, chicken.

Everyone should aim to tackle lifestyle risk factors.

This means:

- Eat a healthy diet.
- Take regular physical activity.
- Keep weight and waist in check.
- No smoking.
- Cut back if you drink a lot of alcohol.

If you would like to be screened for Hyperlipidaemia please contact KEMH Reception on telephone 28000 to make a GP appointment.

Passport ready

DIRECTOR of Health and Social Services Hilary Rowland advised the Health and Medical Services Committee last week that in order to be prepared for any health situation the community should be reminded to keep a valid passport. She said parents should be encouraged to obtain passports for their children from birth.

Ms Rowland explained that sorting documentation for an emergency passport is added administration for someone who requires urgent medical treatment overseas.

Hep B catch up

THE Health and Medical Committee has supported a "catch-up programme" for Hepatitis B and MMR based on the heightened risk of catching the diseases if cases arose in the Islands.

The Hepatitis B Vaccine was introduced three years ago and MLA Barry Elsbey raised the issue to reassess the decision not to offer a vaccination to the years that missed the opportunity but are still at risk. "It seems odd we accept there is a risk by offering a vaccination but if you're born a week before the introduction of the vaccination you don't qualify for protection," he said at the meeting.

CMO Rowlands agreed the aim was to, "build up immunity in the community," and presented a report recommending Hep B vaccination for all under 18s. Given a rise in cases of measles internationally she added a recommendation to the report to offer MMR2 vaccination to those under 30 in the reduced likelihood they have not had it.

History is on the move old RT Station relocated

ALTHOUGH it may seem hard to imagine in an age of pocket sized devices capable of accessing the internet, for many years the tiny building nestled on St Mary's Walk the old Radio Telephone (RT) Station, was the very hub of communications around the Islands.

On Tuesday it was moved a short distance from its original site to take up home within the new Museum complex in the old Dockyard site where it will eventually be transformed to its former glory.

There was a time when dedicated radio operators working within the building were the main link with Stanley for all the Camp settlements, their day starting at 8am with weather reports being received from all corners to be passed to the Government Air Service.

John Smith recalls in his Historical Scrapbook of Stanley, that this early morning call was also a security check. If any settlement failed to make contact, actions were undertaken by other settlements to find out the problem.

The RT operators were household names and in fact their voices filled most homes throughout the day as both Stanley and Camp residents tuned in to keep up with the daily affairs.

From taking down lengthy store orders to be shipped to Camp to dealing with a medical emergency or just having a friendly chat when time permitted, the operators were patient and polite often faced with bad conditions and a constant crackle making it difficult to understand incoming

Kiwi not from New Zealand

IN the February 7 edition of Penguin News we carried a short story about MLA Summers laying a wreath in New Zealand to honour the sacrifice of Private Richard Absolon who was the only New Zealand soldier killed during the 1982 War.

In the following edition we offered a correction as a result of information received from a SAMA82 representative saying that Sgt Ian 'Kiwi' Nicholas Hunt who died in a blue on blue incident was also from New Zealand.

Mike Rendell has kindly pointed out that this information is incorrect and in fact Sgt Kiwi Hunt was born in Kent, England in 1953. Mr Rendell's information was received from SBS 1982 veteran Willy Stocks who recalled the nickname had been attributed because it was thought Sgt Hunt looked like a Kiwi. Our apologies for any confusion this may have caused.

However the RT Station is probably best remembered for the Doctors Hour when an on-air surgery was held. Symptoms were described and medication prescribed while most of the Falklands listened in to what was considered some of the best entertainment available.

Also on the move this week to the Dockyard site is the Reclus Hut from outside the current Museum. The hut was originally pre-fabricated in Stanley and used by the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey as a small refuge at Reclus Peninsula (later named Portal Point) in Antarctica in the 1950s. The hut was returned to the Falklands in 1996 and rebuilt in the Museum grounds by a team of Royal Engineers in 1998.

It contains many of its original contents from the late 1950s as well as contemporary equipment provided by BAS.

Born in Surrey and educated in Cornwall, Nigel Haywood was Governor of the Falkland Islands from October 2010 to February 2014.

He has now returned to Dorset to devote his life to fishing, running, playing the bassoon and catching up with old friends.

He aims to return to the Falklands before too long as he is convinced there is still a 10 pound trout out there with his name on it!

Help a hero

I WANT to let the wonderful people of the Falklands know that they can now place their names on a electronic petition for Corporal Stewart McLaughlin to enable a discussion to be held in the House of Commons into how Corporal McLaughlin and others can be retrospectively formally recognised for their astonishing bravery and leadership during the battle for Mount Longdon. As they may be aware Stewart's citation was lost and no award for him was made. The MOD say it is too late for an award to be made, despite their feelings that he should have received something, probably a VC.

All PN readers have to do is google e petitions" then using the government search engine type in Corporal McLaughlin's name, then confirm in a email reply. 100,000 names are needed so please help. Warmest best wishes to all Islanders that have joined Stewart's facebook page and a massive thank you.

Is our Leisure built to last?

I READ with interest the front page article of your last edition in which MLA Hansen commendably praised the efforts of Simon Fletcher and Leisure staff members for their efforts in working towards an opening date for the refurbished swimming pool, the end of April this year.

I think it is good that MLAs should commend FIG staff when and where appropriate but I also hope that they have asked some probing questions about why the situation arose in the first place.

Was it avoidable?

Were all the right questions asked at the outset? Is there a tendency within FIG to always choose the cheapest option when it comes to capital projects? Is the cheapest option always the best option? Were the leaking pipes buried in the concrete caused as a result of a previously poorly carried out piece of work, and who should have checked at that time to make sure the job had been done properly? Will the new fibre glass lining be as good as new, or will it be compromised as a result of the repairs that now have to take place?

Yes, lots of questions, but the reason I ask them is because similar situations to this one seem to occur over and over again in the Falkland Islands. Why is that the case, and what could or should be done to minimise such situations arising in the future?

If all the money overspent on various projects by FIG over the past 20 years could be repaid into the Treasury coffers there would probably be sufficient funds available to blacktop the MPA road for several miles outside of Stanley. Now there is a thought to conjure with.

Uruguay is Open for Business!

You've heard it from high-ranking Uruguayans: they want their country to be the Islands' business partners. Now, Fitzroy Trading, a company registered in Montevideo with Falklands and Uruguayan directors, has been established specifically to make that relationship a reality.

We break down barriers of language and culture, make transactions safe and easy, find what our clients want and secure the best deals.

Fitzroy Trading is already supplying fresh food, farming supplies and building materials to retailers and other businesses in the Falklands, using the reliable and frequent SAAS shipping service. We can do the same for you.

Among the many services and goods Fitzroy Trading can offer: manpower recruitment, fresh foodstuffs and catering supplies, wine, farming supplies, cement and steel reinforcing, printing, container-based buildings. In fact, if it's available in Uruguay, we can procure it for you.

Contact us today and tell us what we can do for you.

Here he shares with Penguin News some of his favourite moments as well as his views on some of the issues he has dealt with during his three and a half years in the Islands.

PN: The first headline in Penguin News following your arrival was "New Governor hits the ground running," and I think it's safe to say you haven't slowed down in that department. What are your favourite sporting memories?

HE: I have two regular runs; up Reservoir Hill and down the By-Pass down Rowlands Rise and up the seafront and that is exactly five miles. The other one goes out to a completely random lay-by out on the Murrel Road which comes in at 8.6 miles.

I'm unhappy to be missing the marathon but pleased to be hosting the prize giving for the half marathon here at Government House as my positively last farewell. Running has been very important to me, and everyone has been very nice. Someone did say at the start of my time here that we like our Governors to be visible and I've taken that quite seriously with my fluorescent orange shirt. People wave and often shout "hi Governor" as I run around and that is quite nice.

It's important people know I am around and I think I have even become a sight for the tourist buses now as the other day I was doing a long run and suddenly everyone on a tourist bus was waving and I know that either John Birmingham or Richard Cockwell would have pointed me out.

One of the highlights was definitely having happy birthday sung to me as I made my way around the marathon – it was such a random thing to happen that I really was quite touched by it.

PN: There has been substantial progress with oil exploration during time in the Islands – what do you see as the most positive impact for the community as a whole?

HE: There have been a lot of positive effects already with income from exploration for the last two to three years and it's given people a chance to plan for if there is oil and also if there is not.

The amount of consultation carried out by FIG is impressive and Jamie Fotheringham [Head of Policy] has done wonders in setting up a road map of what still needs to be done. It's almost the law of unintended consequences; they've had to look at so many things; legislation, taxation, infrastructure development etc which actually needed looking at anyway, but oil has speeded up that process.

One of the most important pieces of work has been social impact studies which will help the MLAs decide what they want the Islands to look like. You can go from hardly anything onshore through to loads of stuff onshore and its important to look at what would be helpful onshore. Ultimately what is trying to be achieved is to make the economy bigger so that young people will have really meaningful jobs to come back to.

That is the real optimism I have for oil in the Islands it'll be something that allows people to focus on the long term economy, after all oil is only for 40-50 years.

Build up the sovereign wealth fund, build up a range of economic activities, particularly knowledge based ones (scientific) and then have a really attractive set of possibilities to make sure the kids do come back. They want to, it's only lack of opportunity that keeps them from doing so.

PN: There has been a lot of criticism coming out of the Courts about the state of law in the Islands. Are we going to be ready in respect of law for the next stage of oil development, exploitation?

HE: Work on specifically oil related laws is fine. That is going ahead well.

The state of the laws is a concern, it was a concern of the Minister's (Minister of State for the FCO Hugo Swire) when he came down and is of wider concern too. MLAs have grasped this concern and we had Daniel Greenberg down last year talking about how to revise the laws, which are inconsistent and even incoherent in some ways.

It's moving more slowly than anyone would like, but MLAs have made clear both to the visiting Attorney General Dominic Grieve and the visiting Minister that they want the laws sorted out.

The only note of caution is that we thought we had solved it a couple of years ago and now it's going to cost a fortune to do it again. The problem needs to be sorted definitively and I think we are close to that.

The courts have rightly been critical. You can't make the judgments if you don't know what the law is. There is a real effort being made to write the laws in plain language and the Attorney General's staff are to be commended for that.

You can't be a serious country without firm laws underpinning everything you do. You have to have clear firm laws which most importantly are accessible to everyone.

You can't expect the Attorney General to write laws on everything from maritime law to oil law and through to child protection law as each of those areas needs expertise and you buy in that expertise to write the relevant laws and that is the sensible approach that we are adopting.

I'm very pleased that the previous assembly took it seriously and this assembly are taking it seriously.

PN: How successful do you think the more robust Foreign Policy approach adopted by MLAs has been?

HE: One of the things that was apparent when I got here was that people understood intellectually the position Britain seemed to be taking which was 'we have the moral high ground in dealing with Argentina, but we shouldn't push too hard because they would make things worse and it would also affect our relationship with other Latin American countries.'

While intellectually sound it didn't seem to me to be a very sensible approach. That was something the coalition government felt quite strongly itself in the UK. When William Hague gave his speech in Canning House about improving relations with Latin America, there was a pause where people wondered if it meant that the Falklands were going to be pushed even further away, but when I talked to him before coming to the Islands he was quite clear it was a priority for the Coalition to support the Islands in what ever way made sense.

I really hated the idea of sitting back and being in the right, it seemed a terribly passive thing to do and I think MLAs felt the same.

As a result MLAs were able to come up with a public diplomacy plan to tackle the mistrusts Argentina had put out there and the FCO was keen to support that process by using the embassy network to encourage people to come down here and see what it was like, journalists, MPs etc and for MLAs to get out and about.

I remember MLAs saying when I first got here, well if you think the FCO will let MLAs go and represent the Islands in other countries, I think you're wrong. I said I didn't see why we shouldn't and that's what happened.

I think what has been very encouraging about my time here has been that FIG and FCO have been moving closer and closer together on what should be the right approach to Argentina and public diplomacy and the Falklands as seen internationally. It's worked very well and both sides are clearly trying to do the same thing. But it's a very long and slow process, and now we've started we have to carry on with it.

But there have been some enormous successes. You wouldn't have even thought it possible to get Uruguayan politicians down here, never mind the Panamanians and we've had Brazilian officials we've had MLAs meeting with politicians in Latin America, all these things Argentina said must never happen.

They've happened. I think its been incredibly successful. But it will be an uphill struggle because Argentina will not suddenly sit back and say, you know I think you're right.

If we keep pushing the process we can hope that other countries will sit back and question making the economic life of the Islands difficult. Setting thought processes rather than sitting back and wondering how to respond under attack is one of the great shifts it's been great to see during my time here.

Fitzroy House victory at FICS 2014 sports day

FALKLAND Islands Community School Sports Day 2014 proved to be a great morning for participation and performance said Community School teacher Jenny Sol. Students from all houses represented their house in a variety of sports including the more traditional athletic events and more modern ones such as rounders ball throw.

It was a close competition throughout the day, "with it all to play for leading into the relays," said Miss Sol.

With the relays counting as double points students were fighting hard for the top positions.

Fitzroy House came through victorious beating Ross House by only 11 points, with Shackleton in third place.

"It was great to see students, parents and teachers enjoying the sporting event," concluded Miss Sol.

A sunny species survey

Members of the Watch Group celebrate with their list of species.

THE Lyn Blake Nature Reserve, Hawk Nest Pond, is amazingly rich in biodiversity. Bioblitzers discovered in a busy weekend of wildlife hunting at the West Falkland nature reserve, which is owned by Falkland Conservation.

A Bioblitz is essentially a rapid survey of everything that lives in a defined area, but more importantly, is a chance for all the community to get out and take a closer look at the nature that surrounds us.

A range of opportunities were offered: Falkland Conservation's

Freya Gill was stationed at the pond edge to help anyone who wanted to get muddy and explore the life of the pond itself.

Intrepid explorers who made it to the far reaches of the pond found temporary bird-watching hides constructed from camouflage netting kindly loaned to us by the FIDF and ingeniously designed by Ben Cockwell.

Visitors who wanted more structured tasks could choose from a range of graded 'missions', which sent them off to survey plants, collect mosses and lichens and investigate invertebrates.

A base camp was set up by the entrance to the reserve equipped with magnifiers, identification guides and computers to help us identify and record our finds. Identification, particularly of invertebrates, was a real challenge.

Often we were concentrating on photographing and recording what we found, in the hope that an expert can be found in the future to give it a name.

This is also quite exciting though, there is always the possibility in the Falklands of finding something new to science.

The volunteers worked hard to produce a species list for the site that will help Falklands Conservation manage it for visitors and for wildlife, and can be added to in the future as we learn more about what lives there.

Thanks are due to everyone who helped, to John Carlin, the Watch Group and their adult helpers, to Helen Marsh who spent the day on the computer entering data and to everyone who came and took part.

THE 2014 Horticultural Show was a resounding success reports the committee's Nikki Buxton: "with more entries in all categories except pot plants than there have been since 2005."

She said this was surprising, "as the spring and summer weather has been so bad."

The committee would like to thank all entrants, judges, helpers, the Government House gardeners for their spectacular display, Acting Governor Sandra Tyler-Haywood for giving out the prizes, Gary Clement for auctioneering, and the Cathedral Council for the venue.

A STRONG wind and a chance of rain or even snow are becoming the regular conditions for the Stanley Running Club Cape Pembroke Half Marathon, but despite a lower turnout from the military than usual the event was boosted by a larger than usual number of resident runners.

Cheerfully smiling around the course on Sunday despite the brutal cross wind were 32 runners and two walkers.

First man was IJS teacher Tim Drew in an astonishingly quick time of 1:16:02, only a couple of minutes off the course record set by Steven Frear in 2010.

Second place was Martin Collins who was happy to have set down a quick time of 1:23:57 after some time off training and third place went to military man Tyson Dun-

First woman Teslyn Barkman took 24 minutes off her winning time in 2010 and set a new women's course record with a time of 1:35:25.

Second woman to finish was Caroline Drew with 1:44:36, and third went to Lynsey Sutcliffe who set a personal best time of 1:59:28 and said she was delighted to have finally broken the two hour barrier.

The strong southerly wind pushed competitors backwards in some parts of the course and tested their endurance for cold weather but a lot of personal best times were beaten all around. Setting his fastest time of 1:29:43 was Richard Short who won the reintroduced Veteran's prize and was fifth overall.

Rachel Bernitsen braved the cold and walked the distance to raise money for the Stephen Jaffray Memorial Fund.

Running the course for the first time, and also for charity, was Wendy Luxton who picked up the pace from walking the event in previous years.

Karen Minto also ran the course for the first time and set down an admirable time of 2:06:07.

A speedy team of younger competitors from Stanley House; Matthew Hansen, Tyler Hobman, Callum Boyce, Vikki Bernitsen, Adam Dickson, Logan Dickson, Carolina Castro completed it in 2:01:39.

Governor Nigel Haywood also set his personal best on the day and hosted the prize-giving event at Government House later in the afternoon.

Other sports groups also attended to say farewell and thank you to the 'Running Governor' who has contributed much to sport in the Islands.

Stanley Running Club would like to thank the FIC, Shorty's Building Services, Consolidated Fisheries, RBC Ltd and Ian Stewart Construction Ltd for so generously sponsoring the half marathon and a thank you to Penguin Travel for supplying the bus to transfer the runners to the start.

Grateful thanks to all the marshals, helpers, family, friends and supporters who stood outside for hours in the freezing cold and kindly donated their invaluable time.

Pleasant Peak: Frequency: 147.225 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves most of the south of West Falkland and repeats Mount Alice Repeater, which covers most of the south of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Mount Alice: Frequency: 147.825 (-600 Duplex) This repeater serves most of the south of West Falklands and links to Stanley via Pleasant Peak and Sapper Hill.

Emergency Radio Frequencies

The Public are advised that, in the event of an emergency, where no other form of communication is available, the Royal Falkland Islands Police maintain a 24 hour listening watch on the VHF 2 metre band. This system is served by a series of five repeaters. Users are advised to familiarise themselves with the frequencies that the system uses and which areas of the Falkland Islands they cover, to optimise their likelihood of accessing the system. A listening watch is also maintained on the Marine Band.

VHF 2 Metre Band:

Sapper Hill: Frequency: 146.675 (Simplex) This repeater serves both Mount Kent and Pleasant Peak repeaters and the Stanley area.

Mount Kent: Frequency: 147.125 (+600 Duplex) This repeater serves the north camp on East Falklands and repeats the Mount Caroline Repeater, which covers the north of West Falklands. It links to Stanley via Sapper Hill.

Marine Band: 156.800.. Channel 16 (Stanley area) 2.182 MHz HF In the event that communications fail on all the above frequencies then the RFP may be contacted direct on 153.650 (duplex + 1.6). It is however unlikely that this frequency will be functional from West Falkland

Fault Reporting - Users are encouraged to report any faults with the system:
Telephone: 28100, E-mail: inspector@police.gov.fk or fax: 28110.

Over the garden fence with Ginge Kidd

MODERN medicine is really quite fantastic isn't it? When I fell and smashed my knee-cap it was all put back together with the aid of a wire cage and all was progressing nicely, even though one of the 'knots' above the knee became very obvious as the swelling died down. This was uncomfortable rather than painful, but that changed when one of the very pointed pins facing downwards started making a bid for freedom just below my knee. At that stage walking became very painful indeed, as did any clothing, however light, touching the area. Once again I have been fixed; the knot removed and the troublesome point and the one next to it, trimmed back. Bliss! Pain free movement again and no more whingeing from me. That is, barring normal amounts of complaints about the weather, weeds and pests.

Our rhubarb got its second wind and we have been able to put a lot back into the freezer again. I always cook it first and have found the quickest and easiest method is to cook it in the oven using a roast pan with a lid. I normally do about four pounds at a time with one pound of sugar, half of which is soft brown sugar and the rest white and about a pint of water. This goes into a 160 degree oven for 45 minutes, perfect, and very juicy. I love the stuff. Never could enjoy custard as a sauce, and junket seems a thing of the past. No, cream is just the thing to serve it with or even vanilla ice-cream. What is left over goes into the freezer for another time.

Due to shortage of time nothing was dug into the soil before planting this year. To give the brassicas a little oomph I have just given them a Growmore snack. I don't want them to get a lot of soft growth before the winter but I do want them to be hard enough to survive it.

The flower borders certainly did not get fed this year. Normally in the spring and once weeded they would have had some 6X thrown over them, but not this year. They don't seem to have suffered too much but to ensure all the new plants and shrubs going into the borders get the best possible start I am digging larger than normal holes for them and almost filling them with home made compost before popping the plant in; always making sure the plant has been soaked or very well watered first so the root ball is nice and wet. Add a little bit of bonemeal or blood, fish and bone, and back goes the rest of the soil to tuck the plant in cosily for the winter.

Missed the Horticultural Show, another senior moment! I had every intention of going for a look but totally forgot about it when the day became good enough to potter in the garden. I wasn't going to put anything in anyway, for though the flowers appear to be in good shape when seen 'en masse' in the borders, the individual flowers have all been slightly damaged by the wind and rain, and close up look quite the worse for wear. The fruit is fine but not fully ripe and the vegetables have not matured enough. Another ten days or so would have seen one of the pumpkins ready. This one is now quite an impressive size but not showing signs that it is ready to stop growing. The girls would never forgive me for cutting it off yet anyway. The tomatoes are plentiful but ripening is rather patchy; this allows plenty for our needs but not enough to find a few of each different variety.

The strawberries inside are taking a bit of a breather at the moment and producing loads of runners. I have been cutting those off and once tidied have put them fairly closely into plant trays to root properly before putting them into their places. Those outside have a terrific crop on them but they are having difficulties ripening; can't say I blame them given our weather. The gooseberries just blow off the bushes; only the birds are getting any of those!

The garlic I planted last May has done quite well but not grown as large as normal. It was ready for harvesting though so out it came. Not a bad crop for all that and it is drying nicely in the shed. The last of the thinning has finally been completed on our swedes, which were very late indeed being planted this year but we should get something from them.

The carrots in the tunnels are doing very well and more thinning was required. Despite being planted late they shouldn't do too badly.

All the other vegetables under cover are doing wonderfully well, even the onions which started as seedlings so late in the season have caught up very quickly. The greens are also doing well, they probably would have suffered a little in a normal warmer season but they have coped well with the dull weather this year.

I have just been filling in any available spaces with more greens for the winter and early spring. I have visions of caulies, cabbages and broccolis filling out and producing mouth watering vegetables. I'll bet the earwigs, woodlice and all the other beasts are too.

Queens Baton relay of Stanley

SPORTS groups will be taking the Commonwealth Games Queens Baton on a relay around landmarks of Stanley today (February 28).

Starting at 7.30am, horse riders will carry the baton before it is given a tour of Stanley by air, courtesy of FIGAS, before being passed to shearers demonstrating their skills at Stanley Airport. Stanley Swimming Club will take the baton past Surf Bay and relay on to Stanley Running Club at the Totem Pole.

Waiting to take the baton past Glasgow Road just after 9am will be the Badminton Club.

Falklands Archery Association will then carry it around the Whalebone Arch area before passing it on to students at the Infant and Junior School. "This will be great to see the kids passing it on to FICS students," said Chairman of Falkland Islands Overseas Games Association, MLA Summers.

Junior School students are scheduled to relay the baton along Ross Road and up Reservoir Road to students at Falkland Islands Community School between 10.30am and 11am.

The Fire and Rescue Service will then take the baton to Moody Brook and visit Stanley Golf Club before returning to finish the relay at Government House. MLA Summers urged the public to come and cheer the baton's progress around town.

Football coaching kicks off

THE Falkland Islands Football League (FIFL) would like to invite anyone interested in playing football to attend men's football training.

Training sessions are open to men aged 15 and over, and will be held every Saturday at 4pm on Stanley football pitch. The training sessions will be run by Wayne Clement, who was also recently appointed as the Football Club Coach for the summer, and will involve a variety of drills and practice games.

Whether you recently hung up your boots or are looking for a new way to keep fit, these sessions are open to all.

Fixtures for the near future are currently being organised, both 5-a-side and 11-a-side, and will be advertised when dates are set.

The first training session will be held this Saturday, March 1 at 4pm. For further information please contact FIFL Secretary, Joshua Peck or Football Club Coach, Wayne Clement.

Notices

Dockyard Open Afternoon - Sunday 2nd March

This winter the museum's long-awaited move to the Dockyard will take place and we would like to offer you the chance to have a look around before we start any work on exhibitions. Come and talk with staff and hear more about what we will be doing in this fantastic area.

Please be aware of the following:

The Dockyard is still a construction site with a great deal of work ongoing in and around buildings.

We will do our best to ensure that the area and buildings are safe but hazards will remain and you must take care when moving around.

We would suggest you do not bring small children onto the site in its current state.

Please wear sensible clothing and shoes.

When it opens the Dockyard Museum will be largely impaired mobility/wheelchair accessible but at the moment it is not.

Please recognise that you visit the site at your own risk and the M&NT cannot be liable for your safety.

We hope to see you at the Dockyard between 1.00 and 3pm to show you around and answer your questions.

"We Are Falklands" Photo Competition

The Falkland Islands Government PR & Media Office is running a photo competition to source quality images of our beautiful home. The winning photos will be printed and displayed at a central London gallery later this year to promote the stunning views, wildlife, history and community that make the Falkland Islands a truly unique place. Images will also be used after the exhibition as part of the Falklands Experience Roadshow, where they will be displayed at several locations throughout the UK.

We are looking for material from amateur and professional photographers in several categories (Wildlife; Landscapes; Heritage; Island Life; People), and are looking forward to promoting our Islands through the quality photos submitted.

The closing date for entries is Friday 28th March. Please read the Terms & Conditions for all the details regarding photo requirements, submission information and other tips.

The Terms & Conditions are available from Krysteen or Emily at the PR & Media Office (27400) or by emailing kormond@sec.gov.fk or ehancox@sec.gov.fk

Or check it out online <http://www.falklands.gov.fk/we-are-falklands-photo-competition/>

Pause for Prayer is a monthly interdenominational prayer meeting aimed with women in mind. We meet once a month on the first Wednesday of each month; we informally discuss women of the Bible followed by a time of prayer. This month we are continuing to discuss Mary, the mother of Jesus. All women are welcome, we start at 4.45pm and aim to finish at 6pm, and our next meeting will be on 5th March at 9 Anderson Drive. Take time out of a busy life to Pause for Prayer.
For more details contact Alison on 21851.

The Interdenominational Women's World Day Of Prayer will be held on Friday 7th March in the Tabernacle Church at 6pm. Everyone is welcome to attend this service which this year has been prepared by Christian Women of Egypt. There will be refreshments following the service.

PERSONAL/NOTICES

To Huw, Wishing you a very happy fun filled 9th birthday on Tuesday. Enjoy your super special day! With all our love Mummy, Daddy, Oscar, Nanna, Grandy and all your family and friends in the UK xxxx Zoe and Dan would like to thank everyone who celebrated their marriage with them and made the day so special. Particular mention must go to Roddy, Rob, Anna, Sam, Nick, Adam, Jenny, Sares and Troyd. Many thanks to Jo for the fabulous cakes, the team at Malvina and to Nigel and Tansy. We are overwhelmed by the generous cards and gifts we have received. Thank you very, very much.

Congratulations to Jessica Lee of Port Howard who raised £54.20 for Cancer Support And Awareness Trust, by selling her artwork to the people of the settlement. Thanks also to all the generous folks who bought her pictures. Well done!

The Select Committee of the Elected Members of Legislative Assembly on The Children Bill 2014 will meet at 1330 hrs on Monday 3rd March in the Liberation Room, Secretariat. This is open to the public, however, seating is limited.
